TWO BIRD GIRLS.

Aviation Is Said to Be Woman's Coming Profession.

"IT'S SUCH FUN TO FLY."

Already Two Women Are Making Exhibition Flights, and One Family Two of Them Girls, Has Founded a School of Aviation in Texas.

Dressed in riding breeches and a natty Norfolk jacket and armed with (harmless) bombs, which she dropped over Manhattan, Miss Vera Pearce, accompanied by P. C. Millman, recently flew from Mineola, N. Y., over New York and around Battery park in a biplane.

Miss Pearce has a rival in this new field of enterprise for young women Miss Katherine Stinson

MISS VERA PEARCE.

old and weighing only 104 pounds, recently made two long, loose circles of the speedway On the third time around, when she was about 2,000 feet above the imitation fort they were building for the flying exhibition, she made a swallow's smooth downward curve, then sheered up and back over her own path, her head and the upper part of her machine downward toward the ground. For a moment the engine stopped, then the tune of it began again. Katherine Stinson for the several hundredth time had looped the loop, and three minutes later she landed without even a jolt She had been up less than ten minutes

Miss Stinson wears no elaborate aviation wardrobe

Offer she doesn't even tuck her curls under her close fitting hood She wears a short khaki skirt, high heeled boots and the two warmest coats she can find Sometimes she wears riding breeches, but she doesn't in the least object to a skirt. She never allows wind or clouds to interfere with her flights "But I don't like rain,' she confessed. "It hurts It feels exactly like sleet when you fly in it."

Besides looping the loop, she has carried United States mail, dropped bombs, made night flights, flown with her plane upside down and performed a number of other "stunts" "They always want some fancy thing thrown in at the exhibitions," she admitted carelessly.

"My sister Marjorie is only eighteen, and she's a flier My brother Edwin is twenty-three, and he flies In San Antonio, Tex we three are running the Stinson school of aviation I have another brother fifteen years old, but he wants to go to West Point. My people on both sides fought in the civil war

"And if America went to war tomorrow I'd be an army scout," Miss Stinson added stoutly. "I tried my best to make Pershing and Funston let me go to Mexico. But they wouldn't"

For the Creeping Baby.

Here is an interesting suggestion for the young mother with the active creeping baby Get a good sized gray blanket, preferably woolen Cut out the pictures from a cloth nursery picture book and sew them to the blanket The bright pictures will attract baby's attention, and he will pat and pick at them by the hour and keep perfectly contented on his soft, warm, creeping rug This idea may also be used in connection with the baby fence, for baby may be left inside the fence with his pictorial floor covering and run no risks of falling on sharp playthings

Vanilla Bavaroise.

Take one and a half cupfuls of milk boiled with vanilla pod and two ounces of sugar mixed when boiling with one envelope of gelatin then stir on to two raw yolks of eggs return to the stew pan and stir over fire till it thickens then strain and when cool add half a pint of whipped cream and use

Linen Hats.

For wear with the thin summer frock hats covered with linen and trimmed with flowers are especially pretty.

AWNING STRIPES.

What a Woman May Do With This Interesting Summer Fabric.

Awning stripes are one of the vogues of the season They are used not only in clothes, but for household furnishings as well. They are striking, and with anything striking there is danger that the vogue will not last. But they are worth immediate consideration nevertheless.

Awning striped skirts were worn with much effectiveness last summer. They are worn, naturally, for sport skirts and are really better when worn with a blouse, jacket or sweater of plain color, the color of one of the stripes. Sometimes the jacket is made of stripes and the skirt is of plain material, and this arrangement is equally effective.

There are hats covered with linen or silk in wide stripes that are decidedly striking worn with light frocks. The stripes are sometimes arranged by means of plaits to radiate from the crown; sometimes they run straight across crown and brim

Then there are lawn parasols and tents, too, in the same gay stripes, and these give a most festive and holiday air to the surroundings of the house decked forth in awnings Needless to say, all stripes about a house should be of the same color to give the best effect.

