

MADE AMBASSADOR.

Mr. Julian Pauncefote Elected to That Rank by the Queen.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—The state department has received official information that Queen Victoria has raised the rank of Sir Julian Pauncefote, the representative in Washington, from that of envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary, to that of ambassador and that his credentials as such are on their way here. Under the provisions of the diplomatic and consular bill of March 1, 1893, President Cleveland is authorized to confer the same rank upon our representative in London, and one of the most notable memorial services ever held in the legislature was over.

ELI SAULSBURY DEAD.

He Was an Ex-United States Senator From Delaware.

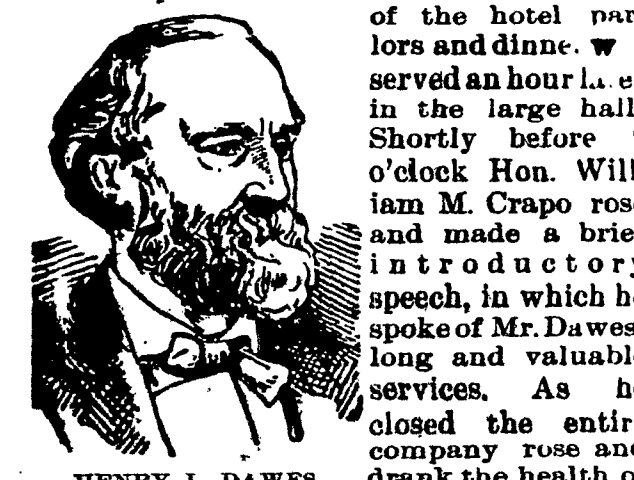

WILMINGTON, March 23.—Ex-Senator Eli Salsbury died at 12:15 o'clock yesterday afternoon at his residence in Dover. He had been unconscious since Tuesday night. As his bedside were his sister, Miss May, and the attending physician, Eli Salsbury was born in Mississippi Hundred, near Marshy Hope Bridge, Kent county, Dec. 29, 1817, and was a brother of Chancellor Salsbury and also of Governor Salsbury. In 1857 he was admitted to practice at Georgetown. He practiced his profession in Dover with considerable success until the legislature in January, 1871, elected him to the United States senate as a Democrat to succeed his brother, the late Chancellor Salsbury. He was re-elected in 1877 and 1883.

Senator Salsbury was a bachelor. He was the last survivor of five brothers.

HENRY L. DAWES BANQUETED.

Citizens of Massachusetts Tender Him a Substantial Testimonial.

BOSTON, March 23.—Hon. Henry L. Dawes was tendered a reception and dinner at the Hotel Vendome by his friends. The reception was held at 6 o'clock in one of the hotel parlors and dinner was served at 8 o'clock.

HENRY L. DAWES.

Mr. Dawes and then gave him three ringing cheers. George G. Crocker was then called upon and gave the address of presentation, and at the conclusion of his remarks handed Mr. Dawes a certificate of deposit in the Mount Vernon National bank of this city for a handsome sum, and a parchment on which was inscribed a testimonial signed by 147 prominent people in various parts of the state expressing their appreciation of his lifelong devotion to his state and nation, and requesting his acceptance of the accompanying certificate of deposit.

Mr. Dawes made a feeling response and accepted the testimonial as a tribute to a work that was past and from which nothing was expected in the future.

The Profit on Cigarettes.

New brands of cigarettes are put on the market with discouraging regularity. Dealers say there is no profit in their sale, yet no tobaccoist can afford to be without them in stock. One of the largest dealers in the city in all kinds of tobacco has made it the rule of his establishment that no cigarettes shall be sold on credit. Said he: "To sell a man cigarettes on credit is just like lending him money out of my own pocket. There is nothing in handling them. With cigars it is different. There is a good profit in them, and I will sell on credit to any good man, because I can afford to wait for the money."—New York Tribune.

All In One Day.

It is told of a well known Kentucky colonel that once he invited a gentleman to dine with him at Chamberlain's in Washington. Among other things ordered was porterhouse steak, with onions. His guest asked to be excused from partaking of this dish. "It gives me a bad smelling breath," he said. "Never you mind about that," remarked the colonel; "wait till you get the bill—that will take your breath away." The case with which the colonel changed from host to guest nearly took his friend's breath away. The bill did so completely. —San Francisco Argonaut.

An Early Taste For Art.

A well known magazine illustrator developed her taste for drawing at an early age. She was a beautiful little girl, who refused to talk to visitors, but it was often found afterward that she had occupied the time of their stay by making caricatures of the company on her slate as she sat in her isolated corner. —New York Times.

HUSTED MEMORIAL.

One of the Most Notable Ever Held in the Legislature.

ALBANY, March 23.—The memorial services on the late General Husted were attended by probably the largest and most representative crowd ever gathered in the assembly chamber. All the members of both senate and assembly were present besides Governor Flower and many other distinguished persons.

