No Wonder She Hates The Catholic Church

For the first time in her life, mild, little, middle-aged Emily Palmer realized that she hated something—yes, hated it so much that she lay awake at nights composing and practicing diatribes against this thing and all connected with it.

And the bitterest part was that Emily herself was really an accomplice. Would she ever forget that night when dear old John suddenly blurted out in the voice of a martyr: "I'm done! I cannot conduct another Protestant service! I'm resigning my rectorship! And you, Emily, and little Peggy, must suffer! You'll never understand! Perhaps, you'll never forgive me! But I simply must become a Catholic!"

And Emily remembered her own sweet, wifely words "Why, John, of course you have to. I have nothing against the Catholics, and you have to do what you thing right What kind of a wife do you think I am? And as for Peggy—' and so on and so on

Six months ago' And now the Palmers were living in a veritable shack just about living Emily was putting up preserves and little Peggy was trying to sell them to erstwhile friends John had given up his daily round of business houses He was too old, too inexperienced

"What kind of a religion is this'" muttered Emily over a steaming kettle "Bad enough for the convert to suffer, but what about Peggy and me' Is it our fault' If Catholics are so saintly, why don't they do something about it'"

No wonder she hates the Catholic Church' And, dear reader, can you blame her'

"Why don't Catholics do something about it'"

Many ministers and others whose livelihood depends on their Protestant occupation, and whose age and inexperience make them ill-fitted for gainful occupations, are taking the bit in their teeth and answering Christ's own call for one Fold and one Shepherd. And this valiant step often leads into destitution.

"Why don't Catholics do something about it'"

They do They are They will do more and more, when the distressing plights of numerous converts are made known to them (Through the efforts of The Saint Paul Guild, 108 East 36th St New York, N Y)

DECISION GIVES MEXICO CLERGY NO APPEAL

VII of Article 27 of the Constitution: "The Federal and State laws shall determine within their respective jurisdictions those cases in which the occupation of private property shall be considered of public utility; and in accordance with the said laws the administrative authorities shall make the corresponding declaration."

In the case of an act that is essentially one of sovereignty, he adds, it is unquestionable that there is no necessity for having recourse to the Judicial Power for the realization of this act

In the city of Puebla, capital of the State of that name, the building at 111 de la Avenida Poniente has been expropriated The building, owned by Senora Teresa Mora de Urdumvia, was being used as a home for wayward girls and about 80 were being cared for there

The property has been expropriated by order of the Chief of Bureau of the Federal Treasury and based on the latest decision of the Supreme Court that any property or building where religious education is imparted or religious services celebrated passes ipso facto into the possession of the Nation without any legal procedure or recourse.

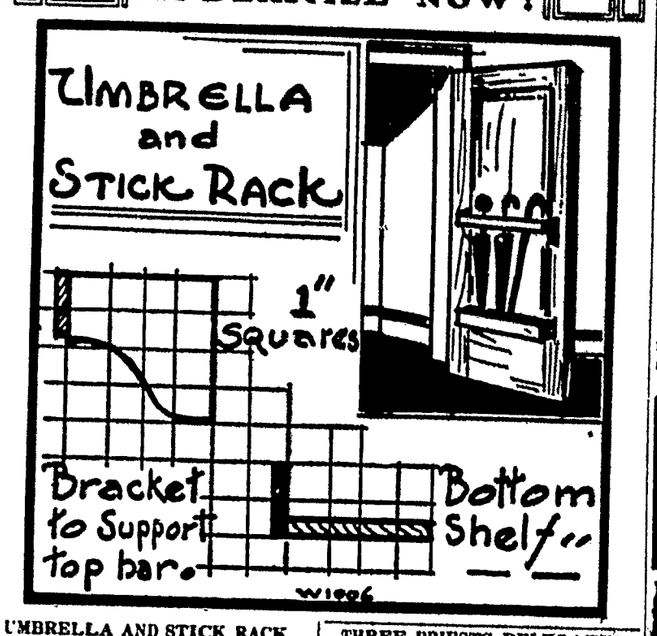
MODERNIZE NOW!



UMBRELLA AND STICK RACK

Umbrellas, canes and sticks are always in the way in most closets. They fall over, get tangled up into the outer garments and become damaged. Here is a solution to remedy that situation.

Take the back of any closet door, the side that swings into the closet, and attach a bottom shelf which has front and side pieces nailed to it. Note the section of the bottom shelf on the above drawing You can fasten this shelf to the doors by means of light metal angles.

The top bar consists of two wooden brackets which are fastened to the sides of the door Now nail to the front edge of the brackets a piece of wood about ¾ inch thick

The length of the bottom shelf and the top bar must be the same, but the length may vary with the width of the door

Decorate the rack to match the door

Freshen Up With Paint

When you let your painting contract, or if you buy the paint yourself, be sure to explain to your painter or your dealer just how good a job you wish. Most painters and dealers wish to see a good painting job done, but in paint, as every other commodity, there are several grades and you will get just what you pay for

Don't forget that the material is the smallest end of the job. The labor cost will be just the same for good paint or poor. So I suggest you buy good paint—not the cheapest.

The exterior of a house requires a special kind of paint to withstand the elements; and porch floors and steps need a paint that will dry harder and stand up under rough usage

Give your home at least two coats of paint every four years. This plan is better than giving the woodwork one coat every two years, as the paint will last longer and give more protection to the wood.

And don't forget the interior floors. They should be given a coat of wax at least twice a year to keep them beautiful

Try painting and decorating for reconditioning your home It will give a cheerful, new outlook. The old house will take on a new lease of life and can stand more proudly among its neghbors.
