RT. REV. J. T. McMANUS.

Saturday morning last Rt. Rev. James T. McManus, Domestic Prelate of the Papal Household, and Vicar-General of this diocese, breathed his last at the parochial residence, St. Francis de Sales parish, Geneva. A great man is lost, both to the Church and the diocese, and none feel it more deeply than do the congregation among whom he lingered so long and so faithfully. The best eulogy of his labors is found in the eloquent tribute of our Rt. Rev. Bishop, published in another column. We can add nothing to it, and simply conclude by saying Requiescat in Pace.

PAROCHIAL VS. STATE SCHOOLS.

Nowhere will be found the names of the parochial school pupils who attended the Regents' and extraneous examinations to the Free Academy; also the closing exercises held in the several schools. A perusal cannot fail to be interesting.

Friends and promoters of the parochial schools have no reason to be ashamed of the results. In no case did the general average of the parochial school pupils fall below that of the public school scholars, while in many cases it surpassed. This is most gratifying, as it demonstrates beyond the shadow of a doubt the superiority of the parochial school. Why? Because the institution that gives equal, if not superior, secular education to that imparted in the state schools, and in addition a thorough, practical education in the principles and truths of their holy religion, is the one in which children with immortal souls should be educated. This has been done in the parochial schools. Those who have claimed the secular education in the parochial schools was not of equal excellence with that imparted in the state institutions, no longer have that prop to lean upon. Their last leg is knocked from under them.

We confess to an inability to perceive any comparison between parochial and state schools. When our children are in the former, we know they are perfectly safe and will hear nothing that will tend to shake their faith in, or cause them to waver in their devotion to, our Holy Church. After all, this is the real point to be considered. What shall it profit a child if he gain the best secular education this country can afford and lose a knowledge of our holy religion, the only knowledge that is of use in the next world, raises him above the level of the beast of the field—whose existence terminates with this life—teaches him his end is not in society, in the gratification of his own desires, but in God his Creator and Father? Better have no education than that which crushes out the Christian faith as is unavoidable in the state schools!

But it has been demonstrated by the best possible evidence that equal and superior secular education can be obtained in the parochial schools. Therefore, stand by the parochial schools; do not object if you have to pay double for your children's education; you will be more than repaid for the outlay in the future. Do not underestimate the work of the good Sisters; they have the best interests of your child, both mentally, morally and spiritually, at heart and are imbued with special grace by Almighty God for their work. God bless the parochial schools and may their sphere of usefulness be still more enlarged until it shall extend to every diocese in the land, or until justice shall have been done us by the state.

Our esteemed contemporary, the Philadelphia Freeman and Irish American Review, published last week a very full and interesting account of William O'Brien's wedding.

June 28, the Holy Father bestowed cardinal's hats upon Mgr. Vanutelli, Papal Nuncio at Lisbon, Archbishop Galerti, of Ravenna; Bishop Merzlot, of Lausanne; and Bishop Dunajewski, of Cracow.

Somewhat Inconsistent.

Residents of Irondequoit are waging a vigorous war against the playing of ball between professional clubs at Windsor Beach on Sunday. Very good. The Journal heartily disapproves of Sunday ball-playing. But it would like to ask the respectable element of Irondequoit why they do not clean up the public part of their towns a little; For some summers past the Sea Breeze has been a disgrace to Monroe County. It is the rendezvous and stamping ground for low and dissolute characters and its nightly scenes are so disgusting that people professing any claim to respectability are never there after nightfall if they can help themselves. Sunday ball games were played there last season Sunday after Sunday; liquor was sold openly; brawls were of frequent occurrence. This season has witnessed several drownings in the Bay, at least two of which are charged to intoxication. A Sunday or so since a party was at Rifle Range and a drunken row took place in which beer glasses were thrown about and several heads cut. Why do the respectable element allow this state of affairs to go on? It may be urged that these things are done on private property. Well so is ball playing. And we are of the opinion that the general public are troubled far less by the ball game than by the other happenings we have noted. It looks as though Sea Breeze was jealous lest Windsor Beach might draw away some of her custom. But if the Irondequoit people are in earnest perhaps these other nuisances will be abated later. We trust they will have courage enough to continue their good work until all the summer resorts in Irondequoit are such that decent people can visit them at any time and not be disgusted.

A solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated at St. Mary's at 9 a. m. Monday for the late Vicar-General McManus. Rev. J. P. Stewart, deacon, Rev. Joseph Kirsch, C. S. C., sub-deacon, Rev. Felix O'Hanlon, master of ceremonies. The choir rendered excellent music, assisted by Rev. Father Kirsch, whose strong, well-trained voice contributed much to the impressiveness of the occasion.

The remains lay in state from Monday until Wednesday morning, and were viewed by hundreds of persons, who had known and loved the dead pastor in life. His face bore the traces of the suffering through which he had passed. The body was clothed in the purple robes of the monsigneur's office and reposed in a handsome casket covered with black velvet. The heavy handles were of silver, and on the top were a silver crucifix and a plate bearing the words: "Rt. Rev. Monseigneur James McManus."

The funeral was held Wednesday at 10 o'clock and was probably the largest ever held in this city. The edifice was not nearly large enough to accommodate those who wished to attend. Many were from out of town and not a few were priests, who came a long distance especially to be present at the obsequies of one who had been a warm friend in earlier days.

At the appointed hour, the long procession wended its way from the parochial residence to the church. It comprised one Archbishop, three Bishops, about eighty priests. Other priests who arrived later swelled the number to about one hundred.

