LCBA Jubilee To Bring National Leaders

Church Rite, Banquet Will Laud Pioneers

Supreme officers of the Ladies' Catholic Benevolent Association will participate in the gala Golden Jubilee celebration of the Association here on Tuesday, Oct. 29, when the benevolent and charitable work done by Catholic women in the Rochester area will be reviewed and highly commended.

The L. C. B. A. in Rochester goes back 50 years when the first branch was established in St. Bridget's parish on Aug. 11, 1890.

Church dignitaries headed by His Excellency, the Most Rev. James E. Kearney, Bishop of Rochester, will take part in the celebration which opens with a Solemn Pontifical Mass that morning at 10 o'clock in Sacred Heart Pro-Cathedral. An outpouring of members and friends is expected at this solemn ceremony marking fifty golden years of fruitful effort by these Catholic women.

The dinner in the evening at Powers Hotel will be attended by Bishop Kearney, spiritual advisers of the 24 branches in the Rochester area and Miss Kate Mahoney, supreme president, and other supreme officers.

Honor Pioneers

Theme of the dinner will be to pay due credit to the late Bishop Bernard J. McQuaid, the late Mrs. Cora McFarlin for many years a supreme trustee and guiding genius in the Rochester Advisory Senate of which she was president, the late Supreme Trustee Mrs. Katherine Dowling, and others who worked during the formative years.

Present also will be Mrs. Anna I. Ryan, supreme trustee and present President of the Rochester Advisory Senate, and Dr. Katherine L. Daly, supreme medical examiner for a long period in the L. C. B. A.

Members of the L. C. B. A. throughout the country are this year marking the Golden Jubilee of their association which has grown to such formidable proportions. They are proud of their high position in the front ranks of insurance organizations, and their long record of 50 years of success in furnishing safe insurance for their members. Every claim has been paid in full and without delay. The society has paid over $52,000,000 into the homes of deceased members. It has over $25,000,000 in its reserve and other funds. Its actuarial rating on Dec. 31, 1939, was 111.73 per cent.

Provides Spiritual Benefits

In addition to furnishing safe insurance it has distributed hundreds of dollars in welfare and church work, through the medium of its local branches. It also provides spiritual benefits for its members during life and after death.

Here in Rochester the L. C. B. A. has been in the forefront in cooperation with the Church and in charitable endeavors. Christmas assistance for the poor and at other times have marked the fifty years of progress. A beautiful stained glass window in St. John the Evangelist Church and another at Aquinas Institute are gifts of the L. C. B. A.

The first dinner of St. Bridget's original branch will be recalled on the anniversary. Speaker at that dinner was the Rev. Philip Golding, pastor of Holy Apostles Church, then a newly-ordained priest and assistant pastor of St. Bridget's Church.

To carry on the work of the senior members of the L. C. B. A. a juvenile department was organized a few years ago and today there are over 5,000 of these younger members being trained to carry on the work.

Mrs. Anna I. Ryan heads the committee on arrangements with Mrs. Rosemary Croston as co-chairman. Tickets for the banquet may be had from Mrs. Anna Fuehrer and her committee. (Other committee members are listed in another column.)

Forensic League

Latrobe, Pa.—At an organization meeting held at St. Vincent College here the Catholic College Forensic League of Western Pennsylvania was founded, with Mount Mercy, St. Francis and St. Vincent Colleges as charter members. The purpose of the newly-founded organization is to promote through forensic activities a more thorough understanding and better appreciation of Christian ideals and objectives.

Pray for France

Limoges.—Thousands of persons visited the sanctuary at Ars to pray "for France" on the anniversary of the death of St. Jean Marie Vianney. They came this year, as in the days of the "Cure d'Ars," to seek comfort and encouragement, and many of them came on foot.

ROCHESTER DIOCESAN COUNCIL

National Council of Catholic Women
Office: 536 Columbus Civic Centre, 50 Chestnut Street

Due to the National Convention meeting in Detroit, the regular meeting of the Rochester Deanery Council is being held a week in advance, on Friday, Oct. 18, in Room 511, Columbus Civic Centre.

