Clasped by a Severed Hand.
June 20 Frederick Miller and David Heller, two employees at the furnace at the rolling mills, were killed by a premature explosion of Hercules powder while blasting out salamander from the bottom of the furnace. Miller was standing directly over the drilled hole at the time of the explosion, and was terribly torn and disfigured. Both arms were blown off. But one was found. Every effort to find the other arm proved fruitless until yesterday.

The workmen saw an object clinging to one of the stay rods that help to support and keep in position the stacks on the top of the furnace. Through curiosity they climbed up to the top, and they saw a sight that not only filled them with horror but with wonder. Therein full sight of all was a man's hand with only the stub of an arm attached tightly clasping the rod above mentioned.

There can be no doubt but that the hand is that of the unfortunate Miller. The only theory known for the strange freak of the bodyless hand is that the hand was blown out of the top of the high stack and in coming down the muscles, still active, contracted when the hand struck the rod and fastened to it with a deadly grip. From the position in which Miller was standing the hand could not have reached the position it occupied other than in the above manner. The muscles could not have relaxed much after first contracting, else the hand would have fallen.—Brazil Times.

An Electric Lawn Party.
An electric lawn party was given a few days ago by one of the leading electricians of the country at his residence in Connecticut. As the visitor was ushered into the oaken hall he was greeted with music from an electric organ. An open box of cigars lay on the center table, and overhanging it was an electric cigar lighter. On the sideboard, in an electric teapot, the fragrant Bohemian was brewing, and novel and almost weird effects of electric lighting were visible all around, while the air was cooled with electric fans. Two objects of unique interest, taken side by side, were one of the first phonographs and the very last perfected instrument made. In the evening there was a grand display of fireworks, ignited by electricity direct from the lighting circuit, a thing never before attempted. The fireworks, which were shown about 150 yards from the house, were lighted from the piazza by the turning of a small electric switch in the hands of a lady.—Exchange.

A Modern Prodigal.
A short time ago Mr. Crimp, farmer, of Milton, Devon, advertised for a laborer. A wretched, half starved young man in rags and tatters applied for the situation, and by pleading hard obtained it. Some time after he told his master that he owned an estate in Wiltshire, and that his father was a very wealthy man. He had left home, he said, through an unpleasantness, and had been wandering about for years, barely earning subsistence. The farmer made inquiries, and visited Wiltshire to find the extraordinary story true. His laborer's father resided in an elegant mansion, beautifully situated. He had long since given up his son for dead, but immediately accompanied the farmer back to Devonshire and there found the prodigal, who would not leave his master until the latter had procured some one to take his place on the farm.—London Tit Bits.

The Cow Visits the Parlor.
The family of Mrs. Mary Hartwright, who resides on Plover street, Omaha, were much surprised a few evenings ago by the appearance in their parlor of an unexpected guest. This was their Durham cow, Mollie, that escaping from her pen deliberately walked up the low steps leading to the porch, thence into the hall, through which she marched until she reached the parlor door. This she entered with an inquiring moo, and advanced into the room, while the family sat watching her, afraid to move lest they startle and cause her to do some damage. But after a quiet inspection of the apartment the incongruity of her presence there seemed to strike her, and turning about as quietly walked out again.—Cor. Philadelphia Press.

Practical Jokers Punished.
Police Justice White, of New York, has just taught two practical jokers a lesson—fining each $10. While painting a building in Mott street as a bit of pleasantry they spattered paint over every Italian man, woman, or child whose head appeared in any of the windows below. This amusement grew too mild, and when a Miss Mucchi appeared in the next yard one of them dropped the entire contents of a paint pot on her head. Miss Mucchi had dark hair and her friends were so shocked at her changed appearance that they had the painters arrested.—Philadelphia Ledger.

EUROPE'S MANY CHANGES.
How the Various Countries Have Been Cut Up and Divided.
Rumors of a European war on a grand scale are always rife, and it may be interesting to recall the many and stupendous changes which have modified the map of Europe during the last sixty years. The French revolution, continued by Napoleon I., overturned every nation and modified every frontier limit in Europe. Between 1815 and 1830 the restoration of the eldest branch of the Bourbons in France and the Vienna and Verona congresses had nearly re-established the ancient order of things in the European world.

But in 1830 the revolution which crowned the Orleans cadet Louis Philippe as king of France, and proclaimed him the representative of modern liberalism as against clerical reactionism as personified in Charles X., was the signal of changes all over Europe. The heroic sons of Greece had already begun the struggle for modern liberty and for national independence. They were successful, and the treaty of Adrianople was agreed to by all Europe, and Greece was recognized as a sovereign power on Feb. 3, 1830. Moldavia, Wallachia and Servia were constituted by the same treaty as autonomous principalities, and Turkey ceded to Russia the mouth of the Danube. Belgium separated from Holland and was recognized as an independent power in July, 1831, after long conferences held at London.

In 1834 the kingdom of Poland was suppressed as a result of the heroic but unsuccessful fight of the Poles for liberty. In 1846 the republic of Cracow was suppressed and incorporated with Austria. In 1848 the principality of Neuchatel, which had been given up to Prussia by the treaties of 1814, declared its independence and became a canton of Switzerland. This independence was officially recognized by Prussia in 1857. After the Crimean war, in 1856, Russia lost the southern portion of Bessarabia, along the banks of the Danube, which portion was given to Moldavia. The Solferino victory, in 1859, caused Austria to surrender Lombardy, with the exception of Mantua, to Napoleon III, who made a present of that province to Italy, or rather to the king of Sardinia.

