The suit was brought by Judge Maynard to recover the sum of $91,000 interest upon revenue bonds issued in 1861 to defray the expenses of equipping thirty-eight regiments for the defense of the Union. The principal has already been paid, but this suit was for the interest. The second suit was for actual money taken from the canal fund and expended for the same purpose. CANADA IN MOURNING.

SIR JOHN MACDONALD, THE GREAT STATESMAN, IS DEAD.

The Dictator of British North America Will Suffer no More—His Death Due to a Stroke of Apoplexy—The Wife and Family of the Dead Chieftain Remain by His Bedside to the Last.

OTTAWA, June 8.—Sir John A. Macdonald, the great Canadian statesman, is dead, and the whole dominion is in mourning for the loss of the noble chieftain.

No place in Canada feels the loss so keenly as does Ottawa, where the face of Sir John A. Macdonald has, for so many years, been a pleasing figure both in national and social affairs. His name for years has been a household word in all parts of the dominion, and his word has been the national policy. The struggle of the aged premier for the last ten days between life and death created the deepest interest in all parts of the civilized world, and for three days previous to his death the end was hourly expected. He became unconscious several hours before the end came, and remained in this condition to the last. The pulse fluttered, the breath came shorter, and then all was still.

Lady Macdonald stood by the side of her noble husband to the last moment, and around her gathered the members of the family. Her face showed traces of the weary watching and the long suspense. She bore up bravely.

SIR JOHN MACDONALD.

When the announcement of Sir John's death was made the bells of the city were tolled to convey the intelligence to the thousands who were anxiously awaiting this signal that their beloved premier was no more.

Queen Victoria cabled from Balmoral to the governor general that she was deeply pained to learn of Sir John's death, which she regarded as a great loss to Canada and the sovereign.

Sir Charles Tupper also cabled a message of sympathy from Vienna. Other messages were received from Lord Salisbury and scores of notables in England.

THE DEAD STATESMAN.

The Remains of the Late Sir John Macdonald Taken to Kingston.

KINGSTON, Ont., June 11.—The special train bearing the remains of the late Sir John Macdonald arrived here shortly before 9 o'clock last night. Accompanying the remains were the privy councillors and a few other gentlemen and the press representatives.

The train of the members of the senate and house of commons arrived here this morning.

The remains were borne to the city hall where in the public hall they were placed on a catafalque trimmed with heavy folds of cashmere and with ostrich feathers on the four corners.

The city hall is magnificently draped. The city is in heaviest mourning, all the buildings being draped in black.

All the stations and engines of the Canadian Pacific railroad, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, are draped in mourning. In every city and town throughout the Dominion bells were tolled during the progress of the funeral procession at Ottawa yesterday, and where there were field battery or garrison guns, five-minute guns were fired. Today is a day of mourning in many cities and towns of the country.

AN ALLIANCE SCHEME.

They Will Do a Banking Business Among Themselves in Kansas.

TOPEKA, Kan., June 8.—The executive committee of Kansas is considering a scheme which practically places the subtreasury plan of the National Farmers' Alliance in the hands of private capitalists. J. C. Hopkins, who was a delegate from the New York Economic club at the Cincinnati convention is the originator of the scheme.

The plan is to establish a bank in each county of the state under the direction of the local Alliance exchange. The capital stock is to be furnished by private subscription. In connection with each bank an elevator or store-house is to be built.

A farmer may then dump his grain, corn or cotton into the house, receiving for it a check for 80 per cent. of the value of the grain deposited by paying a small percentage for storage insurance. He will be allowed to keep his grain in the depository until such time as he may deem it best to place it upon the market. The amount of produce deposited in this way must not exceed the amount of stock subscribed for the bank. The checks to be issued by these banks are peculiarly devised and are printed in colors. These checks are made payable in gold or silver at any of the banks run in this manner. It is intended they shall be calculated as money.

A Victim of Bright's Disease.

NEW YORK, June 10.—Russell Hotchkiss Hoadley, of the firm of Hoadley & Co., commission merchants, of 77 William street, died somewhat unexpectedly from Bright's disease. Mr. Hoadley was a man of large wealth and was well known in business circles down town. He was about 56 years of age.

Mrs. Frances James Dead.

EAU CLAIRE, Wis., June 10.—The widow of the late George Payne Rainsford James, Mrs. Frances James, died here yesterday. Her husband was the prominent English novelist and historian. He died thirty-one years ago at Venice.
