New Look For Aquinas Bouts

By WHIT JOHNSON

The Annual Mission Bouts sponsored by Aquinas Institute will have a new look this year and some long-time fight fans will find it somewhat nostalgic. After 17 years in the "big leagues" the Mission Bout finals will return home to the Dewey Avenue school. Since 1947, when the Bouts outgrew the Aquinas gymnasium, they have been held, first at the old Sports Arena and, more recently, at the Community War Memorial. This year they will be in the Aquinas Auditorium.

The Cinderella story of the Bouts started some 27 years ago when a pair of classroom battlers put on the gloves and the rest of the school turned out to watch. Dr. Nicholas Iuppa, Jerry Flynn, Abe Raff, Johnny Mastrella and Max Russer could tell a lot about those early days of Aquinas boxing because they were in on it right from the beginning.

Over the years the Mission Bouts have contributed thousands of dollars to Catholic Missions at home and abroad. Beneficiaries have spanned from Africa to China. In between have been contributions to Brazil, Mexico, Texas, France, the Philippines and Formosa. And most of the recipients have been Aquinas graduates.

That's where the money goes. But Frank "Hunk" Vadas, who is in charge of whipping the fighters into shape, talks about what the Bouts do for the boys.

"These Bouts really make men out of boys," Hunk says. "I think that's the real satisfaction I see in my work with the kids. We've noticed at Aquinas that the boys who fight in the Mission Bouts are among the best behaved in the school. And that goes for after they graduate too. When a boy knows how to defend himself, he doesn't have to be one of the loud-mouthed wise guys going around with a chip on his shoulder. The Mission Bouters know how to fight. And they don't have to prove it either."

The Bouts have come a long way during the ensuing years. In 1940 the champion of the school was Moose Landry. The late Moose, who was killed in World War II, won the heavyweight crown in a decision over Elmer Nacca that year. Last year Elmer's son, Joe, walked off with the heavyweight championship.

By 1947 the Mission Bout crowds were up to 1,400 for the finals and a new location was needed. The Sports Arena answered the need until the War Memorial was opened. By 1957 the crowds numbered more than 5,000.

Although the attendance was down to 4,000 in 1962, the Bouts reached new heights with the guest appearance of four fight greats: Sonny Liston, Mickey Walker, Jersey Joe Wolcott and Carmen Basilio. All four ex-world champions took their turn as third man in the ring.

And so in 1964 the Mission Bouts find another location and this time it is back home. Maybe it was the death of Benny (Kid) Paret; maybe Cassius Clay has undermined boxing's glamour — whatever the reason, the crowds have fallen off and there is no need for the Memorial.

But this doesn't mean there is any less enthusiasm among the youngsters at Aquinas. This year a record number of boys turned out to take part in the boxing program. So many, in fact, that the finals will be held on two evenings, April 3 and 4.

Rev. John Neary, C.S.B., mission moderator and former Mission Bout champion, says, "It does these boys a lot of good to know they can take care of themselves. Hunk Vadas has them in good shape. He does wonders for them."

Also playing a major role in training fighters this year is Father Neary's brother, Mr. Emmett Neary, a Basilian scholastic and one of Aquinas' all-time great fighters. In 1956 and 1957 he successfully defended his crown and was proclaimed outstanding Mission Bout boxer. Following graduation he enrolled at St. Michael's College in Toronto and became Canadian Collegiate Champion.

When Lou Spiotti enters the ring on April 4 he will be yet another in a long succession of Aquinas students who have one purpose in mind: to win an Aquinas Mission Bout championship, one of the most coveted prizes in the large and happy kingdom of boys who participate in amateur boxing in the Rochester area.

LOU SPIOTTO

More than 700 attended the annual Mount Carmel Sports Night program Sunday night featuring Rocky Marciano, retired undefeated heavyweight boxing champion of the world. A few of the many who were present: Left to right: Mayor Maurice I. Schwartz; Art Foster, Mount Carmel Athletic director; Marciano; Harold Weaver, general chairman; Rev. Mark Liska, O. Carm., moderator of the Men's Club of Mount Carmel, sponsors of the night; Al Kelley, Hobart College football coach; Jack Procino, Auburn sports enthusiast; and Leo Pinckney, sports editor of the Auburn Citizen Advertiser.