Awnings themselves are made for the summer cottage or house in the widest stripes imaginable. They are usually in bright shades, too, of green, red or brown

Cushions for the porch and lawn are covered with awning stripes There are some interesting new square cushions cubical, about eighteen inches high. These are quite hard and firm and are good to sit upon on lawn or porch

For the girl who wears a skirt or jacket of awning stripes for tennis there are racket holders of the same material that make the sport suit more effective

Parasols, too, for beach use and country use generally are made of awning stripes, which come in silk as well as in linen. They are especially pretty in the new shades in pongee, used in combination with the plain silk

The stripes come in some of the fabrics for summer window curtains and are quite as good as awning stripes in other fabrics for other uses

PEANUT STRAW.

Here's a Sport Hat Built to Keep Off the Sun.

Outing hats are taking on huge circumferences This knockabout straw is trimmed with a wreath of padded

LUSCIOUS FRUIT.

fruit and velvet foliage tinted in natural colors This is the kind of hat we may expect to see on young ladies all this summer

THE RAGE FOR STENCIL.

Hats, Shoes and Frocks Are Now Treated With Designs in Paint.

Hats, shoes, frocks and all the dainty accessories of milady up to the minute are stenciled or painted. Many a frock that otherwise would be uninteresting is made to become a gown of individuality Materials that otherwise would be impossible are made most effective when treated to a design in color that draws attention to the design rather than the material Hats are accompanied with bags of straw and both decorated with a painting or stenciled in contrasting colors

Now comes the panama hat hand painted with a Japanese design. This hat is faced with velvet. Carried with it is a parasol of linen in the same design. There seems to be no end to the combinations of articles treated with this artistic decoration. A caution should be sounded though, for there are many atrocities on the market, and one is wise in sticking to the same design or allowing an artist of reputation to select a design that would be suitable to material or the fair wearer's own color scheme. One thing greatly in favor of designs of this type is that surely here one can depend on the fastness of these colors and this at a time when no one's word is believed as to the permanence of any color There is another side to this question too Many an unusual design is created by women who otherwise would not have designed patterns for materials This would indicate employment for the young woman who has an inclination in this direction

Colorful Blouses.

One of the advantages of blouse buying is that the average woman can get half a dozen to suit her different needs and moods This season they are unrolled before her like a brilliant, never ending carpet The design and the color constantly change. They have reached a degree of variety and gayety that has not been touched in several seasons. One must really go back two decades in sartorial history to find the equal of the blouses of today, as far as color is concerned

FOR THE CHILDREN

Sleepy Time Story Adapted From an Old Highland Legend.

SHREWD REYNARD OUTWITTED

Little Cock and Hen Prove Too Smart For the Wily Beast With a Bushy Tail—Things of Interest to Little Folks—A Maid and Her Pet Dog.

Now, kiddies, said Uncle Ben, I'm going to tell you a story about

SLY FOX AND HIS DEFEAT.

Once upon a time Master Red Fox was walking along, searching for a dinner for he had eaten a very scant breakfast.

Soon he spied a cock and hen scratching around in a field

"The very thing I need," said he to himself "They will make a fine meal for me."

So he stole along very quietly until he had almost reached the two birds.

"There's many a slip 'twixt cup and lip," says the old proverb, and just as Red Fox had put forth a paw to grasp the cock the hen chanced to see him, and, with a loud "cluck, cluck," to warn the cock, up she flew into a tree near by, closely followed by the cock.

The fox was a cunning fellow, however, and began to converse with them in very friendly terms

"I hope you are not afraid of me, my dear" he called up "I feel so very friendly I was just coming to ask you to take a walk with me; it is such a beautiful, fine day"

"You are very kind," answered the hen, and the fox was sure he heard her chuckling to herself "but we prefer flying to walking We have so much more of an outlook"

For a long time they sat thus until the hen became very anxious to go home, but was afraid to venture for fear of being pounced upon by the fox.

"My dear" she exclaimed at last to the cock "please look over there by the roadside and see if that is not our master with his gun and his dogs."

