Hospitals Share In Blood Giving

Admiral Ross T. McIntire, chairman of the nationwide blood program and former Navy Surgeon General, and Dr. George F. Lull of the American Medical Association characterized the beginning of the program in Rochester as "a landmark in the development of American medicine."

LABELLING THE blood service as "a great task for the American people," O'Connor said: "Only the generosity of the people in donating their blood to the sick and injured will drive this program forward. The national blood program presents the opportunity to all our citizens to contribute directly to the saving of life and the prevention of suffering."

The Rochester center and its bloodmobiles which will reach donors in the outlying communities will serve 27 hospitals in an 11-county area where 1,000,000 people live. The goal of this year's program for this area is 30,000 pints of blood.

"The center will bank whole blood and keep it available in refrigeration for the use of any hospital that requires it. The blood will be typed and sent immediately by air to any place that requires a supply. All blood not used by the hospitals within 18 days will be returned to the center for processing into dried plasma which can be stored indefinitely. Some of the blood will be given to laboratories to be broken down into an increasing list of blood products.

Besides the saving of money for the patients who need blood and formerly had to buy from the hospital blood-banks or beg for donors, the hospitals using the Red Cross service will save time and enjoy greater security in the use of carefully prepared blood.

Devore Lauded for Layman Role at Hornell Banquet

Hornell — Coach Hugh Devore of St. Bonaventure College, guest speaker at a banquet of the Holy Name Societies of St. Ann's and St. Ignatius Loyola parishes, was lauded for his influence as a Catholic layman.

The Bonaventure grid coach, with Coach Harry Wright of Aquinas Institute, addressed the 200 Holy Name men gathered Sunday evening in the Knights of Columbus home. Devore's half hour talk was carried over Hornell's FM Station, WWHG.

Making his third appearance as a speaker in Hornell, Devore disclaimed any aspirations to the post of Notre Dame coach, a position he held in 1945. "I believe I'll remain at St. Bonaventure. I like it there," he was quoted as saying.

Speaking of coaching as a profession, the St. Bonaventure mentor said his principal interest was in "the opportunity it gives me to work with young men and do something for them if possible." He said football "represents the fine ideals of Americanism and not only provides entertainment for the players but millions of spectators as well."

TOUCHING ON Wright's statement a few weeks ago that he would succeed Leahy at Notre Dame, Devore said, "My good friend Harry was indulging in a bit of wishful thinking. I've had a number of opportunities to leave St. Bonaventure but I believe I'll stay. I like it there. It's the type of school which gives the average American an opportunity to play any type of sports, and I believe there's a great future for St. Bonaventure."

Wright who mentioned Corning as a "suburb of Hornell" lauded Devore as one of the nation's best gridiron coaches. He said his opinion was shared by the majority of coaches in the country and by the Rev. John Cavanaugh, C. S. C., of Notre Dame who recently told Wright, "Devore performed the finest coaching job at Notre Dame (in 1945) since Knute Rockne."

Both Wright and Devore congratulated members of the two societies for their Catholic and American spirit in getting together for such a banquet each year.

The Rev. Ignatius X. Cameron, pastor of St. Ignatius Loyola Church and chaplain of the local Knights of Columbus, described Devore as an example of Catholic layman leadership. He said, "Devore comes as a successful coach and as a typical Catholic man. His influence is not only on a football field but he's the type of man they want to be when they leave St. Bonventure."

TOASTMASTER was John J. Mellinger. Also heard were the Rev. Andrew T. Dissett, pastor of St. Ann's Church, the Rev. William Tobin, assistant pastor of St. Ignatius and moderator of the church's Holy Name Society, and the Rev. John Healy, assistant at St. Ann's and moderator of the church's Holy Name Society.

Charles Maher, president of the St. Ignatius society, and Silvino Argentieri, president of the St. Ann's group, introduced their officers and spoke briefly. Also introduced were the Rev. John Coonan, assistant pastor at St. Ann's and Neil Green, line coach at Aquinas Institute who accompanied Coach Wright from Rochester.

The dinner was prepared by Charles Burkett and served by members of the ladies' auxiliary of the Knights of Columbus.
