Mercy Patients To Get Library Book Service

Auburn — The Catholic Nurses Association of Auburn and the St. Alphonsus Library have joined forces to bring to the staff and patients of Mercy Hospital the St. Alphonsus Library Book Service. Inaugurated on Oct. 27, the service consists of special shelves on the second floor of the hospital and two library book carts.

The latter were redecorated by the Catholic Nurses Association which also supplied all of the necessary book charging equipment.

A GROUP of four St. Alphonsus Library volunteer workers visit the hospital every Tuesday from 4 to 5 p.m. and every Thursday from 6 to 7 p.m. to take the book service to all patients who are well enough to enjoy it.

The book collection is made up of current fiction of all types, biographies, religious readings, a special Mary collect on and general non-fiction. The collection will be changed frequently so that there will always be a wide choice of books available.

Mrs. L. Harvey Clark, librarian in charge of St. Alphonsus Library, in speaking of the new service declared "The taking of St. Alphonsus Library to Mercy Hospital becomes another way of carrying out a library's purpose of 'bringing people and books together'."

China Bishop Hits Atheism In Free-World

Toronto (NC)- Prayer and an end to materialistic living are the twin weapons that will stem the forward march of communism.

This is the counsel Bishop Cuthbert M. O'Gara, C.P., of Yuanling, China, recently expelled from China after being held prisoner of 22 months by the Chinese communists, gave 40,000 Catholics gathered here for the 10th annual Holy Hour and Living Rosary rally.

BISHOP O'GARA, a veteran of 30 years missionary work in China, warned that the Reds have no monopoly on materialism.

"Men in the so-called free world," he said "are as materialistic in mind and heart as the very communists they fear. Their indifference to God, their contempt for religion, their scorn for belief in everything apart from their own material existence, are as gross as anything one will find in the Communistic world."

THE BISHOP termed Western resistance to communism as "placid and ineffectual" because of the prevailing "spirit of irreligion and unbelief".

He attributed his own "miraculous" release from the Reds to the power of prayer and said "that I am actually speaking to you today is for me the surest proof of the efficacy and power of prayer."

Chili To Honor 'Apostle Of Poor'

Mexican Nuns Open Academy In U. S.

Cleveland —(NC)— Dedication of the new $500,000 Incarnate Word Convent and Academy in suburban Parma Heights represents the end of a quest that began in persecution-tormented Mexico on Mother's Day, 1929.

On Mother's Day, 1929, seven of the Incarnate Word Sisters left all behind them and fled in civilan dress from their convent in Durango as Mexico became ever more embroiled in religious persecution.

They made their way to Cleveland and the late Archbishop Joseph Schremba, Bishop of Cleveland, invited them to take refuge in his diocese. A temporary headquarters was provided for them. A permanent site for their convent in Parma Heights was acquired later.

The Sisters erected some temporary frame buildings on the Parma Heights site, but no sooner were they finished than a fire destroyed them. Once again the Sisters were without home and funds—but this time they were not without friends, and work toward their permanent new convent began.

Six of the seven Sisters who fled Mexico are still at the new convent. One, Mother Gabriel, is the superior.
