Off The Record

Like Blue

By SUZANNE WIGG

One of the most interesting musical collaborations is that of Andre Previn and David Rose. The latest album release by these two is called "Like Blue." It is a follow-up to their first album called "Like Young." The clever jazz improvisations of pianist Andre Previn accompanied by the smooth, lush, colorful arrangements of David Rose make for a most unique sound.

David Rose's music and Andre Previn's piano versatility were beautifully accepted all over the world in the first album and it looks as if this second one will equal, if not surpass its predecessor.

This time they chose songs of a blue and melancholy nature such as "Little Girl Blue," "The Blue Room," "Born To Be Blue," "Serenade In Blue" and a couple of originals, "Like Blue," and "Blue Holiday." There are many pleasant moments between the covers of this album.

SINCE LAWMEN and gunfighters first rode into the television channels a couple of seasons back, the sounds of hooves and gunshots have been heard regularly in millions of living rooms across America. Just as regularly heard are the musical themes that usher in our daily dose of rustlers, redskins and rawhide. Most of the music is terse musical statements that set the stage for two-fisted action.

Conductor and arranger Marty Gold has selected several of these folksy themes and translated them into timely swing terms for a hard-driving dance band. The album is called "Swingin' West" and is recorded on RCA Victor. The result is rather strange since no one ever thinks of the west as swingin' but the album crackles with excitement and is much more swingin' than western. Some of the jazzy cowpokes represented on the album are Paladin, Bat Masterson, Wyatt Earp, The Texan, and Maverick.

PETE FOUNTAIN is a jazz clarinetist who blows the sweetest and speediest New Orleans dixie type jazz in the world. Pete started out in New Orleans but a stroke of success brought him to New York where he starred on the Lawrence Welk show. Now he has returned to his beloved home of creole jazz in order to preserve this magnificent musical species.

Decca records has just released an album called "Pete Fountain Day." It was recorded in actual performance at the Municipal Auditorium in New Orleans in celebration of the return of Pete Fountain. With a good solid rhythm backing of piano, bass and drums, Pete walks, runs and strolls through such jazz renditions of "I Got Rhythm," "Ja-Da," "Shine," "China Boy," "Tiger Rag" and "S'Wonderful."

This is the kind of clarinet playing that one does not believe on first hearing. Pete is impeccable in the output of tone, tonguing and fingering.

"AFTER SIX" is an album put out by MGM starring the pianist, Dick Hyman and his trio. This is a real cocktail type of piano which is smooth, interesting and inclusive to good conversation. Dick Hyman does some fine improvising with some good standard tunes such as "Tonight," "Summer Love," "Let's Get Away From It All," "I Kiss Your Hand, Madame," "Top Hat, White Tie and Tails" and many others. This is the kind of music one could enjoy as background music for a party or listen to with interest.

At Our House . . .

Neighborliness

By MARY TINLEY DALY

A friend, returning from New York where she had left her daughter's young household, echoes the sentiments of many of us grandmothers:

"Jane has such wonderful neighbors!" she said. "They take a real interest in helping when help is needed. I don't worry about Jane and her babies because those neighbors are always ready in an emergency. God bless them!"

We have noted, with admiring appreciation, that the same situation exists in general throughout the U.S.A. 1960 — young people capable of and willing to give a helping hand in times of stress. We have seen it demonstrated in the small town where [illegible] in our own metropolitan center — recently for [illegible] Johnny and their family.

WHEN IT HAPPENS in New York, a "cold" place judged by contemporary standards, and in any city where, it is believed, "one could live and die and the folks in the next apartment wouldn't know anything about it"—well, the trend is noticeable.

This sense of charity is, to our way of thinking, an encouraging sign and one which the sociologists with their dire warning about "the culture of the day" may not have sufficiently noted.

In spite of "the crack in the picture window", the Organization Man, the "regimentation of suburbia", the fellows in their gray flannel suits and their indelible indoctrination by Madison Avenue, the moans that young husbands are becoming domesticated slaves, that young wives are restless and discontented — we still think that the young marrieds of our country are, on the whole, a splendid, unbeat generation.

They, and their children, will be the leaders of the 21st century. What memories will those youngsters have of their early childhood? They will remember that mother cooked and helped those nearby when there was illness, death, or a family emergency; that father was ready to shovel snow or drive on errands.