Bishop McQuaid occupied his episcopal throne at the Gospel side of the altar; Bishop Ludden of Syracuse, sat on a slightly raised dais on his right. The venerable Archbishop of Boston, Most Rev. John J. Williams, occupied a dais on the opposite side. When all had taken their places, the solemn requiem mass was begun.

Pontifical high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rt. Rev. Francis McNeiray of Albany; assistant priest, Rev. J. F. O'Hare, D. D., Rochester; deacon, Rev. Dennis English, Canandaigua, sub-deacon, Rev. Angelo Lugero, Honeye Falls; deacons of the mass, Rev. Fathers Sinclair of Rochester and Seymour of Auburn; deacons of honor to Bishop McQuaid, Revs. Michael McManus of Boston and James Hourigan of Binghamton; first master of ceremonies, Very Rev. H. DeRegge, chancellor of Rochester diocese, and Rev. Wm. A. McDonald of Seneca Falls. Among the priests present were:

J. P. STEWART, F. O'HANLON, M. J. CLUNEY, D. LATRPNZIS, F. C. OBERHOLZER, J. P. KERNAN, E. J. HANNA, D. D., J. MCGRATH, J. NANNESS, J. J. AND J. E. HARTLEY, ROCHSTER; C. FLAHERTY, MT. MORRIS; J. A. HIOKEY, GENESEO; GEORGE EISLER, CALEDONIA; J. M. FITZ GERALD, CHARLOTTE; J. J. RUBY, P. J. CLUNE, WM. MULHERON, J. T. DOUGHERTY, JOS. NETZEL, AUBURN; EUGENE EAGAN, PENN YAN; J. J. HIOKEY, WATERLOO; J. W. HENDRICK, LIVONIA; T. A. HENDRICK, UNION SPRINGS; D. J. CURRAN, CHURCHVILLE; JAS. DAY AND F. RAUBER, DANVILLE; ALFRED EVANS, M. R., ITHACA; D. W. KAVANAUGH, LYONS; M. A. F. HOLMES, MACDON; T. J. HIOKEY, MORAVIA; THOS. O'CONNELL, OVID; JNO. NELLIGAN, PHELPS; JOE, G. MAGIN, SPENCERPORT; M. MADDEN, TRUMANSBURG; J. J. DONNELLY, VICTOR, S. FITZSIMONS, LIMA; P. McMANUS, SCRANTON, PA.; JOHN COSTELLO, ATHENS, PA.

Vicar-General Hughes, Hartford, Conn.; P. O'Connell, Sheffield, Ill.; M. A. Quirk, Bantoul, Ill.; Jos. H. Mangin, Albany, N. Y.; Wm. Casey, Palmyra; Wm. Hughes, Bloomfield; F. Pascalar and A. O'Neil, Rochester, were also present.

A Gregorian requiem mass was sung by the choir in peculiarly solemn and impressive style.

The eulogy was pronounced by Bishop McQuaid. It was a simple, yet touching tribute to the dead monsigneur and a proof of the high esteem in which the bishop held his dead vicar-general. He prefaced his remarks by picturing a young man, about to enter the priesthood, the trials and hardships he often had to encounter and said such a sight was beautiful. He said such an one had been ordained this morning and such an one was, at the beginning of his career, the man who lay dead before them. The bishop sketched the life of the dead priest from the beginning of his studies to his ordination. He took up his career until he came to Geneva and said he had always been faithful to his calling. Of his life in Geneva, the bishop said, he need not speak as it was too well known to all. He said the dead pastor was so attached to his parish that when his bishop promoted him to a flourishing city charge, he begged to be allowed to return to it and did so. There were many moist eyes at the close of the bishop's remarks.

The final absolution was pronounced by the Bishop of Rochester. Six priests then bore the remains to the door and six laymen carried it to the hearse. The interment was at St. Frances de Sales cemetery, where now reposes all that is mortal of the good monsigneur. R. L. P.

Coldwater.

The feast of St. Peter and Paul, June 29, was First Communion day at Coldwater. It had been announced by the pastor that he wished it to be a feast for the whole parish in the best sense. Such it fully proved to be. The three days previous to the Feast, the first communicants were from time of Holy Mass until 4 o'clock in the afternoon under the immediate training of the pastor. Meditation, spiritual reading, prayer in concert, instruction and drills, were alternated in those three days, making a solid and worthy preparation. But so well was the earnestness of the pastor received, that not only the first communicants took part in the holy exercises, but a large number of communicants of former years were eager in making the exercises with the communion class, thus making it a spiritual renewal of their own happy day.

The Feast itself proved to all the members of the congregation a most joyful day. The altar and church had been decorated by the pastor himself, assisted by some twenty members of the Altar society. Every one admitted that never had the church been so beautifully prepared for a feast day. During mass, the choir sang a new chorus, a composition by the pastor himself, and by him taught to the choir. It was a Latin song of rejoicing and was intended to be the musical offering of the choir to the first communicants. In the afternoon there was renewal of baptismal vows, which proved just as touching as the morning service. A large number of persons from Rochester attended Divine services Sunday. They were friends of the congregation, and pastor, Rev. H. J. Straten. They were heard to say they wished again to see their beloved priest on so joyful an occasion. There can be no doubt but that every one of the parishioners of the Holy Ghost church were strongly impressed by the sermons and ceremonies of that celebration, and we congratulate them on the zeal of both people and pastor.
