Commenting upon this unique and solemn ceremony, those in charge said this week:

"The great response to the ceremony of Feb. 20, last, removes any doubt about the great benefit to be derived from this Blessing. More than 250 were present at this ceremony. Many were unable to get prayers, literature and pictures. If those mothers who did not get pictures will be present at the April ceremony, they will be given same."

ROCHESTER DIOCESAN COUNCIL

National Council of Catholic Women
Office: 536 Columbus Civic Centre, 50 Chestnut Street

April marks the feast of the Patroness of the National Council of Catholic Women, Our Lady of Good Counsel. In the midst of the many problems which confront us today, we do need the counsel of our Blessed Mother. Let us all unite in a novena for that intention, beginning on April 18.

Organization chairmen of the National Council of Catholic Women are striving in a special way to present a worthy gift to Our Lady on this day. That the work of Catholic Action may be truly effective, that all Catholic women may be united in advancing the welfare of the Church, organization chairmen are carrying on a special campaign to make the Diocesan Councils and the National Council of Catholic Women better known. We know that all our affiliated groups throughout the United States will join in prayer on this day, both for the work of Catholic Action and the workers.

On the feast of our Patroness, a special Mass will be offered in the chapel of the National Catholic School of Social Service for the intention of all the benefactors of the school.

The gigantic defense program in which our country is engaged will require the cooperation of all persons, all groups, and all resources if it is to be a success.

The urgency of the national defense demands the vitalization of all reserved facilities and capacities.

Our alert hierarchy, at the last Bishops' meeting, set up a "National Catholic Community Service." Directed by the Administrative Board of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, the service will coordinate and use Catholic social, educational and lay agencies. It will coordinate its efforts with the agencies which form a part of the United Service Organizations for the National Defense, Inc. Separate buildings will be maintained for Catholic activities near training camps, naval and industrial areas. The operation of such centers will require a selected and trained staff. Upright and efficient men and women, outstandingly representative of the American Catholic citizens, will have to be chosen and prepared for this great responsibility and opportunity.

The National Catholic School of Social Service has offered its facilities to the National Catholic Community Service for the training of workers for the Catholic community houses. A training program and budget have been drafted and presented. The faculty is equipped and eager to render extra service. Inspired by the conviction that there can be no democracy without religion, no morale without morality, the Catholic women of America, through their National Catholic School of Social Service, are going into the service for God and Country in this emergency. The call has come. The school is ready.

Rev. Lucian L. Lauerman,
Director.

NCCW 'Call To Youth' Radio Addresses

Youth To Bear 'Real Brunt' Of U. S. National Defense

The youth of the United States are going "to bear the real brunt of our national defense," declared Miss Mary Synon, noted author and member of the Commission on Citizenship at the Catholic University of America, in the "Call to Youth" broadcast of the National Council of Catholic Women April 12.

The "Call to Youth" program is broadcast over WHAM and the Red Network of the National Broadcasting Company and is sponsored by the Youth Committee of the National Council of Catholic Women.

Saying youth has "a deeper obligation than merely the obligation of defense against physical invasion," Miss Synon declared that enemies "from without and within" menace the United States.

"The war that we call the Second World War is only part of a war that has been going on for long, long years," she added.

"Perhaps the periods of peace that Christendom has known have been only armistice. For the war is really the war of the Christian ideal of power. Christianity says that there shall be social justice, that men shall be free, socially and politically and economically. Sometimes, when the world gave heed to its doctrines, the Church worked out that doctrine of justice so well that the world had peace. Then, through centuries, the Church, opposed by another social doctrine which won over large parts of Europe and America, could do little. In that time arose conditions which still, to a great extent, exist, conditions of poverty, of want, of injustices done to men by their fellows.

"Out of these conditions arose the theory and practice of great social revolutions," Miss Synon went on.

"One of these theories, the one which has lasted more than a hundred years, is the theory of Communism. Communism is not Democracy. It is an attack on the fundamental creed of true democracy the creed that man has worth because he is the creature of God. Communism sets the State above everything. Today it is Communism and the echoes of Communism which are fighting democracy. The fight is not all on battlefields or in bombed cities. It is in that fight where all of you, the youth of the nation, can find today your opportunity to prove your patriotism your faith. You who are Catholics can find in the same conflict the added opportunity to prove your Faith."

Miss Synon pointed to the labors of Frederic Ozanam and his St. Vincent de Paul Society as an example of what youth can do to alleviate the sufferings of the times and thus in a small way compensate for the injustices which have caused so much economic misery.

"You have today it is true, a great and grave responsibility," she said to the youth of the United States. "You have also a great opportunity an opportunity such as youth has seldom been given. Already you know that there is no achievement without difficulties, no crown without a cross, no Easter without a Golgotha. The history of our nation has been a history of constant struggle. You are as proud of our country as we have ever been, as proud as were the men and women who fought for its integrity. You know in your deepest hearts, that you must pay for that pride, that you must continue that tradition of American freedom, by your own deeds. You know, though, as all generations of American youth have not known, that you have a deeper obligation than merely the obligation of defense against physical invasion. Your big job, your biggest job, is the defense of our essential democracy, our American way of life."

With Regrets To The L.C.B.A.

Inadvertently omitted from highlights of 1940 in the Annual Calendarium and Diocesan Review was this item:

Marking the Golden Jubilee of the Ladies Catholic Benevolent Association, members in the Rochester Diocese assisted at Solemn Pontifical Mass in Sacred Heart Pro-Cathedral with His Excellency, Bishop Kearney officiating on Oct. 20, 1940. Seven Supreme Officers present were headed by Miss Kate Mahoney of Troy, Supreme President. At the Golden Jubilee dinner in the Powers Hotel, His Excellency highly commended the organization's work in this diocese and said "the philosophy of the L. C. B. A. is the Christian philosophy, the love of God and the love of our neighbor." Mrs. Anna I. Ryan, Supreme Trustee was Jubilee chairman and Mrs. Rosemary Groston, co-chairman.
