Rochester Rosary Broadcast Hailed By New York Priest

Success of the Rosary for Peace broadcast conducted in Rochester diocese and now being handled Sunday nights in a diocesan-wide basis has been told to Catholics in the New York diocese in the Catholic News.

In his column "Thought for the Week," the Rev. Aloysius F. Coogan, editor of Catholic Missions, told Catholic News readers nightly Rosary broadcasts.

"The practice of reciting the Rosary over the air is gaining widespread popularity and is proving a means of knitting families closer together in prayer," Father Coogan said.

"Recently in the diocese of Rochester we had the opportunity of assisting at an outdoor public recitation of the rosary that was broadcast by five radio stations. His Excellency the Most Rev. James E. Kearney, Bishop of Rochester, recited the prayers assisted by the Rev. Joseph Cirrincion of St. Francis of Assisi Church. The Bishop recited the Paters, and Aves and the priest gave the meditation on the mysteries.

"A group of men and women from the Holy Name Society and the Nocturnal Adoration groups assembled publicly in the garden adjoining the Church answered the prayers. The program was heard in the entire diocese via five radio stations.

"It was interesting to learn that the one radio station accepting the program as a Lenten feature was joined later by four other stations now broadcasting the prayers throughout the entire diocese each Sunday evening.

"In this way families are knitted closer together and reparation is made for sins committed. Our Lady laid down at Fatima this as one of the conditions for peace.

"The practice of the Rosary recitation over the air has taken root in many dioceses and we are all familiar with the great and inspiring program for family peace and world peace produced under the direction of Father Patrick Peyton of the Congregation of the Holy Cross."
