Orphan Kids Find Foster Homes Through TV Shows

New York —(NC)— Homeless children appear in person in a new television series, "No Family Album," started here over WOR-TV and presented by the Cardinal's Campaign for Foster Homes.

The campaign portion of the show will be seen on Wednesday mornings for six weeks and will feature the appearance of children who have "no family album" because they have no family. They are homeless children from Catholic child centers in the Archdiocese of New York.

"In a similar series that we produced earlier this year over another network," Rev. Michael Dwyer, director of the campaign explained, "the response was tremendous and heartwarming. Applications for foster children were up 30 per cent in the six-week period of our last series.

"THEN, AS NOW we featured the children themselves on the program. Hence, people viewing the show could see for themselves that the children were just as normal, healthy and attractive as we keep telling them they are."

The first program presented a picture of three youngsters from the New York Foundling Hospital in the arms of nurses. The little ones took part in a "crawlers race" and had as a co-star Sports Announcer Stan Lomax, who gave a running commentary on the event.

On Wednesday December 6 children from the McMahon Memorial Temporary Shelter will tell the story of that institution and on December 13 homeless children of all ages will act as models in a Fashion Show, with Best's of Fifth Avenue supplying the latest styles in youngsters' wear.

Catholic Hour Has Network Of 127 Stations

Washington — (NC) — Station acceptance of the NBC Catholic Hour at the new broadcast time (2 to 2:30 P.M. EST) has shown an increase of 24 stations, according to an October report issued by the National Broadcasting Company.

At the new time, 106 stations reported that they were carrying the program at the time of the broadcast while 21 reported that they were carrying it as a delayed broadcast, that is by transcription at a different time. Previously, before October, only 65 stations were carrying the program live, with 38 delayed. (WHAM, Rochester carries the program at 2 p.m. each Sunday.)

Reliable surveys indicate that the program has an available audience of at least 7,000,000 radio families at the 2 o'clock period.

The Catholic Hour speaker for December will be the Rev. John J. Dougherty, of the Immaculate Conception Seminary, Darlington, N. J., with music by the choir of St. Mary's Seminary, Roland Park, Baltimore, under the direction of the eminent Sulpician musician, the Rev. John C. Selner.

Actress Fined As She Quits Offensive Play

Sydney — (NC) — An Australian Catholic professional actress has been disciplined and fined by Actors Equity in Melbourne for walking out of her role in the American play, "Dark of the Moon."

"There was nothing wrong with my lines," the young actress, Miss Mary Bourke, declared, "but I could not take part in a scene mocking religion and be true to my Faith."

In resigning her part she not only sacrificed a hopeful opening for which she has been working five years, but also incurred the loss of a week's salary. In addition to this, a fine of 10 pounds was imposed upon her by the "ethics committee" of Actors' Equity on the ground of a breach of contract.

Catholic Talks on Networks Now Available in Book Form

Huntington, Ind., — (NC) — Three phamplets containing addresses delivered on two radio programs produced by the National Council of Catholic Men have been published here by Our Sunday Visitor. The pamphlets are circulated through the NCCM headquarters in Washington, D. C., and Our Sunday Visitor.

One pamphlet, "This Nation Under God," contains the addresses given by a group of widely known Catholic laymen, heard on The Catholic Hour broadcasts in July and August. The speakers included James A. Farley, Judge Michael F. Walsh, Henry Ford 2nd, Bob Considine, Secretary of Labor Maurice J. Tobin, Dr. George S. Sperti, Dr. Hugh S. Taylor, Howard Mitchell and Loretta Young.

The Catholic Hour is carried each Sunday at 2 p. m., EST, by the National Broadcasting Company.

Another pamphlet, "God On Weekdays," contains the series of four addresses delivered on the Catholic Hour in June by the Very Rev. Francis J. Connell, C.SS.R., of the Catholic University of America.

The third pamphlet, "Religion In a Capsule," contains eight discussions conducted by the Rev. John E. Meehan of Woodside, Calif., with a group of guest speakers, during May and June on the Hour of Faith program, which is carried each Sunday at 11:30 a. m. EST, by the American Broadcasting Company.

Red Policies Said Rooted In Mistaken Philosophy

Catholic Radio Programs

[illegible] will be featured on the ABC Catholic Hour of Faith program (WARC [illegible]) this Sunday, Dec. 3, in a discussion with the Rev. Vincent F. Holden, C.S.P., on "Christ Comes Again." They will show the parallel between present world conditions and those which prevailed in the time of Christ.

A TOP Biblical scholar will talk on "Faith and The Heart of Man" in a December series of The NBC Catholic Hour (WHAM, Sundays at 2 p.m.) beginning Dec. 3. The professor from Immaculate Conception Seminary, Darlington, N.J., will be assisted by the St. Mary's Seminary Choir from Baltimore.

TRAINING OF children in responsibility and protecting them from evil influences were topics in the American Bishops' recent Annual Message. Commentary on these matters in parents and other themes from the week's news will be given by the Rev. Richard Tormey, on the Courier-Journal's "Morals Behind the Headlines" at 12:10 p.m. this Sunday on WHAM.

Marines Assure Mother About 'Soulless' Training

Washington,—(NC)—The Marine Corps has assured the worried mother of a Marine and an ex-Marine that in training and on the battle field "Marines turn to God in no uncertain manner."

Upset by an article she read in a secular newspaper on how Marines train their recruits, the mother wrote President Truman that "they want these boys of ours to be soulless beasts with no personality." Mr. Truman asked the Marine Corps to reply, and a response was drafted by Brig. Gen. F. C. McQueen, director of public information, recruiting and history.

MARINE TRAINING is thorough and hard, "but never does it reach the un-Christian stage," General McQueen wrote.

"The Marine Corps realizes that fighting men must have with them the religious principles learned at home," he continued. "Marines who command are responsible for the lives and conduct of the men, and have a deep and abiding regard for the spiritual lives of the men."

"It has been truly said that there are no atheists in fox holes nor in the gun turrets of our fighting ships at sea," he said. "In our training or on the battle field, Marines turn to God in no uncertain manner."

"Those of us in responsible command positions accept the solemn obligation to train the young men in such fashion as to make of them good Marines before their country and better Marines before their God," General McQueen concluded.

The mother wrote that the secular newspaper article, whose author she said is an ex-Marine, explained how boot training remade the Marine recruit.

"IN HIS WORDS 'The aim of the program is to exhaust, humiliate and defeat every atom of civilian individuality extant,'" she told the President. "They forgot these boys have an immortal soul. They want these boys of ours to be soulless beasts with no personality.

"Those who live to come home again must enter civilian life. Can they discard their Marine nature like they would take off a coat?"