The arrangements were as good as could have been desired, the speaker's and clerk's desks were draped with crepe, while the galleries were tastefully but simply decorated with flags. Speaker Sulzer opened the services with a few remarks. Rev. W. W. Battershall of this city delivered the prayer, followed by the hymn "Lead, Kindly Light," by the quartette. Speaker Sulzer then introduced Mr. Depew, who delivered a brilliant oration in tribute to the general's memory. The address was listened to with close attention and heartily applauded. The quartette sang "Forever Blest Are They Who Die in the Lord," the benediction was pronounced, and one of the most notable memorial services ever held in the legislature was over.

Suspicious Illness Discovered.

HALIFAX, March 23.—The steamer Lake Superior, from Liverpool, which arrived here, brought 450 passengers all bound for points in the United States. Among the number were two cases of suspicious illness. The patients were removed to the Victoria general hospital, where they will remain until it is determined whether or not they have cholera. Dr. McDowell of Washington, D. C., visited the patients at the hospital. He does not think they are suffering from any infectious disease, but should such be the case he says it will develop within the next 12 hours.

Harris Seems Deserter.

SING SING, N. Y., March 23.—It seems as if Carlyle W. Harris had lost his friends, for no one has yet appeared at the prison here and claimed the privilege of an interview with him, as a friend or comforter, but the prisoners still maintain his confidence in them and expect good news, especially from his mother.

Fifteen Attempts to Suicide.

NEW YORK, March 23.—Miss Susan Trainer, 35 years old, of Hoboken, whose customary address is Snake Hill penitentiary, N. J., has made 15 different attempts at self-destruction during the last four years. The last was on Saturday night when she almost succeeded in hanging herself.

Could Not Survive the Operation.

PITTSBURGH, March 23.—Mrs. Albert Brush, who had the 100-pound ovarian tumor removed from her Sunday, died yesterday from the effects of the operation.

ST. PATRICK'S WORK.

ITS RESULTS UNEXAMPLED IN THE ANNALS OF THE CHURCH.

The Faith Which He Implanted in the Hearts of the People of Erin Has Continued Strong and Steadfast in Spite of Misery and Persecution.

There have been more learned and eloquent saints than was St. Patrick, founder theologians, saints whose labors extended to more remote regions, who endured greater hardships and sufferings, encountered greater dangers, but among them all there is no one whose labors have been more fruitful of permanent results—results which have never ceased to propagate and perpetuate themselves and are plainly visible today.

Countries in Asia and Africa and European Turkey, which once had been wholly converted to Christianity, are no longer peopled by Christians, but by heretics or Mohammedans. The once flourishing churches planted by St. Paul in Greece have lost the fervor and purity of their first faith and have become schismatic.

The peoples of Germany, of England and of Scotland were converted to the true faith many years ago, and the labors of the holy missionaries who evangelized them for a long time seemed to be productive of permanently enduring results. But under Luther, Calvin, Henry VIII, Elizabeth and John Knox the peoples of those countries were deceived, deluded and forced away from their allegiance to the holy see, and the vast majority of them now are either heretics or infidels.

But far different from this has been the history of the church in Ireland. The faith which St. Patrick implanted in the hearts of its people has continued strong and steadfast and bright and pure notwithstanding all the changes and vicissitudes through which that people have had to pass. In answer to St. Patrick's prayer that the faith of his spiritual children should never lapse the people of Ireland have never swerved from their allegiance to the holy see, never have been seduced into schism, never have been tainted and corrupted with heresy.

For several hundred years after St. Patrick planted the cross in Ireland savage tribes of barbarians swept like so many waves of a deluge over all Europe, devastating and destroying wherever they went and burying in one common ruin churches, convents, schools and every institution and monument of learning. During all this period of darkness and confusion Ireland, like a beacon light upon a lofty tower, sent forth the clear and steady light of true religion and learning over the rest of Europe. She opened her schools and colleges to students from every country, furnishing to them teachers and books and food and clothing freely and without charge. She sent her missionaries and scholars, too, into England, Scotland, France, Germany, Switzerland and Italy, establishing and rebuilding monasteries, convents, schools and churches.

During the reigns of successive English sovereigns, and, most ruthless of all, during the dictatorship of the hypocritical tyrant, Cromwell, the people of Ireland heroically endured untold and indescribable misery rather than give up their faith—St. Patrick's faith—misery, in every form that the human imagination can conceive, misery in every form that brutalized, fanatical bigots can devise and inflict. Yet all in vain. The children of St. Patrick continued steadfast to the true faith.

After this came the dreary period of the penal laws, which, abandoning the ruler methods of persecution, resorted to what with any other people would have been more effective methods, and which with devilish sagacity and cunning were intended to plunge the people of Ireland into an unquenchable abyss of ignorance, to degrade and debase and brutalize them and make them spiritless, cringing, abject slaves to their cruel oppressors, and thus totally destroy both the intelligence and the religious faith of the people of Ireland.

Fain would we briefly recount the story of this devilish scheme, planned with devilish craft and persistently prosecuted with devilish cruelty—how a price was put upon the heads of Catholic priests and schoolmasters, and how, like wolves, they were pursued and hunted all over Ireland. But to do this adequately would require a volume or several of them.

