

DEPRAVED SAVAGES.

A Thrilling Description of Their Manners and Customs.

Mr. Vidal's Experience Among the Fiji Islanders. The Horrible Scenes in Cannibalism Witnessed by Him During His Residence There.

Mr. Vidal, Vicar Apostolic of the Fiji Islands, in a recent letter gives a few facts concerning the depravity of the native islanders before the salutary advent of religion. Speaking of cannibalism, he very graphically tells how the inhabitants of five villages were led to devour each other through their diabolical passion for human flesh.

Let those who place no credence in the frightful realities of cannibalism come to Bubu. There is not a European resident on the islands who, before their annexation to England, has not seen such awful spectacles enacted before his own eyes.

Let us ascend the peak where once the human-vultures had perched their nest. We had made up our minds to visit the spot before sunset. Our native friends wished to dissuade us from doing such a rash act, but by telling them that the wicked practices had now ceased and that our time was limited, we finally prevailed upon the guides to accompany us.

Wished to glean more facts as to the condition of the natives and following particulars from the chief. He said in substance if a Fijian was diseased he had no scruples eating her, if she was tough. Every day prisoners were taken by some evil spirits and were soon devoured.

Confirmed fathers, followed at last three storm islands rough to sailing, who in after returned them and see that they were sent home.

"I will hide you for a few days in a neighboring cave, where you will be safe from the villagers," said he, "for if they deavour you." The poor creatures, blessing their deliverer, allowed themselves to be conducted to a small grot in the mountain side. Here they received enough nourishment to keep them alive.

After a few days their pseudo saviour returned and said to them: "I will send you home one at a time—my boat is too small to hold two." The one designated to accompany him did as she was bid, but, instead of conducting her home, he brought her to his cabin, where he killed and ate her.

To a chief no glory was greater than to have eaten more human bodies than his rivals. They wore knotted collars around their necks, each knot representing a body. I was told of one chief who had twenty-seven knots to his collar and another who had eighty. The latter was the famous chief, Thakobau.

Thanks to the influence of civilization and the few zealous missionaries who have devoted their lives to the arduous work of converting the savages, these vile practices are becoming less and less frequent. By the grace of God this people, enlightened by His Holy Word, have the gates of salvation thrown open to them.

And yet this man who would die for the true faith was not even baptized. I remarked to Father Rougier that he had already received the baptism of desire, and had been purified by sanctifying grace. For it is impossible for such strength and virtue to be displayed without grace from God.

The persecuted chief made an address that was so filled with heartfelt emotion that it drew tears to the eyes of all of us. He told us that he had once gone down to the shore, more than fifteen years ago, and while there had assisted at a religious ceremony in the church at Verata.

The jeers and scoffs of the villagers were the greatest proof of his sincerity. They were accustomed to taunt him, saying: "When will you have a priest of your religion? Are you foolish enough to believe that Catholic priests will leave the shore to come and inhabit these mountains? You will die and we will die before they will even come to visit us."

"Sometimes," the pious chief of Bubu added, "my heart was filled with grief and I became sorely discouraged after awaiting your coming for fifteen long years. But to-day my wishes are more than realized, since before me I see not only a priest but a bishop. Oh! blessed be the holy God for having heard many prayers and preserved my life that I might behold the light of this glorious day.

The "Annee Dominicaine" states that on All Saints' Day his Grace, Archbishop Flood, O. P., of Trinidad, visited the leper establishment at Cocovita. He gave First Communion to sixteen lepers, and administered Confirmation to twenty-two.

A Novel Presentation at the Vatican. One of the most interesting presentations at the Vatican this long while back was seen last month when the Holy Father received Mgr. Couppes, Vicar Apostolic of New Briton, in Oceania, who presented two savage children, the first who have ever been seen in Europe from those regions. There was also present at the audience the Rev. Father Joutet, Procurator-General of the Society of Missionaries of the Sacred Heart.

AN ODD CELEBRATION.

St. Louis Italians Carry Out a Custom They Learned at Home.

The Feast of the Blessed Virgin Celebrated By a Procession Through the Streets After Midnight—Grand Devotion to the Church.

A weird procession, such as was certainly never seen before in St. Louis and probably not in any other city in the United States, took place between the hours of 2 and 5:30 o'clock on the morning of Dec. 8, the occasion being the celebration of the Feast of the Immaculate Conception by the Italians, says a correspondent of the "Freemen's Journal."

Half a hundred torch bearers were in the front. Then followed a bugler, who at intervals sent his clarion notes resounding along the well-nigh deserted thoroughfares. Behind him came a dozen stout, stalwart Sicilians bearing on their broad shoulders a wooden platform. On this rested a statue of the Blessed Virgin Mary, decorated and adorned with gold and silver and precious stones, and surrounded with wreaths of fruit and flowers.

