Fourth War Loan Drive Opens At Aquinas Jan. 22

Boys High School Nets Close To $90,000 In '43 Bond-Stamp Drive

With the sale of close to $90,000 worth of War Bonds and Stamps credited to Aquinas Institute students in 1943, the school will launch its campaign in connection with the Fourth War Loan Drive on Jan. 22, it is announced at the school today.

The total amount of money turned in by Aquinas students for U. S. War Bonds and Stamps in the year 1943 was more than $67,900 which did not include the total of $21,750 raised for the purchase of 7 "flying jeeps."

The Aquinas Second War Loan Drive opened on Oct. 11 at an assembly conducted by the Rev. William Duggan, C.S.B., Aquinas principal, and continued until Dec. 17. The goal set was $21,000.

Guest speaker at the assembly was Colonel Adamson, who spent 21 days adrift in the Pacific with Captain Eddie Rickenbacher. The school paper at the time reported that the Colonel emphasized the need of self discipline, patience, a sense of humor and prayer to become "real men."

The "flying jeeps" which could be purchased as a result of the boys' war bond activity are 750 lb. planes used by the Field Artillery. The students were told that these pilots of the Field Artillery are the only pilots not actually in the Air Forces. The "jeeps" are not fighters, however, but serve as ambulances, pilot training ships, submarine chasers and observation planes.

With the "flying jeeps" as an incentive the Aquinas students netted $21,750 in their sale or $750 over the goal.

The goal for the Fourth Loan Drive has not been set.
