GREAT PEACE GATHERING IN NEW YORK HARBOR.

Arrival of the Caravels Off Sandy Hook. The Big Fleet Sails Up North River. Reviewed by the President—A Superb Marine Pageant—Columbian Hall at Madison Square Garden.

CHICAGO, May 1.—Ancient mariners and modern presiditgator were alike outdone when at noon today President Cleveland, in the presence of one of the mightiest multitudes ever assembled in the city, pressed the little button which started the machinery in motion.

The steady influx of travel which has been going on for many weeks past was made apparent when the gates of the great white city were thrown open to the public this morning and the crowds commenced to assemble.

All day long a constant stream has poured through the gates until at this hour the crowd assembled on the grounds is tremendous. It is estimated that at the present time fully 400,000 visitors are in the city.

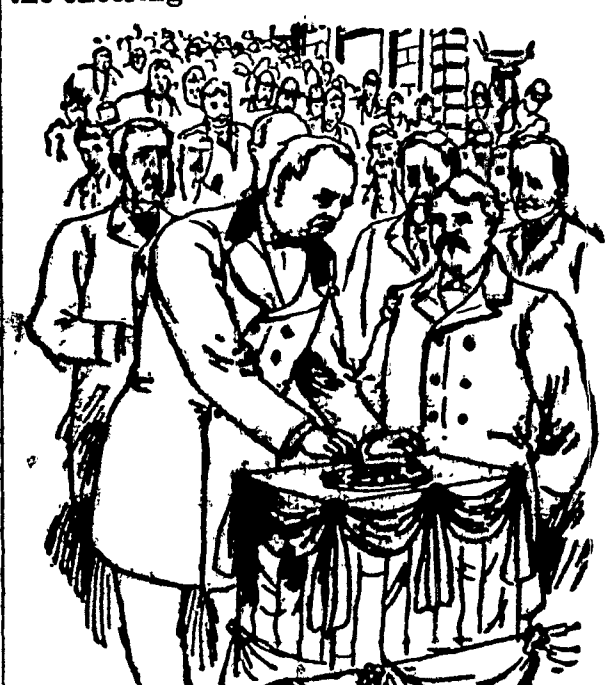

When the guns of the revenue cutter Andrew Johnson thundered out the salute of 21 guns in honor of the arrival of the president there was a general rush for the east front of the Administration building. A grandstand had been erected here from which the president made the opening address. The stand accommodated 2,300 persons.

The already dense crowd which had gathered around the stand was rapidly swelled when it became known that the president was on the grounds, and when the presidential party appeared on the scene with their military escort the applause which greeted them was tremendous and continued until the party had mounted the grandstand and taken their places.

Accompanying the president were President Higginbotham, Governor General Davis, Governor Altgeld and members of the cabinet, diplomatic corps, judges of the supreme court, members of congress, governors of states, national commissioners, World's fair directors, members of the board of lady managers, Chicago city council, members of the board of education, park commissioners and a select list of dignitaries, social, collegiate and official.

The scene at this time was an inspiring one. The Administration building stands at the head of the grand basin, which is 800 feet wide. Between the basin and the building is a big square, in which it is estimated were fully 100,000 people. North of the basin and running to the lake is another broad walk, fronting the Mines and Mining, Electricity and Manufacturers' buildings. On the south side of the basin is another walk extending along Machinery hall and the Agricultural building to the lake, both of which were crowded. To increase the accommodations for the crowds the steambarges and electric launches which are to ply the lagoons were massed in the basin and filled with people. On the bridges more people were gathered. On the peristyle and in the balconies and hundreds of windows of the surrounding buildings were others.

From the time the distinguished party left the Lexington hotel their passage was a triumphal procession. At every point continued and enthusiastic cheering greeted them and the entire trip to the grounds was a continued ovation and so it has been ever since the president arrived in the city. At every appearance before the public an enthusiastic reception has followed. All the time occupied by the party in taking their places on the stand the cheering was continued with increased fervor.

ing vim until the president arose and bowed his acknowledgement, when a perfect cyclone of applause went up from the thousands massed around the grandstand and continued until the president resumed his seat. When order was somewhat restored the program for formally opening the fair was commenced with the singing of the Columbian hymn by choros accompanied by orchestra.

A prayer was then offered by Rev. W. E. Milburn, D. D., in which he returned thanks to the Almighty for the great triumph which had this day been made complete and thrown open to the public, and for the peace and prosperity which had remained so long unbroken in the land so opportunely discovered by his servant so many years ago. He prayed that the blessings of the Almighty might continue to rest upon the land and upon the hand of the president here assembled, and the descendant of him who had been so instrumental in placing upon the Opening Exercises Witnessed by Thousands—Representatives of Every Nation Present—A Slight Pressure of the Thumb Works a Wonderful Transformation.

