Utica Wins In Elmira Bowling Match

The Utica Grand Knights walked off with all the top honors at the first Central New York Chapter K. of C. Bowling Tournament held Sunday at the K. of C. Lanes, Elmira.

The Utica quintet dramatically waited until the final shift of the day to edge a team from East Rochester by a mere two pins to win the huge chairman's trophy. The winning total was 2929.

Utica teammates also won trophies for individual performances in single game and 3-game categories.

FOURTEEN TEAMS were entered in the tournament, including teams from Rome, Utica, East Rochester, Westvale, Ithaca and Corning. The sponsoring council, Elmira 229, entered four teams.

Willis I. Larrabee, Elmira Council deputy grand knight, was tournament chairman. Thomas F. Coggins, a past grand Knight of Elmira Council, is chairman of the Central New York Chapter.

Consolation prizes were won by three Elmirans, Bob Wrigley, Vic Barone and Tom Heffron.

A HAM DINNER was served participants in the Columbian Center hall room, following the tournament action.

The award presentations were made at the dinner by Chairman Larrabee.

Elmira Grand Knight Frank J. Kulak and Chapter Chairman Coggins spoke at the dinner.

Fists fly at Aquinas Mission Bouts

Two Champs Retain Crown In Aquinas Mission Bouts

Andy Boyd and Tony Ventura retained their fistic titles in Aquinas Institute's Mission Bout finals at the Rochester Community War Memorial before 3,500 fans last Saturday night.

In the flyweight division, Ventura won his second championship by outclassing Dave Santora. Boyd decisioned Jim Stacy to retain his crown in the bantamweight class.

Joe Colsianni, light heavyweight champ, fell by the wayside when he dropped a three-round decision to Bob Mirguet.

The John Toscano-Art Zazzaro go was a bruising battle from the opening bell. Toscano came out the victor.

FIGHT OF NIGHT trophy was awarded for a superb performance of boxing skill to Lou Andolino and John Cappello. By defeating Cappello, Andolino regained his crown lost last year.

Sophomore Mike Beurman, making his initial bid in the Mission Bouts walked off with the coveted Hickok Trophy as Fighter of the Night.

Who Knows About the Irish?

The Ancient Order of Hibernians is attempting to compile a complete history of the organization in the Rochester Diocese. Before the turn of the century very little is known or remembered.

The original charter was given to the Rochester chapter in 1853. In the early years of activity, little information seems available.

Are you one of our older citizens with a good memory? Have you a scrapbook or photos in the attic?

If so, you are asked to contact John Lavery, 196 Fulton Avenue, Rochester 13, or call GLenwood 3-0614.

Conservative English Slow On Liturgy

By JOHN A. GREAVES

London — (NC) — Traditional conservatism, apathy and lack of money are preventing Britain today from taking its full part in the liturgical revival sponsored by the Holy See.

The small group of some 2,000 enthusiasts backing the movement are split into several independent societies without a national bishops' consultation to coordinate their work.

AS THE MOVEMENT grows, with the younger generations more easily accepting its innovations, experts see the increasing need for a national liturgical center in the London area with a qualified fulltime staff including clergy and musicians.

But here, as in every Catholic development in Britain, the problem is largely one of finances, since essential needs — the schools in particular — absorb all available funds.

Some think the whole movement might be taken over by one of the major religious orders, such as the Dominicans who have pioneered in France or the Benedictines in the United States. The order could coordinate the work of the various lay societies, centralize finance, organize conferences, lectures, demonstrations and training and publicize the whole movement in an attractive national magazine covering all its aspects.

Considerably less than 50 per cent of the 1,300 parishes of England and Wales, according to reliable estimates, have so far adopted the practice of having even one dialogue Mass on Sundays, though the practice is spreading from month to month.

Britain is one of the few countries in the English-speaking world, and indeed in the whole Church, that have not yet introduced the mother tongue into the administration of the sacraments.

Britain has been bedevilled too long by the Protestant Reformation — some 400 years of the most skillful "brain washing" ever carried out before communism — and the Anglican monopoly of Bible English has tended to make Latin a touchstone of orthodoxy.

Less Anticlericalism

Hostility Dips In Uruguay

Montevideo — (NC) — Government hostility toward the Church in this traditionally anticlerical country was completely "blotted out" during the past year, its outgoing President said here.

In his message to Parliament marking the end of his eight-year term as President of the National Council, Martin Echegoyen also said that the government has begun to seek Church cooperation to help preserve and protect the people's morals.

Mr. Echegoyen is the first Uruguayan President in this century to speak of the Church in such friendly terms.

He came to office in March, 1959, following an election that brought the Blanco (White) party to power and ended 93 years of rule by the anticlerical Colorado (Red) party.

Mr. Echegoyen was President of Uruguay only in regard to ceremonial matters. The executive power in the country is lodged in the National Council, which is composed of nine members possessing equal powers. The presidency of the council — which carries with it the ceremonial duties of the national presidency — rotates annually among the top four of the six council members who represent the country's majority party.

That date of inaugural rotation falls between Church and Christmas, so this year it was Uruguay's first Catholic President, the Brazilian President, Juscelino Kubitschek, who attended the inauguration of Mr. Echegoyen. It was the first time in just a century that an Archbishop of Montevideo, the nation's capital, had attended a presidential inauguration.

Caution Voiced On China Bond

Washington — (NC) — Recognition of Red China by the United States would cause "terrible damage" to China, the free world, and the U.S., according to a Chinese Catholic scholar.

The warning against recognition of the Chinese communist regime is made by Dr. Paul K. T. Sih in a booklet, "Should We Recognize Red China?", published by the National Catholic Welfare Conference.

Dr. Sih, a convert to Catholicism, is director of the Institute of Far Eastern Studies at Seton Hall University, South Orange, N.J., and is the author of the recently published book "Decision for China: Communism or Christianity."

To the argument that recognition of Red China would be a "realistic" step for the U.S. to take, Dr. Sih replies: "Communist China in no way represents the will or aspirations of the Chinese people."

THE PEKING regime "came to power by force and continues to hold power by force," he writes. "It has kept itself in power by constant purges and liquidation of at least 18 million of the mainland Chinese in 10 years."

Only the communists would reap "benefit" from trade between this country and Red China, according to Dr. Sih. He states: "Red China is definitely oriented to trading with other members of the communist bloc and they only trade with the Western nations when it suits their political purpose and when it is made on their terms."

Recognition of Red China would not relieve international tensions, he contends, because "when relief is sought by concessions, new tensions are created."
