Young Priest Sings First Solemn Mass

First Solemn Mass was sung by the Rev. Charles F. Adams, O.F.M. last Sunday morning at St. Boniface Church.

Father Charles is the former John Adams, son of Battalion Chief of the Fire Department and Mrs. Edward C. Adams of 163 Crawford St. He was ordained Oct. 13 in the Chapel of the College of the Immaculate Conception in Washington, D. C.

The Rt. Rev. Msgr. John F. Boppel, Pastor of St. Boniface Church, was the assistant priest. Rev. Raymond A. Beane, O.F.M., of Siena College, was Deacon and the Rev. Francis W. Kearney, O.F.M., was Sub-Deacon. Both were classmates of Father Adams at St. Bonaventure College.

The Rev. Francis J. Taylor, assistant at St. Boniface Church, was the Master of Ceremonies. He was a classmate of the celebrant at Aquinas Institute.

The Rev. Callistus Smith, O.F.M., of St. Bonaventure College delivered the sermon.

Anne R. Lintz was pillow-bearer and Richard Schimpf and Grace Brown were pages.

The Knights of St. John served as military escort for this solemn occasion.

Present in the sanctuary were the Rev. Thomas F. Connors, pastor of Blessed Sacrament Church, Rev. Stanislaus B. Krolak of St. Bernard's Seminary, Rev. Edward J. Lintz of Nazareth College, Rev. Eugene Golding and the Rev. Frederick L. Walz of St. Boniface Church, Rev. Benjamin Kuhn, O.F.M. and the Rev. Cronan Mullen, O.F.M. of Siena College.

Dinner was served after the Mass at the Home Dining Room for relatives and friends. A reception was held Sunday afternoon in St. Boniface Hall.

Alhambra Lists Election Night

Their idea of an election will be carried out by members of Mass Caravan, Order of the Alhambra, at the annual meeting set for Tuesday evening, Oct. 29, at Hotel Sagamore.

Grand Commander Frank M. Beaucaire will preside at a short business session to be followed by the election. Daniel F. Fitzgerald, past grand commander, will take over the voting session.

A program of special entertainment is being planned by Master of the Oasis George M. Conway and Past Grand Commander Emmett J. O'Neill. Featuring this will be a mock trial in which Sylvester G. Kirby "will sue" the Alhambra for alleged injuries sustained at the outing in June. Representing the Caravan will be District Attorney Daniel J. O'Mara and Dan Fitzgerald. For Kirby will appear former State Senator Norman A. O'Brien and Emmett Schnepp.

Speakers at the meeting will include District Attorney O'Mara, a past grand commander and Sentinel of the Desert Nelson E. Owens.

Mercy Girls Win In Poster Contest

Second and third prizes were awarded to Mary Jeanne Daniels, senior, and Margaret Mary Conley, junior, of Our Lady of Mercy High School in a poster contest opened to all Catholic high schools and sponsored by the Catholic Youth Association.

The contest marked the opening of a drive for membership in the C. Y. A. The posters were judged for simpleness, aptness of thought, neatness and originality.

The poster awarded the second prize of three dollars had the clever slogan, "To be active in play join the C. Y. A." In the middle of the poster was a penguin playing hockey, one of the many sports offered by the association. The winner of the third prize of two dollars depicted a girl swimming with the slogan, "Get in the swim, join the C. Y. A."

Former Auburn Couple Celebrates Golden Wedding

SYRACUSE — Mr. and Mrs. James F. Kennedy of 834 South Ave., Syracuse, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Oct. 15 with a special anniversary mass at 9 A. M. in St. Anthony of Padua Church which was sung in gold vestments by Msgr. Charles F. McEvoy. In the Sanctuary was Father Bowen.

Msgr. McEvoy gave a nice talk to the "Bride and Groom of fifty years ago," as he put it. They were married on Oct. 15, 1890, at St. Marys Church, Auburn, by the late Rev. William Mulherin. Mr. Kennedy was a native of Auburn, his wife was born in Rochester, N. Y.

After living in Auburn eight years, the couple moved to Syracuse in 1898. Members of the family includes two sons, Charles and Walter J. Kennedy, five daughters, Mrs. Gertrude Hilligus, Mrs. Mildred Schlosser, Mrs. Laura Cavanaugh, Miss Alice Kennedy and Miss Ethel L. Kennedy, 12 grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Flames Ruin Church

Iberville, Que. — Awakening at 3:45 A. M. the Rev. Joseph P. Georges, pastor of nearby St. Paul de l'Ile aux Noix, saw his church on fire. Dashing to the belfry he sounded the bell until the heat and flames forced him away. Firemen from Iberville and Napierville were called but could do nothing more than save the adjacent buildings. Father Georges was unable to enter the belfry of the church to save the Blessed Sacrament.

ister to the sick and harbor the aged.

They followed man's strange odyssey from the cradle to the grave, always ready to lend a helping hand in times of stress and dereliction.

First Motherhouse

The growth of the order was almost as rapid as the demands for its multiple services. The first step in a building program which eventually was to enshrine the name of the order throughout the Diocese, was the opening of a new Mother House and Novitiate at Jay and Frank Streets.

Here also was established the first Nazareth Convent and Academy. Thus was the name of Nazareth identified with the Sisters of St. Joseph. They have carried it in their educational labors through the years until today it stands as the byword for their finest achievements.

When the first Nazareth was dedicated on August 15, 1871, Bishop McQuaid compared the ideals behind the structure to the sacred motives which flowered in its biblical namesakes. He climaxed the dedication with this thought:

"Let me remind you that there is not a charity in all this country, hospitals, asylums, refuges of any sort which for far reaching widespread and lasting charity can for one moment be compared with our parochial schools."