In 1860 the same king came into possession of Modena, Parma, Tuscany, Romagna, Umoria, Naples and Sicily, giving back in exchange to France only the county of Nice and the Savoy. One year later, in 1861, the kingdom of Italy was definitely constituted by the reunion under the same scepter of all Italian states formerly separated, with the exception of the pontifical states and the Rome Campagna. In 1861, Moldavia and Wallachia were united under the name of Rumania. In 1864 the Ionian Islands, which formed a parliamentary republic under British protectorate, were ceded to Greece.

The Gastein convention of 1865, after the war of the duchies, decreed the annexation to Prussia of the duchy of Lauenburg, the title of which was conferred upon Bismarck after his retirement from the chancellorship. In 1866, after the battle of Sadowa, the kingdom of Hanover, the Hesse electorate, the free city of Frankfurt, Schleswig and Holstein were annexed to Prussia and the confederation of North Germany was established. In the same year, and as another consequence of defeat at Sadowa, the Vienna government abandoned Venetia and the fortress of Mantua to Italy. The first defeats of the French in the war of 1870 compelled them to evacuate Rome, which then became the capital of Italy. The Frankfurt treaty gave Alsace and Lorraine to the newly founded North German empire.

In 1878, after the Russo-Turkish war, and through the operation of the Berlin treaty, great changes were made in the map of Europe. Russia exchanged the Dobroudia district for southern Bessarabia. Servia, by the same treaty, was enlarged and constituted as an independent kingdom, as well as Rumania. Bulgaria became a mere tributary province of Turkey, from which in 1885 she snatched eastern Rumelia. Montenegro received an increase of territory, and Bosnia and Herzegovina were surrendered to Austria, which was authorized to occupy them temporarily, a word which means in diplomacy real possession.

Such is the present international map of Europe; how long will it last in that shape!—Philadelphia Telegraph.

A Snow Plant from the Sierra.
One of the rarest plants known to botanists has been brought to this city by E. L. Swartz and is on exhibition in the windows of a downtown florist. It is known as the snow plant and was found by Mr. Swartz growing near snowbanks in the Sierras, 8,500 feet above the sea level. The plant is indigenous to high and frozen altitudes and is a curiosity. It grows to the height of four or five inches, and when it blooms, which is soon after the spring thaw, it bears the appearance of a dark reddish pine cone set upright on the ground. It emits an odor that is not unlike that of the honey-suckle. The value attached to it is on account of its rarity, and the plant secured by Mr. Swartz is doubtless the first ever brought to this city.—San Francisco Examiner.

Saved from a Worse Fate.
A man who slept on the government pier so as to get the first fish that bit in the morning woke up so suddenly that he fell into the lake and was drowned. It was lucky for his future state that his fate overtook him ere he had time to relate any stories of his day's successes. Fishing on Sunday is a trivial matter compared to the monumental mendacity which is its concomitant.—Chicago Mail.

The Deadly Mule.
A southern mule trade has resulted in the death of two people, who were shot and killed as an after effect of the transaction. This is probably the first tragedy resulting from overfamiliarity with these long eared anarchists in which a mule has not played an active part. The court directs a verdict of not guilty.—For the Black Sea Fleet.

Our Odessa correspondent telegraphs: "The three new torpedo boats which have been built in Germany for the Russian government are to be added to the Black sea fleet. It is not improbable that the porte may raise an objection to the passage of these vessels through the Bosphorus, although, of course, they will not receive their armaments before reaching Sebastopol. One of the torpedo boats, the Adler, attained a speed of over twenty-six knots on her trial trip at Cronstadt. The Anacria and the Kozarsky are built on somewhat similar lines to the Adler, but according to the contract will not exceed a speed of twenty-one knots.—London News.

"Looking Backward" is beginning to bear fruit. Twelve young ladies of Indianapolis, employed in stores and offices, have rented a suite of twelve rooms and are living on the Bellamy plan. Each pays into the treasury $3 per week, and a cook is employed to prepare meals. In addition each is assessed 25 cents for a contingent fund, which is held to meet unusual expenses. The young ladies room in couples, and each week two of them are appointed purveyors. The only time they are all together is at supper, but they are contented and enjoy their way of living.

A remarkable freak of lightning was observed near Martin's Point, S. C., lately. A negro woman was sitting in her house with a 2-year-old child in her lap. Her husband was standing on the opposite side of the room. A thunder storm was in progress and a stroke of lightning descended upon the house. The child was instantly killed, its father severely, perhaps fatally, shocked, while the mother was not injured or even shocked by the stroke.

A little child in New York, in falling out of a second story window, grasped two pillows that were airing on the sill, and when she struck the ground the pillows were underneath her and she escaped injury. The place where she fell was paved with cobblestones, and if the child had not fallen on the pillows she would probably have been killed.

A bicyclist recently rode down Mount Washington, making the journey—about eight miles—in an hour and without accident.

A poor washerwoman at Fayetteville, Ark., who a few days ago was notified that she had been granted a pension and would receive $5,000 back pay, was so overcome with joy that she died.

Within a short time the agricultural department hopes to make an interesting experiment, probably on the plains near the state line of Colorado and Kansas. In the agricultural appropriation bill is an item appropriating $2,000 for the purpose of an experiment in producing rainfall by explosion of dynamite. This paragraph was put in the bill by the influence of Senator Farwell, who for many years has believed that rainfall may be induced by the use of explosives. Secretary Rusk thought well of the idea, and the senator induced the committee on agriculture to make provision for the experiment.

Senator Farwell's notion is that about twenty-five pounds of dynamite should be exploded at a time a half mile or so in the air, the material being sent up by means of inexpensive paper balloons and exploded by time fuses. Senator Farwell and Secretary Rusk believe a succession of such explosions will cause rain to fall over a considerable area. At least the experiment in their opinion is worth making, for if it should succeed a cheap and effective solution of the arid land problem would have been discovered. The members of the senate committee on agriculture do not express much faith in the success of the undertaking.—Chicago Herald.
