Obey Your Parents.

I shall never forget when in a single instance on one occasion I refused, in an angry mood, to obey my father. I was just at the age when young men are apt to be cox-combs, and imagine they are much wiser than their superiors. My father's reproachful words and his accusations of ingratitude smote me to the heart. I was sorry for the sharply spoken language as soon as I had uttered it, and a feeling of remorse haunted my conscience for days. Years after when days of poverty came, and my father died leaving no estate I had a chance to show my sorrow for the outburst of rebellion which had grieved my sire, who ever loved me—and trust to meet him again in the better land at last.

The celebrated Dr. Samuel Johnson, in a letter written in 1767, relates how his sick father had once asked him to stand in the market stall and sell books for him on a certain day, and he refused, committing thereby a breach of filial piety which for half a century troubled his conscience, until fifty years from the day when pride kept him from proper obedience he went into the very market where his now dead father's book-stall used to be, and there in penitent contrition and sorrowful recollection stood half an hour with his head uncovered and bare with crowds gazing at him in wonder. Carlyle calls the act, "one of the saddest and proudest we can paint."

The sting of remembrance of unkindness in conscientious hearts is not easily quieted. It is better not to speak sharp, hard words to a parent. The words at the head of this article are a heavenly admonition. See that thou refusest not Him who speaks to thee from heaven. Unkindness to parents brings bitter sobs and remorse, when the dear old faces disappear from sight beneath the coffin lid.—Colorado Catholic.

The Boat that Would Not Be Coaxed

She had gone as near to the edge of the water as it was safe to venture, but the little boat had swept around the point far out of her reach, and though she would fain have coaxed it to return to the shore, all would not do. It obeyed the wind and the current, and would have its own way in spite of her beckoning hand and inviting voice.

And is there not something in this like what we sometimes see in little girls themselves? Do they always listen to the gentle voice of a mother, or teacher, or the 'still small voice' of One who says: 'This is the way; walk ye in it?' Are they not often led by thoughtless or wicked companions into evil ways, and do they turn from such ways at the entreaties of teachers, parents and friends? Alas! how often do we hear persons at sixteen, eighteen, or twenty years of age expressing their sorrow that they had not listened to the counsels of wisdom which they received in childhood, that so they might have escaped the snares and traps into which their unwary feet have fallen.

Hints For Our Little Men.

- Don't take your seats before others do.
Don't drum on the table or play with your knife and fork.
Don't stretch across another person to reach anything.
Don't spread a whole slice of bread at once, but break a small piece and butter them.
Don't make a noise with your mouth eating soup, but sip it quietly from

Three applications for membership were received at the last meeting of Branch 139.

James McNamara will represent Lyons Council Catholic Benevolent Legion at the state convention at Syracuse next week.

James E. Burke will represent Division No. 1, Ancient Order of Libermians, in the A. O. H. convention at Hartford, Conn., May 13th and 14th.

The New York state convention of the C. B. L. will be held in Syracuse, commencing next Tuesday. Chancellor John J. Heveron will be the delegate from Rochester Council, No. 207.

Brother William Maier, in attempting to mount a bicycle Tuesday, slipped and fell, spraining his ankle. His injuries confined to him to the house for a few days.

If individual Catholics can do much good by their influence and example, how much more good can be effected by Catholic societies when well organized. Unity is strength and combination is irresistible. And why not Catholics organize and combine? In these days when the opponents of the Catholic Church are trying to effect her overthrow by societies—secret and otherwise, why not the children of the Church use the same means to defeat her enemies?—N. O. Morning Star.

Branch 105, C. M. B. A., Auburn, N. Y., have exhibited in the window of the Egbert clothing house a large framed picture of the engrossed resolutions passed on the death of their late lamented member, Lawrence V. Hickey. A portrait of the latter is in the center. It is the work of the artist, W. H. Yates, and is the finest of the kind ever exhibited in this city. The committee selected by the Branch to draft the resolutions was composed of Dr. M. P. Conway, M. S. Goss, T. Heffernan and M. Hayes. The picture will adorn the handsome parlors of the Branch, on Genesee street.

The Ladies Catholic Benevolent Association now numbers some 14 branches, located as follows: Branch No. 1, Union City, 34 members; No. 2, Duke Center, 29; No. 3, Titusville, 180; No. 4, Salamanca, 36; No. 5, Corry, 125; No. 6, Buffalo, 126; No. 7, Erie, 110; No. 8, Norwalk, 0, 37; No. 9, East Albany, 100; No. 10, Erie, 150; No. 11, Erie, 225; No. 12, Olean, 97; No. 13, Wellsville, 44; No. 14, Bradford, 57. The organization has been incorporated under the laws of Pennsylvania. At a convention, held April 9th, at Titusville, Pa., the following officers were elected: Supreme Pres., E. B. McGowan, Buffalo, N. Y., 1st vice-pres., Theresa Franz, Corry, Pa., 2nd vice-pres., Mary E. Wolf, Bradford, Pa., Supreme treasurer, Margaret Seep, Titusville; Pa., Supreme Marshal, Anna Kaltenbacher, Erie, Pa., supreme guard, Kate Ganghian, Norwalk, O., supreme board of trustees, Elizabeth Murrin, Salamanca, N. Y., Kate Woods, Union City, Pa., Bessie Mathews, Albany, N. Y., and Anna M. Schluadecker, Erie, Pa., and Agnes Sullivan, Olean, N. Y., Dr. J. F. Reilly of Albany, N. Y., was elected supreme medical examiner. The next biennial convention will be held at Corry, Pa., in June, 1891. There has been some talk of organizing a branch in Rochester, but as yet we have seen no tangible evidence of its materialization.
