"Who owns the electric company?"

Some people can answer that question with the greatest of ease—but a surprising number of our own customers can't.

Thousands of people own the electric company. All kinds of people, people who invest money in the company and help it grow to serve you better.

That makes it an independent business—not owned by the city, the state, or any kind of government.

And that's one of the big reasons why you can always be sure of having plenty of electricity, at a bargain price.
