Rule of Pius XI Recalled, Named Pope 25 Years Ago

Notre Dame, Ind. — (NC) — Spiritual ruler of over 300,000,000 Catholics, spiritual protector of the rights of millions more, ruler of the world's most diminutive state: Pope Pius XI: Prince, Prophet, Priest," writes the Rev. A. L. Brozowski, S.J., in an article on the late Holy Father in the current issue of the Ave Maria magazine.

Achille Ratti, the one-time Vatican librarian who crossed diplomatic swords with Mussolini, was elected Pope on the fourteenth ballot just 25 years ago and Father Brozowski, in commemorating his coronation, points out how Pope Pius XI fulfilled the title: Prince, Prophet, Priest.

For decades Christ's Vicar had been a voluntary prisoner of the Vatican, Father Brozowski recalls, and yet Pope Pius XI, in seven short years, healed a wound between the Papacy and the State that had been festering since the fall of the Roman Empire.

That "Pius the Prophet" saw whither totalitarian States were tending is evidenced by his encyclicals on Nazism and Atheistic communism which "read like post factum accounts of the evils the Pontiff foresaw for the world in the pernicious doctrine of State-idolatry," continues Fr. Brozowski. "He lashed out against these sellers of mankind to materialism and atheism as Christ did against the sellers in the Temple."

"I have no rest when I think of the one billion unbaptized," said Pius the Priest, and under his leadership, between 1922 and 1933 Catholics in mission lands jumped from 12,000,000 to 18,000,000. The climber of the Matterhorn and of Mont Blanc also reached peaks in his teaching as a priest, states Fr. Brozowski, for from his Encyclicals as from a mighty river ultimately stems much of the Catholic teachings on liberty, marriage and education.

Characteristic of the late great Holy Father, his last words were: "There is so much to do!" And Father Brozowski declares that "it may well be that with the passing of time the nations of the world will one day rise and call him: Pius the Great!"
