Feast Day Program Offered At Mercy Honors Principal

The deep devotion of Sister M. Francesca, principal of Our Lady of Mercy High School, for Mother Catherine McAuley, foundress of the Sisters of Mercy, inspired the playlet written and produced for her feast day program on March 9 by Sister M. Peter.

Sister Francesca has been principal of Mercy for 26 years.

Sr. Francesca

The Glee Club under Sister M. Margaret's direction prepared several selections to honor Mercy's principal, and the orchestra under the direction of Sister M. Edwina, paid a musical tribute.

Creative writing class instructed by Sister M. Pius, composed a fitting introduction and salutation. An Irish theme was woven into the introduction to form continuity between the opening and the playlet. The creative writing class presented their parodies to such songs as "Galway Bay," "Wearin' of the Green," and "Clancy Lowered the Boom."

"According To Thy Heart's Desire," a two-act play, depicted a scene from the childhood of Mother McAuley and another later in her life after she had founded the Sisters of Mercy.

Catherine McAuley was portrayed by Peg Wolford. Supporting cast included: Sandra Torvato, Rosemary Emslander, Sue Keller, Carol Kerrigan, Barbara McKenna, Barbara Wintish, Gwen Behl, Jeanette Lipani.

Selections were sung by the Voice II classes accompanied by Mary Jane Manfer and the Choral 5 class accompanied by Pat Morrell. Georgianne Quinn accompanied the Voice I class in their renditions.

A special feast day song and a clarinet quintet also honored the principal.

National Honor Earned By City Woman For Mass

Virginia Bogdan, organist and choirmaster of St. Patrick Church, Rochester, has received word that her Mass won second place in a nationwide Mass composition contest conducted by the National Hymnal Committee.

VIRGINIA BOGDAN

Renowned religious and lay musicians and composers from all over the United States had submitted manuscripts, all under pseudonyms. After the preliminary screening of the many Masses submitted, the three judges (one of whom was Paul Hume, the music critic of the Washington Post) could "reach no unanimous decision, even after repeated deliberation," the letter to Miss Bogdan stated.

"Therefore, a point system was utilized, and the Mass ranked high enough by two of the three judges to give it the winning margin of points was that by Rev. Austin Johnson of Portland, Oregon, a well-known composer and symphonist performed and broadcast by orchestras and musical organizations of national repute."

FOLLOWING CLOSE in points was Miss Bogdan's Mass composed on ancient Hungarian themes, which had given the winner such "strong competition." The letter also informed Miss Bogdan that her Mass entitled Surge et Illuminare (which means "rise and shine") would not be returned to her but that, instead, she would receive a contract for its publication and production.

Besides her work at St. Patrick Church, Miss Bogdan is also a teacher of liturgical music. A Nazareth College graduate, she received her Catholic Choirmaster's Certificate and Church Music Degree in the field of composition, which she studied under Dr. Eugene Lapieere of Montreal, Canada.