Mrs. M. H. Keogh, President of the Rochester Deanery Council, will preside.

The coming Convention of the N. C. C. W. to be held in Detroit, Oct. 26-30, will be the Twentieth Annual Meeting and it is hoped will be the most successful. To accomplish this the interest and participation of each and every affiliated organization is needed.

Mrs. M. H. Keogh as National Director from the Archdiocesan Province of New York will leave in advance to attend the National Directors' Meeting on Oct. 24, 25.

Together with Rev. Leo C. Mooney and Cecilia M. Yawman she will also participate in the closed Conference on Saturday, Oct. 26, for diocesan Spiritual Directors and diocesan Presidents, with members of the hierarchy, National Board of Directors and headquarters staff.

Miss Blanche Thompson will be one of the Catholic authors present at the reception in their honor on Saturday evening.

Miss Helen Guntert is planning to attend the N. C. C. W. Convention and also a meeting of Sodality executives on Sunday, Oct. 27.

Mrs. Teresa Ganster, National President of the Ladies' Auxiliaries of the Knights of St. John, together with other heads of National Organizations affiliated with the National Council of Catholic Women will participate in a Panel at Tuesday's General Session: "Coordinating and Unifying Our National Efforts."

Another interesting panel on Tuesday will be that of the National Catholic Welfare Conference with the Rev. Msgr. Michael J. Ready acting as leader.

Youth sponsors will also hold a panel at their session on Tuesday afternoon on "Policies and Standards."

The evening session on Tuesday will be devoted to discussion of Social Work - Present and Future, by Miss Jane Hoey, director Public Assistance Bureau, Social Security Board and President of the National Conference of Social Work, and Rt. Rev. Msgr. John R. Mulroy, president of the National Conference of Catholic Charities.

This will be followed by a panel given by graduates of the National Catholic School of Social Service, and an address by Rev. Lucian L. Lauzerman, director of the School.

Wednesday will be taken up by separate Institute Sessions on: (1) Family and Parent Education and Parent-Teacher Associations, (2) Rural Life, (3) Study Clubs, (4) Immigration, (5) Industrial Problems, (6) Extension of Religious Education, and (7) Youth.

The afternoon General Session will hear reports of Committees, act on Amendments and Resolutions, and receive the report on Elections.

At the Banquet Wednesday evening, "Twenty years a'Growin'," Mrs. J. M. McCollum will preside. All N. C. C. W. past presidents will be in attendance. Mrs. Michael Gavin, first president of the National Council of Catholic Women, will address the members at the banquet with which the convention will be brought to a close. Honor guests will be the members of the first Board of Directors of the N. C. C. W. Past presidents who will also be present are Mrs. Arthur F. Mullen, Miss Mary G. Hawks, Miss Anne Sarachon Hooley, Miss Katherine R. Williams and Mrs. Earl R. Reynolds.

The guiding spirit of the Council in its formative stages, and through many years of its existence the Most Rev. Joseph Schrembs, Archbishop-Bishop of Cleveland, will speak at the banquet session. Archbishop Schrembs served as Episcopal Chairman of the Department of Lay Organizations, N. C. W. C., from 1920 until the fall of 1934.

In all, forty-one diocesan presidents will attend the Convention.

Besides Rochesterians previously mentioned, Mrs. Chas. W. Mayer and Mrs. Lawrence Driscoll are planning to go to Detroit.

Remember, the round-trip fare, good for twenty days, is only $9.75 if there are fifteen or more in the party leaving Friday, Oct. 25. Call the N. C. C. W. office for further particulars.

Alumnae Set 36th Annual Reunion

The Thirty-sixth Annual Reunion of the Alumnae of Sacred Heart Academy will be fittingly carried out on Saturday Oct. 19, at the academy, 3 Prince Street.

The program follows:

12:30 P. M.—Luncheon.

2:30 P. M.—Business meeting—Reports will be given on the various activities of the Alumnae Association including the Drive to raise funds to redecorate the chapel sponsored by the Alumnae, the Parents of the Students and Friends of the Convent. Mrs. George T. Welch of Seneca Parkway was the general chairman of this drive. The work is now completed and the transformation has resulted in producing a beautiful chapel for the Academy.

