The group has contributed to the maintenance of foreign students for the past five years. The contribution to Father Diraviam, who was in Rochester several months ago, will help finance the building of a chapel to be named for the Little Flower, St. Teresa of the Child Jesus, in the Diocese of Trichinopoly in India.

THE FREMIN Mission Unit has been active since September raising funds for its program. A dance, Mission Day and a Clothing Drive have been held.

Officers of the Unit are: Martha L. Moran, president; Joan Scheg, vice president; Mary Ellen Cullinan, secretary and Barbara Major, treasurer.

The sum of $600 for maintenance of a foreign student at Nazareth turned over by the unit is included among this year's activities.

The Long Sleep

God dismantled His earth,
Laid armaments away;
Dropped feather revers over all
And shortened up the day.

He quenched the fires of autumn,
Set heav'nly candles near;
Silenced (for a while) all notes of the lark—
The long, long sleep is here.

The harmony of giving
Lies new serene—at rest;
Though unleashed tempests blow, earth sleeps
. . . . Invincible and blest.

Twice blest, for to this sleeping
A greater dream is born:
The hope which springs eternal
From THAT December morn.

Hollywood In Focus

By WILLIAM H. MOORING

A Critic's List For Christmas Giving

If I might choose the gifts I'd most enjoy giving this Christmas, they include:

To Bing Crosby and Bob Hope, a pair of scissors to cut out their threadbare "feud" gag. To Hope, a completely new file of jokes any way. Same to Red Skelton, plus a new mug for T.V.

W. MOORING

To Joan Crawford and other Hollywood sophisticates, an appropriate Christmas card design to take the place of the brittle, bawdy "art-trocities" with which they now "mark" the occasion of Christ's birth.

To our Catholic stars, especially young ladies who mean as much to us as Jeanne Crain and Maureen O'Hara, a fresh, whole year's supply of determination to refuse roles in films that go against Christian morality and to forbid the use of their pretty faces and figures in offensive sex and "sexy" publicity.

To Jack Benny, a violin instruction book wrapped in a new, mid-aged hair piece and to Fred Allen and other entertainers who boost each other by pretending to knock each other, a box of literary vitamins to restore their tired comedy routines.

• • •

TO FILM producers in Mexico, the will to send us more pictures like "Maria Candelaria"; in France, more like "Monsieur Vincent"; in Italy, more that have to "The White Line" and do not nauseate us as does "Bitter Rice."

To Leo McCarey, a good script for another Father O'Malley comedy, including Father Barry Fitzgerald, still alive and kicking. With this a little ginger to warm up the cold feet this idea may give Bing Crosby.

To John Farrow, signed pledges from all the Catholics in the U.S.A., that when "The Son of Man" is released, they'll go to see it and take with them every friend they know who hates Christmas but does not believe in Christ.

To every Catholic columnist and reporter — press, radio and T.V. — a guide book to the true objectives of the Film Production Code and our Catholic League of Decency.

• • •

TO EVERY Catholic who does read, a contract to drop newspapers and magazines which have blasted the League of Decency condemns. (If I could include a year's subscription to a Catholic paper, it would be wonderful, but so many don't take one, there wouldn't be enough money in all Hollywood to meet my bill.)

I'd like to send something special to every Hollywood star and un-named player who through 1951 has unselfishly given time and talent to the Family Theater, to camp and hospital shows and other good works. I can think only of a second Mass on Christmas morning for their health and happiness to carry on.

To all the readers — and even those who haven't troubled to read me — who, through 1951 have exceeded the normal right to "needle" a less manic writer, I would send my complete forgiveness and my ready confession that every time (well, almost) they have been right and I have been wrong. The customer is always right!

To everybody in Hollywood and outside of it, my hearty good wishes for a Holy and Happy Christmas and a bright, clean slate for the New Year. I'm trying to hold back just one of each for myself.
