Nazareth, Aquinas Students Win Bishop's Oratoricals

Winners of the annual Bishop's Regional Elocution Contest held on May 5 were Marie Cornelia, 17, a senior at Nazareth Academy, and Donald Gray, 17, junior at Aquinas.

The two students each received a medal given by His Excellency Bishop Kearney, a plaque for the school and a $25 savings bond from the Knights of Columbus.

Miss Cornelia urged that God again be given a place in education in her address on "Education's Abandoned Keystone". "Knowledge is not wisdom," she warned as she seriously questioned whether a materialistic education would be adequate to provide the high ethical, moral and philosophical standards required to guide the world of the future.

LIFE UNDER the American and Russian constitutions was contrasted by Gray speaking on "The Spirit of the Constitution". He described the American Constitution as a strong wind which cannot be seen but can be felt and its effects observed. The Russian constitution was shown as a government "by paper".

The Rt. Rev. Msgr. James C. McAniff, chancellor of the diocese, presided at the finals, and the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Charles J. Mahoney, diocesan superintendent of schools, was chairman.

Other contestants were Ann Fay of St. Agnes High School, Marilynn Jo Garlick of Academy of the Sacred Heart, Christine Wickert of Our Lady of Mercy High School, and John J. Glogowski of St. Andrew's Seminary.

Judges were the Rev. James R. Barnett, rector of McQuaid High School; the Rev. Gerald A. Quinn, rector of Canisius High School, Buffalo; and the Rev. Thomas Muldoon, a teacher at Canisius High.