3:00—Greetings by the school, including a play by the pupils.

4:00—Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament.

Responsibility Can Be Taught

Issued by the National Kindergarten Association, 8 West 40th Street, New York City. These articles are appearing weekly in our columns.

"He won't do a thing to help me," one mother complained to me, during a friendly chat. "I think he wants to help, but he is always too busy with other things. If he does start a job, he usually leaves it long before it is completed."

"How long has he had chores to do?"

The woman thought a moment. "Let's see. He's twelve. I started asking him to help me around the house last summer."

"That's the trouble," I replied. "You started ten years too late."

I meant it. Children of twelve do not automatically feel the urge to help with the work. Very young children do, and the urge should be strengthened by means of satisfying experiences. The young child's tasks should be regular, interesting and never wearisome. I started with my Roger when he was less than two years of age. First, he helped me pick up his toys. We had a particular place for each one. He soon learned these places and enjoyed becoming responsible for putting away a slowly increasing number of his playthings. Like all very little children, he was then much interested in his shoes, so the privilege of putting them "to bed" was fascinating. It meant putting them away in the shoe bag, which was tasked low enough on the door to be easily reached. I believe shelling peas and helping to set the table came next. It was great fun for the child and much companionship for me.

When he was old enough to understand, I listed the tasks, which he was to undertake by himself, on a chart, and this he enjoyed marking. The list included such things as brushing his teeth and washing his face and hands, as well as the household duties which he was performing regularly at that time.

If a task was neglected, the blank space was proof enough of the neglect. Since, repeated lapses may cause an inferiority complex, I often mentioned some of the scheduled events to the child. This was while he was still five or six. By the time he was eight, this was not necessary, and a responsibility like getting dressed on time was never a problem. The rubbish was emptied, papers picked up in the yard, walks swept, and anything else I had asked him to do was done regularly.

It was a custom, followed by all of my children, to sing as they worked. Silly little verses, some of them were, made up to suit ourselves, but whatever the words, they were sung with appreciation and made work more enjoyable.

My eldest daughter, Madge, is now twelve. She irons her own middies for school, washes the dishes for one meal and does a creditable job, makes cookies and simple cakes, sets the table very nicely, helps with the daily cooking and runs the vacuum, dusts, polishes her own shoes, puts buttons on her clothes, keeps her room neat and manages to get time to play, attend school, read, embroider and sew for herself and her doll family. She is a very active, busy and happy child.

If you think she is over-proficient, you should see her two younger sisters. They are fast following in her footsteps and, at times, surpass her accomplishments. All four of the children are confident with regard to their work, trustworthy when doing it without supervision, are able to complete many jobs a day successfully and are self-reliant. Their ability has been built up by years of satisfied effort.

According To The Doctor

Bathing is of great importance to health. The cold bath is intended to stimulate the body, the warm bath is cleansing. The best time to take a cold bath is before breakfast. If this practice is started in the summer, it may be continued through the winter and not be disagreeable even with very cold water.

A warm bath is more suitable on retiring than on rising. It is also more suitable for a person who is fatigued. A warm bath has a soothing effect on the nervous system.

The proper time to bathe is just before a meal or at least a few hours after. Outdoor bathing is beneficial to the health in general, but its effects are due to the enjoyable exercise and pure outdoor air. It should never be prolonged until one's lips are blue.

The complexion is the outward expression of inner health. A good complexion cannot be bought in a box or bottle. An artificial complexion produced with cosmetics and face powder is as barbaric and unnatural as the war-paint of a savage. A little powder is of value at times to oily skins but its abuse gives an improper appearance and interferes with the proper "breathing" of the skin.

Unless the face is very dirty it should be washed without soap. A vigorous washing with cold water or with warm water followed by cold water will remove the dirt in most cases. If the skin is dry, a cream may be used to soften it, but it is to be remembered that the best way to get a beautiful complexion is to take proper care of the functions of the body and enjoy regular exercise out of doors.
