McQuaid Student Wins Top Soap Box Derby Title

Richard Rohrer, 14, a sophomore at McQuaid Jesuit High School, returned to his home at 402 Bonnie Brae Ave., Brighton, this week, winner of the American Soap Box Derby.

The youth, son of Dr. and Mrs. Henry D. Rohrer achieved the national crown in the soap box derby competition at Akron, Ohio, Sunday.

He returns with a $5,000 scholarship and a bevy of trophies, plaques and gifts. Asked on the Monitor program of the National Broadcasting Company where he intended to go to college, just before the race, Dick said Georgetown U.

FIRST ROCHESTER winner of the American derby, he qualified by winning the Rochester Soap Box Derby, sponsored by the Times-Union and the Rochester Chevrolet dealers.

The young champion gave a creditable performance not only in winning the derbies but in interviews following the Akron race.

Six feet one inch tall and weighing 155 pounds, Dick was confident throughout that he would win the national contest.

After climbing into his car, "all nervousness left me," he said. He offered a prayer and fingered a medal he wore which had been blessed by Pope Pius XII.

He had praise for the boys he defeated. "I guess anybody could win, but it takes some pretty swell guys to lose gracefully. I don't think I have ever known better losers. They deserve more credit than I do," he said after the race.

His parents, his sister, Patricia; brother, Robert and grandmother, Mrs. Charles Rohrer accompanied Dick to Akron.
