Committee Airs Abortion Views

Legal and medical aspects of the proposed state legislation on abortion were aired last week in a meeting of the newly formed Monroe County "Right ti Life" Committee. The meeting was held at St. Mary's Hospital.

Rochester attorney Eugene R. Cusker stated that the proposed Blumenthal bill would infringe on the legal rights of the fetus. He cited various legal precedents to support his stand.

Dr. Thomas R. Sweeney, an obstetrician and gynecologist, discussed the medical aspects of abortion. "By medical definition, that which is being aborted is truly a human being," he insisted.

He cited the record of two Buffalo hospitals to demonstrate the likelihood of increased abortion incidence if the Blumenthal bill becomes law. The two hospitals had reduced the frequency of therapeautic abortion in their clinic service, due to medical and psychiatric progress, while the rate of abortions had doubled on the private service.

The Right to Life Committee is seeking new members interested in studying the proposed abortion laws and bringing them into the public forum for discussion. Interested persons may contact Mr. Cusker at 320 Reynolds Arcade Building in downtown Rochester, or Dr. Sweeney at his office located at 3900 Dewey Avenue, for literature and further information.

Aquinas Institute, having survived a 69-68 hair-raiser over Auburn's Mt. Carmel last weekend, will try the giant killer's role when it faces Mooney tonight (March 15) in the diocesan high school tournament. The game is slated for 8:15 in the McQuaid Jesuit High gym.

Mooney breezed into the semi-finals wih a no-problem victory over DeSales of Geneva, 53-25, in the first half of the War Memorial twin bill last Friday. The Mooney quint, now 16-2 for the year, had a chance to scout Aquinas which was eking out its triumph over De Sales in the second game that night.

Mooney knocked Aquinas off twice during regular season play, but both games were tight ones, and Ed Nietopski is fighting off any surge of overcon-

The smaller cities of the diocese clobbered their Rochester cousins in the windup of the CYO basketball tournament last weekend, winning honors in all four divisions.

St. Patrick's of Corning won the high school division trophy, defeating Holy Rosary 57-46. Consolation trophy went to St. Mary's of Elmira, which downed St. Michael's of Newark, 65-37.

In the grammar school competition, St. Mary's of Waterloo coasted to the White division crown over St. Francis of Auburn, 59-42. St. Patrick's of Seneca Falls won consolation

The first Aquinas man to re[...] spond concretely to news of his school's recently publicized financial plight (Courier-Journal March 8 issue) was a 15-year-old sophomore, Larry Ansini.

Young Ansini scrubs floors after school to earn his tuition money at the Dewey Avenue school. When he read that his school might face closing within two years if its money problems were not alleviated, he dipped into his savings, sent Aquinas principal Father Leon Hart a $25 donation.

In a neatly typewritten note Larry said: "I want to continue my fine education at Aquinas. I know that many students and parents feel this way and will in the course of time come to your aid. Since 1922 the Aquinas spirit has been influencing many people. It would be a shame if this tradition would cease."

Larry's donation was the first received by Father Hart in response to his appeal. Father Hart said: "It is fitting that the initial response came from one of our present students."

Like many other teen-agers, Laurence Ansini is planning for the future. He hopes his Aquinas education will enable him to win a scholarship to college. And in the meantime? Appar[...]