Suffice it to say that the plan, the devilish plan, has failed ignominiously and completely. Today four-fifths of the people of Ireland are Catholics, faithful, devoted children of St. Patrick, steadfast in their adherence to his faith, the true faith, indissolubly united with the holy see, the source and center of unity of the one true church of Christ our divine Lord.

And now, did space permit, we would gladly tell how steadfast and true, how devout and earnest, how unspurringly active in propagating the faith, have been and are those of St. Patrick's children who have migrated from Ireland to other countries. But reluctantly we forbear.

We conclude as we began. The mission, the work of St. Patrick, was unique; it is unexampled as regards its permanent and enduring results in the annals of all that other saints and missionaries of the church have accomplished. "Great and glorious St. Patrick"—Catholic Standard.

A Chinese Catholic.

Stephen Cheong, a Chinese Catholic, recently sailed for Hong-Kong from San Francisco. He went to the latter city 24 years ago, and since then has made a visit to China, during which he married. He is a convert of Father Vanderli, now a bishop of China. Going to California in 1869, he says he spent his years there without the privilege of confession. Father Scanlan, when in Sacramento, helped him to learn English. He was in the habit of attending mass at St. Peter's and St. Paul's, the Italian church, and at the French church.

A NOBLE CONVERT.

The Queen of Bavaria Was a Beautiful Example of Humility.

Marie, queen of Bavaria, widow of King Maximilian and first cousin of William, emperor of Germany, who died at Elbingen on the 19th of May, 1889, was a convert to the church and led a life of extraordinary piety. There has rarely been a prince or princess who valued less the earthly splendors of a great name and added more imperishable honor to it.

She maintained, says The Ave Maria, the strictest simplicity of dress and surroundings and was indefatigable in doing good, while she was so truly humble that she bore the bitterest humiliations with perfect resignation. Twice a week she went to confession, and at least four times a week approached holy communion. She could not be induced to have a special seat in the church, but insisted upon praying in the midst of the poor country people. "For," she said, "before the majesty of God all earthly greatness is as naught."

The Redemptorist fathers when conducting a mission at Elbingen noticed in the congregation one regular and especially interested attendant, who proved to be the dowager queen of Bavaria. The profound devotion with which she followed the exercises of the mission made a strong impression upon the clergy and was an example to the people.

On one occasion when the parish priest wished to take the blessed sacrament to a sick person it happened that there was no one to accompany him. The queen was praying in the church, and divining the need of the priest she went into the sanctuary, took the lantern with the blessed candle, and ringing the little bell led the way through the streets.

Queen Marie walking and praying before the blessed sacrament on its way to the hotel of the poor is a picture worthy a place in the gallery of the confessors of the faith.—Catholic Review.

The Outlook Bright For Home Rule.

Although the chances are not at all in favor of a home rule victory in the present session of the British parliament, yet it cannot be denied that certain straws have appeared on the current of passing events which indicate a growing probability that home rule will triumph over all opposition. Orange bluster is becoming daily more rampant, threats of armed opposition on the part of Ulster to Irish made laws are gathering increased volume, and Canadian orangemen are taking steps to secure cheap transportation to the Emerald Isle for the purpose of resisting home rule enactments.

These facts are surely pregnant with fair promise, but more than all this flustering imbecility the flutter in the dovetails of the money grabbers and the people on 'change and the bondholders of Irish securities bear witness to a general belief that the home rule will pass into law, and that the Irish parliament in College Green will soon be an accomplished fact. Clearly the outlook is brightening, and without a risk of being considered unduly sanguine we may cherish the fond hope that the year of grace 1893 will see the island of saints and martyrs freed from the yoke, degrading and oppressive, of alien legislation.—Church Progress.

The Teacher of the Ages.

Amidst the wreck of changing and changeable creeds stands out whole prominently the immutable symbols of Catholic faith. Undimmed by ages, that faith once bequeathed to the church by its divine founder shines out as a beacon light and gives warning of disaster to all those groping in the darkness of uncertainty and unbelief.

The lack of authoritative teaching, the clashing of many creeds, the charges and counter charges of heresy, are all apparent today among the sects. They grasp the Bible, and its interpretation as a guiding rule becomes a new source of contention. A teacher, a leader, is needed, but only a divinely constituted one can serve.

Where is such a one that is not only a teacher, but a saint also and a savior of all men, bearing the credentials of the Saviour of all men.

Need we name that teacher, that sanctifier, that savior? The reader has anticipated us. It is the holy Roman Catholic church.—Columbian.

A Crucifix Worn by Columbus.

Much interest has been taken by the committee in charge of the Latin-American department of the Columbian exposition in a crucifix in possession of a Mrs. Heffernan of Durango, Colo. It is said that the crucifix was once the property of Columbus and was worn by him on one of his voyages. The cross is about 20 inches long, made of some foreign wood and elaborately carved. The figure of the Saviour is of ivory, about 6 inches long and is a piece of beautiful realistic carving. Its appearance shows it to be of great age. Mrs. Heffernan, who prizes it very highly, has proffered to loan it to the exposition and also an old manuscript setting forth its history. It is thought by some that it came from one of the ancient Franciscan missions in California, but its history will doubtless be definitely traced and the question of its identity established.—Exchange.