Rocky Marciano Featured At Auburn Sports Dinner

Auburn—About 700 persons crowded Mount Carmel High School Gymnasium, Auburn, for the annual sports dinner, Sunday evening, March 22. Guest speaker was the former world heavyweight champion, Rocky Marciano. Marciano gave a round by round description of the Clay-Liston fight and answered questions from the crowd regarding the fight and his personal career.

He mentioned that he had been offered two million dollars to fight Clay but he turned it down because he felt it unfair to the fans to make a comeback just for money.

He said that he thought a Patterson-Clay match would be a good one.

Billy Hassett, former Notre Dame All-America basketball player and NBA star, served as master of ceremonies.

After brief welcoming remarks by Mayor Schwartz, MC Hassett introduced the guests at the head table.

Taking a bow were Bob Shawkey, former New York Yankee pitcher and manager; Arthur (Babe) Cranfield, runnerup to the World Rocket Billiard championship last week in New York City; Rocco Pirro, ex-Catholic University football star and now offensive line coach at Syracuse University; Jim Nance, Syracuse U. fullback and National Intercollegiate wrestling champion and Norm Rothschild, Syracuse boxing promoter.

Alva E. Kelley, head football coach at Hobart College, spoke briefly.

At the conclusion of the program Harold J. Weaver, general chairman, thanked the guests and also expressed his appreciation to his committees for their cooperation.

Proceeds of the annual dinner go toward purchasing athletic equipment for the various teams that represent Mt. Carmel High School.

Annual McQuaid Cage Clinic Set

McQuaid Jesuit High School's Sixth Annual Basketball Coaching Clinic, slated for Saturday, April 4, will feature Paul Walker, the Middletown, Ohio, coach who helped develop pro star Jerry Lucas.

Clinic directors George Monagan of Monroe Community College and Ken Jones of McQuaid are currently receiving reservations from all over Western New York for the 9 a.m.-4 p.m. session with one of the country's top scholastic mentors.

Walker is considered the dean of Ohio's coaches, with 28 years of experience, the last 17 of them at Middletown. It was back in '55 that Lucas came along to start a 761 game winning streak that stands as the high spot of Walker's career.

His teams have taken seven state championships while compiling a 340-69 won-lost mark. Five of the titles have been in the AA Division, where no other coach has won more than three.

Walker's talks and demonstrations will cover basketball styles in Ohio, his own brand of "Middle Magic," drills and skills, new trends in defense, and his Middletown team's defense and offense patterns.

Advance registration is suggested through Ken Jones at McQuaid.

C.Y.O. All Star Games Held

By FRED BUTTACCIO

Last Sunday before a good crowd at McQuaid High gym the first annual CYO all star games were held. In the first game the Southern All Stars led by Dave Helmbolt's 22 points crushed the Northern All Stars 68-53. Dick Newman was high with 15 points for the losers.

In the elementary all star game the taller white division stopped the green division all stars 44-25. The green stayed fairly close until foul trouble hurt them late in the game. Jim Brady had 17 points for the white team and Jimmy Deleguardia scored 8 pts. for the green squad. In the final game the western All Stars dumped the eastern All Stars 53-42. Dick Bell netted 13 points to lead the west while Mark Howland dumped 12 points for the losers.

After the games the awards banquet was held in the spacious McQuaid cafeteria where Rev. Eugene McFarland presented awards to the all star teams and trophies were awarded for the league champions, cheerleaders and diocesan tournament champions. Sacred Heart and St. Thomas had the edge on taking trophies home.

Joe Gioia was general chairman. Mr. and Mrs. Gerard Sadler were in charge of banquet arrangements. This affair was a fitting climax to a season in which over 1500 boys and girls participated in both basketball and cheerleading.

Old Court Records Fall At McQuaid

Basketball records were fragile ornaments at McQuaid Jesuit High this season, with old marks being shattered at all three levels of competition.

