BOARDED BY SPANIARDS.

American Trading Brig Searched For Arms, But None Found.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—The American brig Harriet G. arrived at quarantine from Neuvitas, Cuba. The Harriet G. is owned by Mosle Bros. of this city and trades regularly between New York and Neuvitas.

She sailed from this port on Aug. 29 last and reached Neuvitas on Sept. 19, where she discharged her cargo. On Oct. 8 a Spanish officer with several soldiers boarded the brig and made a thorough search for a large quantity of arms which the Spanish officials had been informed were on board the vessel.

The brig was ransacked from stem to stern, but no arms were found. The Spanish officer went so far as to demand that Captain Miller remove from below all his anchor chains. This the captain refused to do and the officers were reluctantly forced to leave the vessel. The United States consul was on board at the time, but could do nothing.

Captain Miller will report the facts in the case to the proper authorities at Washington.

There was on board the Harriet G. a young Cuban passenger named Gustava Torce, who claimed that he was so persecuted by the Spanish authorities that he was compelled to leave the island and come to the United States.

EDUCATING THE RED MAN.

Interesting Features of the Report of Superintendent Hallman.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—W. N. Hallman, superintendent of Indian schools, in his annual report, discusses at some length the proposition to enlist the different states in Indian education. He says there are in some cases an unwillingness to admit Indian children to schools attended by white children, and in some cases he thinks it might become necessary to sometimes specific Indian schools for limited periods. Superintendent Hallman states that a hearty co-operation was received from the state superintendents of schools in California, Oregon, Washington, Nevada, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Iowa, and he believes that in most of these states it will be possible to transfer the work of Indian education to state authorities in a comparatively short period.

Mr. Hallman discusses the difficulties which Indian children who have been at school encounter when they return to the reservations and the squalor of Indian life. He thinks efforts should be made to have agents establish these Indians in homes of their own and exert every effort to prevent them from returning to their former mode of life.

An estimate of $17,000,000 for all postmasters is made for the year 1897, an increase over the present year of $1,000,000.

The total number of positions brought within the classified service during the year were 2,395.

Y., Nov. 13.—While Mr. and Mrs. Cook and Miss Matilda Wilcox of Lansing, a small hamlet near Ithaca, were driving down University avenue, in this city, their horse became excited, on passing several linemen who were handling some telegraph wires, and rushed madly down the avenue. At the bottom of the hill the horse turned to the side of the street and ran into a telegraph pole, splitting open his head and terribly injuring Miss Wilcox. Mrs. Cook was also injured, but not so seriously as Miss Wilcox. Miss Wilcox is now in the city hospital, where it was said her recovery is extremely doubtful, as she suffered a fracture of the base of the skull.

Christian Schaefer Says While Captain, Byrnes Shared the Profits of His Game of Keno—Other Evidence of an Interesting Nature.

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—Commissioners of Accounts Terry and Dennis took up the investigation of some of the alleged acts of ex-Police Chief Thomas Byrnes.

Christian W. Schaefer told the commissioners that he was the proprietor of a gambling place at 732 Broadway during the years 1862 and 1863, while Byrnes was captain of the Mercer street station. He testified that during that time he paid to Captain Byrnes one quarter of all his receipts each month.

"Did you ever have any acquaintance with ex-Superintendent Byrnes?"

"I have known him intimately for 25 years."

"When did you first see him?"

"When he was captain of the Fifteenth precinct, in 1872, I think."

"How did you come to see him."

"He sent for me one evening and asked what kind of business I was conducting. I was then doing business at 732 Broadway. Byrnes said he was king and he thought I had presumed a great deal to do business in his precinct. I asked him to wait until the next day before doing anything and he agreed. In the meantime Byrnes conferred with Police Commissioner Sydney Nichols. I saw Mr. Nichols and he said he told Byrnes if I closed my place he must close the other houses. Byrnes came to me and I told him that as I was making money I didn't mind dividing. I said I would give him a quarter of the profits of the keno game, and he said: 'All right.' I paid him regularly after that, sometimes on the street. I generally paid at the corner by the New York hotel, on Waverly place.

"The money ranged from $200 to $400 a month. I paid him altogether at least $3,000. I paid it to Byrnes personally as regularly as I had a settlement with my partner.

"I paid when McLaughlin was acting chief of detectives and Byrnes was acting superintendent, Murray being sick."

Schaefer told of paying McLaughlin $700 out of $960 won from a "squealer" at a place in Seventh avenue back of the Metropole hotel. The man informed the police of his losing and they came to Schaefer and asked him to fix it with them.

"It was the practice to divide the money won from a man who lost and squealed between the police and the keeper of the house," said Schaefer.

"Did you say you ever paid Alexander Williams?"

"Yes; when I had a place at 1106 Broadway I paid John Dunlap, Williams' wardman, right along. Once when a loser 'squealed' I paid the captain $700 and kept $200 out of the total winning of $900."

SHEA HEARS HIS DOOM.

Resentenced to Die During the Week Commencing Dec. 23.

TROY, N. Y., Nov. 12.—The court of oyer and terminer, Justice Edwards presiding, was crowded with spectators in eager expectancy of seeing Pat Shea, the slayer of Robert Ross on March 6, 1894, at a polling place in this city.

Shea, shackled to Keeper Vogan of Clinton prison, was ushered into the courtroom.

After Justice Edwards had finished the examination of the documents he said:

"Mr. Shea, rise, please."

Shea obeyed the request and was asked by Justice Edwards:

"Is there any legal reason against the sentence imposed upon you?"

Shea answered in a firm voice: "The only reason I've got is that I am innocent of the crime I'm charged with."

Justice Edwards then pronounced the sentence as follows:

"The court fixes the time for the execution of the defendant, Bartholomew Shea, during the week commencing Monday, Dec. 23, 1896."

In the courtroom there was a large crowd, Shea's aged parents, his two sisters and his sweetheart being in the throng. When Shea was led into the courtroom the women crowded around the prisoner, and some of them were crying bitterly and trying to hold the prisoner in their arms. The sobs of the women were loud and could be heard above the noise of the confusion.

BIG BOOTY BAGGED.

Two Masked Men Rob an Express Office of $26,000.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Nov. 13.—The express office at the Santa Fe depot in this city was robbed of $26,000.

Immediately after the departure of the night express George Kroup, the express agent, stepped from the platform into his office and was confronted by two masked men, who leveled revolvers at his head and ordered him to open the safe. This he did and they helped themselves to two packages of money, containing $9,000 and $15,000 respectively. They then made their escape.

The express company's officials believe that the robbery was committed by A. J. Gray, alias Sam Wells, and J. G. Stuart, alias C. J. Starr, who were arrested for the theft of $16,000 from the express wagon at Cripple Creek, April 11, and who recently in company with Tom McCarthy escaped from jail in this city.

R. T. Montgomery, who was a prisoner at the time of the escape, notified the police at Denver several days ago that Gray and Stuart plotted when in jail to rob the express company again.

The officials of the company believe that the robbers had an accomplice in the bank.