The statue was of plaster of paris and was molded in this city by an Italian. It was slightly more than two feet high and was a model of beauty and grandeur. The face was that of the Virgin represented as expressing in its way all that was sweet and pure in the Blessed Mother. The hands were crossed upon the breast and between the fingers had been placed a slender stem of snow-white lilies of the valley.

At two o'clock the procession formed in a court surrounded by tenement houses. It was a bitter cold night, snow on the ground and a sharp north wind blowing. Fully 200 men, women and children were in line. After going about two blocks from the starting point, and just before Morgan street was reached, a stop was made and the music ceased. Carefully the precious statue was lowered to the ground and slowly slid into one of the narrow passages which form a bewildering labyrinth throughout the entire Italian quarter.

After going about two blocks from the starting point, and just before Morgan street was reached, a stop was made and the music ceased. Carefully the precious statue was lowered to the ground and slowly slid into one of the narrow passages which form a bewildering labyrinth throughout the entire Italian quarter.

After an interval of half an hour the statue was again lifted and the march was resumed south. Across Morgan street went the procession and into Chambermaid alley, on the opposite side. There a short stop was made, and the same scene, on a somewhat smaller scale, was repeated by a new band of devotees. Then the journey was renewed to the Franklin Building, one of the most densely inhabited tenement houses in St. Louis.

The building is occupied by Italians, and a demonstration of more than half an hour's duration was held in the wide court facing the row. Here again poorly-clad women and children ran heedlessly into the snow to pay homage to the memory of the Blessed Virgin, while flowers and perfume were scattered head. The procession then wound around in the maze of passages for another half hour, stopping at the doors of the principal men of the vicinity. Carr street was reached, and a long halt was made in the alley between Eighth and Ninth streets.

As the procession left the place, fully a score of the residents of the row, both men and women, followed for more than two blocks, trudging along barefooted through the snow without even a murmur or complaint.

It was almost 6 o'clock before the journey was over. The line of march had included every little court in the city, in which the Italians had their homes. TOO SELDOM PRACTICED.

The Beautiful Custom of Visiting the Blessed Sacraments.

The custom of visiting the Blessed Sacrament is a most beautiful one, but unfortunately it is one too seldom practiced by Catholics. Were our Saviour to appear as a man in some church, how great would be the desire of every Christian to go to that church to see Him. Should He remain there for any considerable time, it matters not where the church was located, great pilgrimages would be organized, and thousands would leave their homes and cross oceans and continents to see Him.

We know that the Holy Eucharist is an evidence of the intense love of the Sacred Heart of Jesus for man; and yet do we show even in a simple way our appreciation of that love by entering the churches as we pass by to say a short prayer?

The Massacre of Chinese Christians.

Letters received in England from the Vicar-Apostolic of Eastern Su-Chuen give some details of the recent massacre of Chinese Christians. It appears that on August 4, during a Buddhist festival, an anti-Christian riot took place at Ta-tsin. Several Catholics were ill-treated by the mob, but no lives were lost, and next day it was supposed that all danger was over. But on August 11, towards evening, an organized body of 200 men attacked the houses of the Christians and killed twelve of them, the Catholic missionary in charge of the place having a very narrow escape.

An Important Decision.

An important decision has recently been made by the Sacred Congregation of Rites relative to the numerous entreaties regarding the approbation of the Mass and Office proper of Our Lady of Lourdes, which up to the present time has been invariably answered by the formula "dilata," which may be understood as a month, or as years to come. Finally, however, a decree has been issued appointing the feast of the Apparition to be finally celebrated on February 11. The importance of this decision lies in the fact that the Sacred Congregation of Rites, in thus approving the feast of Our Lady of Lourdes, sets the seal of the recognition of the Church to the truth of the apparition and of the miracles which took place daily in that Grotto of Benediction.

Devotion to Mary.

Devotion to the Mother of God commenced, apparently, at her very tomb. The Jewish doctors preserved a historical fact, which shows the antiquity of this devotion. A tradition of the Temple, recorded in their Toldos, relates that a hundred Christians were put to death for having erected an oratory over her tomb, and that a violent persecution was waged by the Jewish prince against those who came to pray there. We know from tradition that devotion to Mary dates from the time of the Apostles. St. Peter, it is stated, dedicated an oratory to the Blessed Virgin in one of the ancient cities of Phoenicia. St. John, the Apostle, placed the beautiful church of Lydda under her patronage. St. Barnabas, the Apostle, dedicated the first church of Milan to Mary.

The New Order of St. Peter.

An international Order of Chivalry has been instituted by Leo XIII. at the instance, chiefly of the Bishop of Grenoble, Mgr. Fava. It is called the Order of the Servants of St. Peter, and is designed by the Holy Father as a reward for services to his own person and to the Church. The order will include Chevalliers, Com-

ANDREW J. NICKEL. Cured of a Kidney Disease and Catarrh by Dr. C. M. Freeman, 105 Franklin St.

