Holy See Honors German Doctors

Siegburg — (NC) — Cardinal Tien, exiled Archbishop of Peking, presented in the name of the Holy See, the Cross of the Grand Commander of the Order of St. Gregory to two doctors here.

The high papal honor was given to Dr. Alfred Moehlenbruch, chief of staff of the Seigburg hospital, and his assistant, Dr. Norbert Zylka, in recognition of their work in saving the life of the Chinese Cardinal after he was seriously injured in an auto accident this summer.

Watching The Screen

Have You Been To Smellovision?

By RAY SMITH

What's On At The Movies?

The Courier-Journal plans to answer this question every week in this new series of articles on films. All the latest major boxoffice attractions will be reviewed including the newest "smellovision" pictures if these become popular. This is the latest form of film extravaganza in which, believe it or not, Schiaparelli perfume is sprayed into the house.

One viewer seeing such a picture reports that this is the only smell about the movie. So, with eyes, ears, and nose alert, we begin these reviews.

THIS SERIES of articles plans to be of interest to all the moviegoers of the diocese.

We'll try to review the current movies before they hit the downtown theaters in Rochester. Of course, these same movies will also play the first-run houses in Elmira, Auburn, Hornell, Geneva, etc.

PAGING FAMILY movie critics!

Might we suggest a hobby for one of the teenagers in the family. Cut out these reviews each week from the Courier-Journal and their ratings according to the Legion of Decency.

The Family Critic can then give the home audience an idea as to what movies are good entertainment when they hit the neighborhood theaters, or when Dad, on a hot summer's night, piles the family into the car and heads for the local Drive-In.

The films may be a wee bit old when you see them there, but their moral and artistic quality will be the same as when they were shot in Hollywood.

This past November, Bishop William A. Scully of Albany, at a meeting of the American Hierarchy in Washington, urged Catholic moviegoers to give "positive support at the boxoffice" to worthwhile motion pictures. This, he said, will contribute immeasurably to the making and exhibition of better motion pictures.

In other words, the more tickets sold with good decent movies on the screen, the more such films will be made. Let's not kid ourselves. Hollywood won't throw a million dollars into celluloid to get a return of pennies. Nobody is in business to lose money.

We hope to tell what movies are worthy of our whole-hearted support and attendance. A word of warning against a boring evening at the theater will also be included if this reviewer judges this to be the case.

By our positive support of good films, we hope to make the words of our late Holy Father, Pius XII, a reality: "With its magnificent power, the screen can and must be a light and a positive guide to what is good."

Of course, our reviews will not be infallible. There was never an umpire who called all the plays to the satisfaction of everyone. We can't expect to please all the people all the time. It is only natural that there will be a variance of receptivity to certain movies.

In the matter of entertainment for the family, for adults, adolescents, children, we often have a divided opinion among our reviewers. This popcorn eater hopes to form his opinion from the general appeal of the movie, the type and nature of the film, together with the intentions and motivations of the producer and director. The opinions and criticisms from the readers of these reviews will be welcomed and appreciated.

The film exchanges and the local theater managers have promised their support and cooperation in advising us when certain films will play certain theaters. No favoritism will be shown to one or the other. We'll call them the way we see them. So next week, see you at the movies.

JAMES McCAFFERTY, music director of the Little Gaelic Singers, who will appear at the Eastman Theatre, Monday, Jan. 12 at 8:30 p.m., directs the Irish youngsters at a rehearsal.

Gaelic Singers Concert Set

If you happen to hear strange sounds like "erin go bragh" and "sinn fein" uttered from the mouths of a group of smiling, happy-faced children in some candy store in the next few days —don't be alarmed.

These children are members of the Little Gaelic Singers who are not plotting the overthrow of the English—but are plotting the overcoming of Rochesterian hearts on Monday, Jan. 12 at 8:30 p.m. at the Eastman Theatre.

This is when these youngsters will invade Rochester for the second time on their third American and Canadian tour with the chances that they will capture all Rochesterians as they have in audiences from coast to coast.

SPONSORED BY the Columban Fathers of Silver Creek, N.Y. these little singers pack mansized talent in their small frames.

Once you have heard the lovely lilting rhythms of the Little Gaelic Singers singing in their native tongue, you will understand why they are so musical.

On their first tour of America, they won rave notices from all critics and won hearts of thousands of Americans with their concert appearances and their three appearances on the Ed Sullivan TV show.

While most of the program of Irish songs and ballads is sung in English, many of the numbers are offered in Gaelic, including Brahm's "Lullaby."

MUCH LIKE youngsters from all over, the Little Gaelic Singers have their moments of mischief, but on the whole, are a well-disciplined group.

They are different in two respects in comparison with Americans of like age. They love their afternoon spot of tea and go crazy over fish—in about the same proportion that our youngsters like hamburgers.

Tickets for the Little Gaelic Singers concert may be procured from Paul McNamara, 425 Times Square Bldg., BA. 5-1122; Michael T. Ryan, BA. 5-4000; Pat Murphy, CO. 6-5058; Tom Hanley, NU 2-5701; Chris Delanty, GL 3-0408; Water's Grocery, GL. 3-4353; and Kitty Byrnes, BE 5-6716.

Auburn Radio To Carry Marian Theater Classic

Father Patrick Peyton's Marian Theater will present Anatole France's famed classic, "The Juggler of Our Lady, from 10-10:30 p.m., over the Mutual Network.

The program is carried on WMBO, 1340 on the dial in Auburn. With Maureen O'Sullivan narrating the story, Jack Haley will enact the role of Barnaby the Juggler. The story takes place in an ancient French monastery.

Barnaby stops at the monastery in his travels and finds that all the monks are preparing gifts for a special feast of the Blessed Mother.

ONE MONK is painting a gorgeous picture as a gift for Our Lady. Another, a sculptor, is creating a magnificent statue to commemorate the feast.

But alas, poor Barnaby has no great gift to offer . . . until an idea suddenly occurs to him.

Late that night one of the monks rushes to the Superior of the monastery and tells him to come to the chapel—that a great sacrilege is being committed.

THE ABBOT rushes and emples Barnaby on his knees before the statue of Our Lady . . . juggling brass plates. The Abbot reassures his fellow monks that this is a great act of homage on the part of the humble juggler.

The one great talent that was given to him as that of juggling, and as a gift to Our Lady, he was performing for her to the best of his ability.

Soviet Movies In U. S. Protested By Veterans

Tilton, N.H. —(NC)— Another veterans' organization in New Hampshire has protested against the showing of Soviet-made motion pictures in American theatres under a program sponsored by the U.S. State Department.

The latest protest came from the Veterans of Foreign Wars, who expressed the belief that "Soviet propaganda films were purposely produced to protray life under communist dictatorship as it is not, to lull the American people into accepting the lie that life under the communists is not as bad as they have been led to believe."

THE VFW resolution said the organization "firmly recognizes the inherent danger in these films and the psychological effect on the American people."

Legion Lauds Palace Film

The National Legion of Decency has placed the 20th Century-Fox production, Inn of the Sixth Happiness, in its "A1" classification (Morally Unobjectionable for General Patronage).

This film's dramatic, artistic and entertainment values are superior, the Legion noted, and its moving story of the heroic spirit and tremendous courage of the missionary, portrayed in the picture, will be a rewarding experience for all who see it.

Because this film is an inspiring production of such extraordinary merit the Legion highly recommends it to the Catholic patronage of the entire family.

The film is currently scheduled at the Palace Theatre in Rochester.
