College Sets Art Expert

The Nazareth College lecture series will begin for the 1960-61 academic year on Wednesday evening, Nov. 9, at 8 p.m. in the college auditorium, with a lecture by Maurice Lavanoux, secretary of the Liturgical Arts Society, and editor of its quarterly magazine.

Lavanoux is noted in the 1960-61 edition of American Catholic Who's Who as an architect, editor, and lecturer.

In 1928, with a small group who met at Portsmouth Priory, Lavanoux founded the Liturgical Arts Society, and when the Society began the publication of a magazine, he accepted the position of editor in 1931.

THE MAIN PURPOSE of the group was a determined resolution to serve the Church in the arts. The Society is often called on for professional advice on matters of church planning and decoration. Lavanoux received a papal medal in recognition of his work for the advancement of the arts of the Church, and a blessing on the Society.

At a meeting in Rome, the first international meeting of Catholic artists, Lavanoux led the opposition to having the Holy See set up a set of rules for artists.

He has combined lecture trips with many travels in the United States and other countries. In 1956 he spent four months in Africa, studying the status of its religious art and architecture. He found the continent a virgin field for creative artists and architects.

Lavanoux, who was born in New York City, was educated both in the United States and Canada, as well as in France. He served as a second lieutenant in the sixteenth regiment of the French Army. In his professional career he has been in the architect offices of Gustave Steinbach in New York City, and Maginnis and Walsh in Boston, and now has his own office in New York City.

HE IS A director of the Interracial Council on New York City, and a contributor to Commonweal, Orate Fratres, and L'Artisan Liturgique in Belgium.