A few years ago, when Andrew J. Nickel, of 26 Hanover street, came from Germany to America, he was the very picture of physical manhood. No work, however severe, seemed too hard for him to perform. A change soon came. The moist climate and repeated colds soon developed catarrh in its worst form and affected every organ. He describes his case in the following words: "I began by having headache, pains in the chest. I was continually hawking and raising thick yellowish matter from my throat and lungs. I could not keep anything on my stomach. The smell of food made me sick and I felt like vomiting after every meal. I was in constant pain and misery. I could work only a day or two at a time. My symptoms said I could not live, and no doctor could cure me. My kidneys now became diseased, and then the bladder; the desire to relieve them constant and could not be satisfied. I had lost much flesh and felt hardly able to crawl around. Several doctors tried but failed to relieve me. Several of my friends had been treated and cured by Dr. Freeman and I decided to try him as a last resort. On October 12th I consulted the doctor, at his institute, 105 Franklin street. I knew he had been long established there, and made a specialty of chronic diseases, and had published testimonials from hundreds of grateful patients who gave their correct names and addresses. His prices were so very low, I began treatment at once. I began to feel better immediately, and now I am happy to say I am well, and I feel that I owe my life to Dr. Freeman. I live at 26 Hanover street, and would be pleased to have those interested call and see for themselves what the doctor has done for me. "ANDREW J. NICKEL."

Office hours at the Institute from 10 a. m. to 3:30 p. m., and from 6 to 8 p. m.; consultation free.

THE GRAND HOTEL, LOCKPORT, N. Y. W. C. Comstock, Prop.

Remodeled last year. Refurnished entirely with new and elegant furniture. Fitted with all modern improvements including Electric Lights, Steam Heat, Call Bells, Elevator, etc. Free Bus to all day trains. Telephone 557.

NO. 4 COAL ALWAYS ON HAND.

J. A. Van Ingen, 91 Smith St. Telephone 245 D.

HOLIDAY GOODS.

Our Stock is Complete in Grockery, Glass, Lamps & Silver ware, Gormly Bros, 67 State Street, opp. Market.

Now Ready! Suitings, Trouserings, Vestings and Overcoatings, IN ALL THE LATEST DESIGNS.

Julius C. Altpeter, 401 East Main, near Gibbs Street.

I. G. BERNARD, OSTRICH FEATHERS

Curled, Cleaned and Dyed any Shade desired. Gloves & Lace Cleaned, Old Crape Renewed. Orders by mail promptly attended to. 104 WEST MAIN ST., ROCHESTER, N. Y.

D. C. FEELY, Attorney and Counsellor-at-Law, 304 Powers Building, Rochester, N. Y. Office open Evenings 8 to 10 p.m.

TELEPHONE 127. RESIDENCE, 123 BROADWAY. Open All Night.

THOMAS B. MOONEY, UNDERTAKER

AND MANAGER OF Joyce Undertaking Room 195 West Main Street, ROCHESTER, N. Y.

CHARLES J. FABLE, Marble & Granite Works

508 and 510 State St.

A YEAR! I undertake to briefly describe any family intelligent person of either sex, who can read and write, and who, after instruction, will work industriously, how to earn Three Thousand Dollars a Year in their own localities, wherever they live. I will also furnish the situation or employment at which you can earn that amount. No money for me unless successful as above. Ready and quickly learned. I desire but one worker from each district or county. I have already taught and profited with employment a large number, who are making over $1000 a year each. No NEW and SOLELY. Full particulars FREE. Address at once, E. C. ALLEN, Box 420, Augusta, Maine.

Josiah Newman, Wholesale Liquor Dealer

Importer and Rectifier. 24 Mumford St., Rochester, N. Y.

Y LAD C come on Fitcher, for-noth who key not for what yo "You at your fr come of way fro shown t in his b have be away; b they was mer sca now, an which Yves dic his fath fail-wit solent p this ver; sociatin Macheco was that them, a him flat his had i his moti make hi of Aubin and he "She doe for." A lost she that we thers to her herit sword in This, t Cadixne to our with a st The sl a few sh mer, sta them on to him v "Cheeril "the mis growing There: what a g sheaf care, an to the i pour ove he receiv of pagan it is a p th... The fa singing i sheaf, wi from the and Pier stop with sight of in the sl thing! h grains w huak bef eried one cutter's e And w ter so m little Ar orphan. and bear usage ha band wa come re Fitcher e abuse; e Annette' scream; been see her child an onth wet or c the door have bee have ref woman, to the b winter b crept ba fire, prei with the But the refused t score un ing. Th followed wife has miscond ter," and her." I with fur by the st abuse, I and as foot aga ing he r happene there w