W. H. Chamberlin Heard at Aquinas

came too inquisitive about the handling of relief supplies."

The use of food for political ends is also going on in the Soviet-controlled zone of Germany, Chamberlin said. The newspapers in the Soviet zone, he explained, always attribute any increase in food rations to the intercession and influence of the Socialist Unity Party (SED) which is the Communist political party of Germany.

German Policy Faulty

In his lecture at Aquinas, Chamberlin charged that "our policy towards Germany is badly mistaken and we have missed an opportunity to do something constructive in Europe.

"The Potsdam Declaration," he said, "is one of the wickedest documents ever written. It has been a recipe for starvation of the German people. We must eliminate the politically preposterous and economically disastrous Morganthau policy."

He also stated that "in our relations with Russia, we are at the crossroads. We must not take the road to appeasement and go on to another Yalta. We must take the road back to the Atlantic Charter and American ideals. We must mix firmness with patience, he urged.

Mr. Chamberlin is the author of several important books on Russia based on his experience as a foreign correspondent in the Soviet Union. He is now completing a new book entitled, "European Cockpit."

The card was sent from Gdynia in northern Poland.
