We are permitted to say that the subscriptions to St. Bernard's Seminary are coming in fast. The clergy are doing nobly and the total will demonstrate that the priests of this diocese are as proud of the seminary as their Bishop, and as generous as any similar body in the United States. Judging from the past, the laity can also.

Mrs. Catharine Kuhn died Monday at her residence, 59 Alphonse street, aged 60 years. She leaves five sons, John, George, Jacob, Frank and Andrew, and two daughters, Mary and Apollonia Kuhn. The funeral took place from the Holy Redeemer Church at 8 a. m. Thursday.

Last week brief notice was made of the death of Miss Mattie A. Dunn of 24 William street. The deceased was a young lady of sweet and amiable disposition, which endeared to all who enjoyed the pleasure of her acquaintance. She bore her sufferings which were great, with christian fortitude and patience. While her death is a sore blow to her surviving relatives they cherish the hope of meeting her in another and happier world.

Ann Coughlin, aged 94 years, died July 4th at the residence of her granddaughter, Mrs. John Weed 86 Cottage street. The deceased was born in county Cork, Ireland, and came to this country in 1842. She was for nearly fifty years a resident of this city. Mrs. Coughlin leaves three daughters, one son, fifteen grandchildren, and twenty-eight great grandchildren.

The closing exercises at St. Bridget's school were very creditable to both pupils and instructors. Mr. Henrich commended the pupils on their progress during the past term. He also remarked how pleased our good Bishop was on the department and advancements of this school. The following is a list of the graduates: Walter Craig, Francis Cullihan, Thomas Keefe, John Nelligan, Ely Kummer, John Clancy, Joseph O'Connor, Florence McCarthy, Martha Vagle, Flora Carrington, Libbie Carrington, May Stupp, Veronica Fraust, Minnie Donoghue, Mary Nelligan, Kattie McGurn, Kattie Doyle, Lillie Whitley, Mary Dean, Mary Baker, Mary Hart, Ella Howe, Helen Danahy.

At the entertainment Tuesday evening in Germania hall by the children of St. Michael's parochial school in honor of Father Pascalar's return, one of the prettiest features was a little play: "The Fairy Telephone, or the Little One's Search for a Welcome" given by Master J. Messmer and E. Langknecht, Josie Heindl and B. Stephany. A calisthenics drill by the boys followed and Master J. Messmer gave a solo "The Sailor Boy" in a spirited manner.

Rev. Fridolin Pascalar of St. Michael's Church has been absent some months in Europe. Last Sunday he returned suddenly and surprised his parishioners. Rev. John B. Edge of S. S. Peter and Paul's was celebrating high mass, when Father Pascalar's striking form passed up the aisle and into the sanctuary. In a few minutes he reappeared in his vestments at the side altar where he started to read a low mass. Many a hearty prayer of thanks-giving ascended to heaven from hearts grateful at the safe return of the beloved Pastor. At the close of the service, the throng united in singing "Grosser Gott." Father P. addressed the congregation briefly, stating that he had returned greatly improved in health. Tuesday evening the children of the Parochial school gave an entertainment at Germania hall.

The children of Mary of St. Mary's Church enjoyed an outing at Newport Tuesday.

A FLYING TRIP.

Ostende is a famous summer resort and watering place in Belgium. In the season of sea bathing it has about 30,000 strangers from England, Germany and France. It must be a gay place. The promenade along its beach is the finest in Europe—many miles long, and two hundred feet wide—paved with cement, brick and flagstones. A sloping wall protects it from the inroads of the North Sea. Along this magnificent promenade, are built splendid hotels, cottages, mansions, and public places of amusement, which must be an immense attraction to wealthy pleasure-loving visitors. There is one hotel, "La Fontaine," which deserves special mention from its association with names very dear to Rochester. "Chas. FitzSimons and family" appear on its register. It is owned and managed by Mr. Elleoudt, a brother-in-law of Father Notabaert. They were just preparing for the summer rush of visitors when I was there. The house was receiving the final touches of the painters outside and the artists inside. You enter from the main street, near the beach, by a large archway. In the center of the quadrangle formed by the hotel is a spacious courtyard. Here is a grove of trees with fountains playing and flowers peeping out from rockeries and miniature caves and grottoes. By climbing a rustic stairway and winding around projecting rocks, we land on a little plateau, redolent with flowers and cheered by the songs of birds in cages hung on the trees below.

The bed rooms (200 in number) look out on this and receive the cool air from the fountains and flowers. The dining room is an art gallery, showing superb taste in the selection and position of the paintings. The reader will remember the cost of provisions in Belgium. We wonder how this expensive kept hotel can afford to give its splendid accommodation and luxurious table for so reasonable a price as from $2.50 to $4.00 per day, even in summer. Americans make the mistake of confounding francs with dollars. If they would only calculate in American money, they would not begrudge to pay prices which are twice as much in this country.

Mr. Elleoudt and his wife are splendid specimens of humanity. Both speak English fluently, and their genial smile is doubly endearing to Americans, for Rochester is always on their lips. We hope to see them, when business will permit a visit to this country. They have been taught to avoid many of the incidentals and charges so annoying to the American traveler. For instance, in hotels we are charged for soap service and candles. That last word, which is "bougie" in French, sits on my memory like a nightmare. I always took care in France to make arrangements that the price should include everything. I rejoiced over my Yankee smartness, and dispelled the sickly pale flicker of my candle by lighting several and illuminating my room. I wondered, in Boulogne, why the proprietor smiled satanically into my apartment and sent up more candles and candlesticks. With an obsequious bow he remarked: "Monsieur must be a milord." I could not understand the nature of his infernal glee and gloating over my illumination, until he brought my bill at the end of the week. Great Scott! said I, what do you mean by this bill? Fifty francs for candles! Ten francs for soap! Here is my written contract with you signed, sealed and delivered. So much a day, everything included. Besides you charge me extra for sitting at a side table, where you put me yourself, and here—but I can't stand this any longer, twenty francs for extra service. What extra service? He simply shrugged his shoulders and put himself in the attitude of a bull frog going to leap and said: "Monsieur must pay this, and if he does not like my hotel he must leave immediately." His voice ran up the scale to a Bernhardt pitch, and to save a scene, the francs were paid, and my baggage removed to another hotel for a repetition of another swindle.

Bruges is a fine old city, the most piously Catholic in Europe. Here is a phial of the Sacred Blood of Our Lord, brought from the Holy Land by the Count of Flanders in the time of the Crusades. It is preserved in a chapel specially built for it.

Brussels is a beautiful city, the favorite abode of many English people of limited means. It is called the "Little Paris." It deserves the distinction, for it abounds in splendid streets, boulevards, buildings, public and private. It is a repository of art. Some of the finest sculptures in the world are in the grand museum. The paintings are bewildering in number and beauty. There is, however, one museum, that of Wertz, which is the most unique in the world. He was popularly known as "the mad artist." We shall give your readers a brief description of this wonderful and awe inspiring collection in your next.