THEY WILL remember, too, that "When Mommie went to get a new baby", they were cared for by a friendly neighbor during gaps in which there was no regular household help. The same happened when Mommie and the new baby came home.

"Mutual insurance?"

Of course. But it's far more than that. This "mutual insurance" brings in the human element. One cannot care for a friend's family during a time of temporary need simply because it guarantees care for one's own during a similar emergency. Human beings are not set up to be that coolly calculating. Temporary mamas, temporary cooks, become permanent friends.

And the spirit of "doing a little something to give a hand" becomes a way of life by which charity — "the greatest of these" — finds its place within the very character of the giver.

Speaking right now of the help-the-new-mothers aspects: There must be real, practical organization if the program is to succeed. "Program" sounds [illegible] title for this spontaneous, "give-em-a-boost" project, and "project" sounds just as bad!

At any rate, the young marrieds decided among themselves that it would be silly for everybody to rush in with a hot meal on the first day home from the hospital. (For one thing, how would the poor harrassed young father get all the pots and pans back to their rightful owners?) And so a list is made up. You work your way up to the top. Once at the top, you're elected to do the cooking, deliver the meal. Your name then goes to the bottom of the list. If you become a "taker" temporarily, your name automatically goes back into the place from whence it came when your temporary need is over.

AFTER TEN days, a family is normally on its own. If further help is needed, it is forthcoming.

Such systems are regularly organized in many places by Cana groups — "Cana Feasts" and the like. They are, in most parishes, sponsored by sodality groups.

In communities where Catholics are far apart, organization seems to spring up on a purely neighborhood basis: Catholic, Protestant, and Jewish families helping one another — for proximity is an important item.

Whichever way it goes, it's the pioneering, neighborly spirit of the '60's — quite similar to the same charity that was extant a century ago, during covered wagon days.

New Buildings

Steubenville — (NC) — The first phase of an expansion program that includes construction of three new buildings will begin this spring at the College of Steubenville.

Shaw Comedy Slated At John Fisher

St. John Fisher College will present George Bernard Shaw's "Arms and the Man" on April 1 and 2 at 8:30 p.m. It is a romantic comedy set in Bulgaria a century ago. The sets, designed by James Griswold, will be done in an impressionist manner.

A Shavian hero in the figure of an enemy officer invades the home of a romantically-minded Bulgarian family, upsets the household, and wins the daughter's hand in marriage.

THE OFFICER will be portrayed by Martin Hamm; the turnabout daughter by Jean Cruttenden; her father, Major Petkoff, by Robert Kleinhans; Catherine Petkoff by Isabelle Schuler; Louka by Kathy Sheehan; Nichola by Gerald Locklin; and the Russian officer by John Philippone.

The sets were constructed by William Claus and Salvatore LaBella, and the lighting will be managed by Francis DeLucia.

Pageant Presented At Mt. Carmel HS

Auburn — The Sodality of Our Lady at Mt. Carmel High School presented a pageant retelling the story of the Annunciation on that feast day.

The program was prepared by Sister M. Aloysia, S.S.J. and Sister M. Bernita, S.S.J., sodality moderators, and the Rev. Robert Caruana, O. Carm., director of dramatics.

Narration of the scenes was by a speech choir directed by Diane Guarino. Appearing in the pageant were Eunice Bergeron as the Virgin Mary; Mary Fiduccia as the Archangel Gabriel; Patricia Murillo, Sharon Cuskey and Margaret Connors, modern girls.

The entire student body and faculty attended the program which also included a group chorus singing devotional hymns in honor of Mary.

What do YOU know about TAXES?

Now that it's just about income tax time again, here's a quick quiz—and the answers—on some tax facts that surprisingly few people know.

1 How much of the taxpayers' money has been used to put the federal government into the electric power business?

answer: So-called "public power" has already cost American taxpayers $5,500,000,000.

2 How much more are lobbyists for government-in-business trying to get?

answer: Pressure groups for federal "public power" are seeking $10,000,000,000 to put the government even further into the electric business.

3 Is this government spending necessary?

answer: No, it is not. America's independent light and power companies are ready and able to supply all the low-price dependable electric power this country will need—without depending on your tax money.

Very few of your friends and neighbors know all these important facts. When enough people know, you may be sure such unnecessary tax spending will be stopped.