"It is, indeed, my dear," answered the cock, "and they are coming straight toward us."

"Oh, indeed" said Master Red Fox "Then must I go It is getting late, and if I walk until the dogs come I fear I will be detained too long They are so very agreeable."

And away trotted the fox and never stopped until he reached his den

The cock and hen then flew down and soon sought their home in the barn.

But the fox, weary and hungry and angry, lay in bed, thinking hard.

"I wonder if the master and the hounds were coming?" he said to himself "It would be like those saucy birds to deceive me. Never will I trust them again"

Pretty Girl and Small Dog.

What Am I?

That I'm the center of gravity I am sure, You'll allow
Without me being first in victory, all will avow
A capital position in Vienna I hold.
Always a voice, though out of tune, behold
Invisible though in the midst of a river seen
Oh there are three in love with me I ween.
Although I've three associates in vice, you say
It is vain to seek me, for let me tell you pray
That I've been in heaven since ages have gone by
And embalmed in the grave even now I lie.

THE LATIN QUARTER.

This Picturesque Outfit Reminds Us of Art Students.

Quaintness itself is this fetching garb, a black velvet jacket over a white satin skirt. The bobbed coat, round collar and huge tie are characteristic, while the cartridge pockets are particularly interesting. A white panama hat takes huge black poppies appliqued as crown trimmings.

WINE JELLY.

Directions How to Make This Delicacy For Your Dinner Dessert.

Half pint of lemon juice, one-fourth pint of sherry, one and one fourth pints of water, one half pound of cube sugar one and one-half ounces of gelatin (unless in warm weather then two ounces), whites and shells of two eggs Peel the rind of the lemons very thin and put them in a clean saucepan which has been rinsed out with boiled water and not dried. Put in the sugar, gelatin and two thirds of the liquid and stir gently until all are dissolved Take the whites and shells of the eggs the shells slightly crushed, add the rest of the liquid and whip until there is a froth on top Then mix in with the gelatin and continue whipping until the whole froths well, but be sure to stop beating before it comes to a boil. Let it continue boiling gently for about five minutes, then leave to settle before straining If you have not got a regular jelly bag strain through a double fold of cheesecloth, but whatever you use be sure to scald it well by pouring boiling water through before putting in the hot jelly. Empty the bowl under the jelly bag, drain well, but do not clog. Ladle the jelly into the cloth very gently, and do not do the straining in a cool place or in a draft, as it must be kept hot. If it is not quite clear at the first straining let it run through a second time.

Get Plenty of Sleep.

There is nothing so fatal to beauty as sleepless nights. Give up tea and coffee entirely. If possible, all mental work must be laid aside for a few hours before going to bed. Do not have any amusement that will excite the nerves. The things that you can do to induce sleep are many Take plenty of brisk exercise in the open air. Before retiring take a hot foot bath This will draw the blood away from the brain, which is a necessary condition for sleep A cold douche on the spine is another method you can give with a bath spray. General baths should be warm. Sleeping rooms should be well ventilated and cool. Do not eat immediately before retiring. A glass of warm milk will overcome insomnia after other suggestions have failed.

Plain Leaf Sponge Cake.

Break the five eggs into a bowl; add one cupful of sugar and a pinch of salt and beat for fifteen minutes Sift the flour and add to the eggs and sugar, folding in very lightly, do not beat after adding the flour. Line a pan nine inches square, or a brick pan, with paper, pour in the mixture and bake for forty minutes. Flavor to taste.

Delight Cake.

One cupful of sugar, one and one-half cupfuls of flour, one teaspoonful of baking powder, one-quarter teaspoonful of salt, sifted together; one tablespoonful of butter in cup, melt. Break egg in butter, fill up with milk. Flavor Beat all well This cake calls for only one egg. Bake in moderate oven

Embroidered Chiffon.

Chiffon embroidered in self color or contrasting color in large flowers is much used in combination with plain taffeta or crape for afternoon frocks.