The Knights, who presented varsity coach Ken Jones with a 16-4 record and the Diocesan Championship, missed the all-time 17-3 high set two seasons ago, but they did wind up as the highest scoring team in the school's history. A total of 1414 points for an average of 70.7 per game is the mark future Knight quintets will have to shoot at. A new single game high of 96 points was also established.

Individually, Lance Compa's 75 assists put him in the record book, and Compa combined with Bob Brady to help set a game high team total of 20. In the process, he tied the individual game mark of 9.

At J.V. level, sophomore Tom Miller was the recordbreaker, posting a new individual scoring mark. Also up there in the statistics were Craig Smith, Ray Sherbinski, Tom Gibson and Tom Blake. The Squires were 14-4 under coach Don White.

The freshman individual record also went by the boards, with Henry Enders hitting for 235 points. Enders also led the squad in rebounding, tied with Joe Connolly for shooting percentage (45.5), and was second to Connolly in assists, 52-42. The Pages had a 14-3 season under Jim McCarthy, with Jeff Gillenkirk, Larry Compa, Mike Rhodes, and John Koller giving Enders and Connolly plenty of assistance.

"Charity" In Spain

Madrid —(RNS)— Jose Maria Cardinal Bueno y Montreal, Archbishop of Seville, in a pastoral letter described by observers here as notably conciliatroy and friendly, called for charity on the part of Spanish Catholics in dealing with "our separated brethren."

He declared that "our security in the Catholic truth does not authorize us to decide as to the good or ill faith of those in greater or lesser errors."

In his pastoral, which was published here in Ecclesia, a leading Catholic Action weekly, the cardinal strongly stressed the differences which he said existed between the various Protestant bodies in Spain.

"Special difficulty arises from certain Protestant sects who carry on offensive proselytism," he said, contrasting the alleged behavior of these sects with what he called the, "correct attitude" of "Anglicans and Evangelicals."

Men Map Programs

Washington —(RNS)— President of diocesan Councils of Catholic Men pledged their groups to work for civil rights, federal aid to education and the elimination of poverty and other social ills facing the nation.

They also agreed to promote more interreligious meetings in an effort to understand the "other man's point of view."

The actions were taken by the President's Conference of the National Council of Catholic Men which met to plan the "renewal" of lay groups in the light of the Second Vatican Council.

Other steps taken by the lay leaders included: agreement to seek the integration of all Catholic organizations and institutions within each diocese, planning of lay conferences to explore racial issues, and other "open house" meetings in which laymen can express their views on various issues.

New School For Retarded

West Hartford — (NC) — Construction will begin shortly on a new training center for teachers of the mentally retarded, to be located on the campus of St. Joseph College here, which is conducted by the Sisters of Mercy. It will be the first on a campus laboratory school of its kind in Connecticut.

The Gengras Center for Exceptional Children will train teachers of the mentally retarded while at the same time offering specialized courses to retarded children. The center is being built with the help of a gift of $250,000 from E. Clayton Gengras, a local businessman.

Cheerleading Tournament

More than 500 girls participated in the Eighth Annual CYO Diocesan Parish Cheerleading Tournament today. Fifty-five teams from Rochester and the Southern Tier contested in four divisions for championship trophies.

Winners were as follows:

High School Section — White Division: 1st place—St. Margaret Mary Rochester; 2nd place—St. Thomas the Apostle, Rochester; 3rd place—St Salome, Rochester.

High School Section — Blue Division: 1st place — Sacred Heart, Rochester; 2nd place—Holy Rosary, Rochester; 3rd place — Blessed Sacrament, Rochester.

Elementary School Section—Yellow Division: 1st place—St. Monica, Rochester; 2nd place—St. Mary's, Auburn; 3rd place—Holy Family, Auburn.

Elementary School Section—Pink Division: 1st place—Sacred Heart, Rochester; 2nd place—St. Michael's, Newark; 3rd place—Holy Rosary, Rochester.

The competition was directed by Helen Smith of the Rochester CYO staff.

Engagement

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Joan E. Roach, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Roach of Ridgeway Ave., to Daniel J. O'Sullivan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel C. O'Sullivan of Electric Avenue. A June 27 wedding is planned.