This new center of teacher training opened the flood gates of Catholic education. Catholicism marched forward in mighty strides and Nazareth's graduate teachers kept stop with the advance.

New schools rose up throughout the Diocese — in Auburn, Geneva, Canandaigua, Elmira, Corning, Dansville, Ithaca and numerous other localities. A steady call went forth to the Sisters of St. Joseph to staff these schools and in most cases the calls were answered, the original twelve had now grown into nine hundred.

Allied with the Sisters of St. Joseph in this mighty apostolate were the valiant women of kindred orders, the Sisters of Mercy, the Sisters of Notre Dame, the Religious of the Sacred Heart and the Sisters of St. Francis. All worked and devoted their religious life toward a common goal.

Branch Out

Despite this extensive educational program, the Sisters of St. Joseph not only maintained but increased the scope of their work in other fields.

They sheltered homeless boys and girls in Rochester's St. Mary's and St. Patrick's Homes, in Elmira they cared for the sick at St. Joseph's Hospital while they also answered a call to staff St. Ann's Home for the Aged in Rochester.

Soon a magnificent new Nazareth Academy sprung up on Lake Avenue in Rochester. Through its doors streamed not only girls from all parochial schools in the area but non-Catholics as well.

A new Mother House and Novitiate was established on Augustine Street in Rochester. Members of the order were sent to colleges and universities throughout the country and some even traveled to Europe to tap the fountains of the world's greatest sources of knowledge for transmission to the boys and girls of the diocese.

Two and sometimes three generations of a single family were taught by the same Sister of St. Joseph. From schools staffed by the order streamed a steady procession of graduates to take their place in the world of today.

Priests, nuns, doctors, lawyers, teachers, housewives and representatives of many trades and professions often point to some humble Sister of St. Joseph as the guiding light who helped clear away the confusion of youth and charter the course of their lives.

Value Incalculable

The value of a teaching nun to the community in which her influence is felt is incalculable. It cannot be measured in mere terms of dollars and cents. It must be reckoned in terms of character, citizen value and the salvation of a soul.

Upwards of 26,000 boys and girls annually attend the parochial schools in the Rochester Diocese. Of this number, 13,423 are taught in the nearly 50 full-time schools staffed by the Sisters of St. Joseph.

Two years ago the average per pupil cost in New York State's public schools was $131. On this basis, the total service rendered the Diocese each year by the sisters would be over $1,758,413.

Educational authorities agree that religious teaching orders such as the Sisters of St. Joseph form the very backbone of the parochial school system. Without them, the operation of these schools would form an almost impossible financial burden.

In their Pittsford normal school, the Sisters of St. Joseph are training an increasing number of young women to take up teaching posts throughout the diocese. To these diocesan schools the order sends nuns fully equipped for their duties by reason of a complete normal school course, the expense of which is sustained by the Sisters themselves.

Now the sisters have reached the capstone of their educational program. Nazareth College started 16 years ago with a student body of 25 and due to increasing numbers constantly outgrowing their quarters, the Sisters decided to ask our Bishop to allow them to build a suitable set of buildings.

The Bishop suggested the land adjoining the Mother House on East Ave., Pittsford, and there they are constructing the first three buildings—the Classroom, the Dormitory and the Gymnasium that they may be physically housed in such surroundings as befits the great work they have accomplished through the years.

In their first organized educational appeal in 85 years, the Sisters of St. Joseph are now asking for public support in building a new Nazareth College.

That they feel confident the thousands of men and women, whose lives have been enriched by their work, will not let this call go unheeded.

CISTERCIAN MONASTERY

Fathers Receive Delegation of Non-Catholics

A center of activity in Ethiopia is Asmara. About five miles from the heart of the city is the Cistercian Monastery. Archbishop Castellani, the Apostolic Delegate writes:

"The Cisterian Fathers in Asmara have been unusually successful. They have a group of young Abyssinians who are studying and preparing for the religious life. You must always remember that the people of Ethiopia have a special fondness and regard for the monastic life.

"Along with the monastery, the Fathers have a small school. It is a free school. Recently a group of the Separated people sent a delegation to the Abbot. They asked him to enlarge the school and take their boys. They are the people from the surrounding district and practically all belong to the Separated Church.

"The Abbot can find more room for the school but the building is very primitive. There is no running water in the house and no electric light.

"There is water close at hand but the Fathers must buy a pump and pipe lines to bring the water to the house. This, however, will cost One Hundred and Twenty-five Dollars. A dynamo to generate electricity can be purchased for One Hundred and Sixty-five Dollars.

"If the Fathers wish to run a big school, there must be water and electricity. Without these, it is impossible to enlarge the school. The children of the Separate people will be the means of bringing their parents into the Church. First, however, we must open our school to the children."

Here is an interesting situation. People who are not Catholics are asking the missionaries to train their children. The missionaries are not able to accept the children, because their building is not equipped. We must do something. One Hundred and Twenty-five Dollars will take care of the water supply, and another One Hundred and Sixty-five Dollars will take care of the electricity. Which can you afford? Perhaps you can give only a few dollars. Give it, and help us to accept these children.

News Photographer Talks To Mercy Class

Joseph Durnherr, ace photographer of the Times-Union, addressed the Journalism class of Our Lady of Mercy High on Tuesday.

The students had the thrill of learning first-hand the story behind the newspaper photograph. Many of Mr. Durnherr's scoop pictures were shown to the class and were enthusiastically admired by the students.

That one must always be alert for a scoop and eager take chances was explained by the photographer. The intricacies of trick photography were explained and likewise the danger and excitement of that work.