NEW YORK, April 29.—The past three days have been eventful ones in this city. Since the great fleet was first sighted off Sandy Hook New York has been in a furor of excitement and enthusiasm over the naval review.

It was late in the afternoon of Tuesday last when the Spanish warships towing the Columbus caravels and followed by the entire fleet of warships was sighted. They anchored in the lower bay for the night.

Wednesday morning the vessels lifted anchor, and after being saluted by the Miantonomoh sailed in two columns up through the narrow, past Forts Hamilton and Wadsworth, which they saluted with their big guns and were greeted with an answering roar from the forts. The fleet anchored shortly after noon in North river in readiness for Thursday's review.

At 8 o'clock the squadrons dressed ship and when at the signal the great vessels simultaneously hoisted colors it formed a sight well calculated to thrill the bosoms of the assembled thousands and called forth a prolonged cheer from both shores. All forenoon the shores became blacker and blacker with people as the crowds flocked steadily to the scene and preparations on board the vessels were carried on with great activity.

The fleet formed a beautiful picture as it stood stretched out for three miles with the two great flagships abreast at the head and the three Columbus caravels in front of them. As the fleet now stands at anchor it shows a double line of warvessels extending from thirty-fifth to ninety-fifth streets, each vessel 400 feet from the ship on either side of it. The port column consists of the home vessels, with Rear Admiral Gherardi, U. S. N., commander-in-chief; Rear Admiral A. E. K. Benham, U. S. N., commander of first squadron and Rear Admiral John G. Walker, U. S. N., commander of second squadron.

The formation was as follows:
Flagship—Philadelphia tender, Cushing.
First Squadron—Newark flag ship, Albatross, San Francisco, Bancroft, Bennington, Baltimore.
Second Squadron—Chicago (flagship), Yorktown, Charlestown, Vesuvius, Concord, Milwaukee.

The starboard column consists of the visitors and are formed as follows:
England—Blake (flagship), Magicienne, Tartar, Australia.

The Netherlands—Van speyk.
Germany—Kaiserin Augusta and Seeadler.
Argentina Republic—Ninth of July.
Russia—Dimitri Donskoi, General Admiral and Rynda.
Spain—Reina Regenta, Infanta Isabel and Espana.
Brazil—Aquidaban, Republica and Trandentes.
Uruguay—Libertad.
France—Arcture, Hussard and Jean Bart.
Italy—Etna, Benzen, Dogali and Eridono.
Chili—Captain Prat.
Japan—One armored cruiser.
Portugal—Corvette Alfonso de Albuquerque.

About half past one o'clock President Cleveland and the members of the cabinet went on board the Dolphin at Twenty-third street. His appearance was the signal for ovation.

The members of congress and their ladies were carried by the steamboat Monmouth, members of the diplomatic corps embarked on the steamer Blake. The Duke of Veragua and his party, General Schofield and Admiral Belknap occupied the steamboat General Meigs, while Governor Flower and his party with other high officials boarded the steamboat Slocum. The Dolphin quickly got under way, and followed by the vessels carrying the other officials steamed out through the fleet amidst cheers which were deafening.

The Dolphin moved up midway between the two great columns of war vessels and the real naval review commenced. As the Dolphin's bow came opposite each vessel's stern there was a "present arms," four flourishes, officers and crew saluted and the ship's band struck up the national air. At the last flourish the president's salute of 21 guns was fired. The president finished the review and the Dolphin came to anchor shortly after 11 o'clock near the Spanish caravels at the head of the line. When the Dolphin had dropped anchor the flag officers and captains of the combined squadron put off from their respective vessels and were received by the president on board the Dolphin.

The Columbian Hall at Madison Square garden was in respect to magnificence of decoration and arrangement and of the large number of world-famous guests present the most splendid ever given in the New World.

Besides the president and his advisers the chief legislative body of the United States and a Spanish grandee, who is the namesake and the lineal descendant of Christopher Columbus, there were the diplomatic corps, the admirals and subordinate officers of every great naval power in the world, governors of neighboring states and famous army officers.

The decorations of the garden were rich and elaborate, eclipsing in their magnif-cence and elegance anything ever before attempted in the great auditorium.

No precedence was observed, every effort being made to indicate that the ball was a Republican citizens' affair.

The Land Parade.

The little talked of and hastily arranged land parade proved to be one of the most unique features of the whole Columbian celebration and was thoroughly enjoyed by all the spectators.

The sailors began massing on Forty-second street, where the seven regiments of the New York National Guard soon after joined them.

First of all came the mounted police, followed by the engineer corps. Then came the carriages filled with distinguished looking veterans of the sea. It is not often that a landsman has a chance to see a real admiral rigged out in all his gorgeous uniform, but here was a whole group of them—cooked hats, medals, gold lace and all. True, they did not seem at home somehow in the open carriages, and the crowd would have preferred to see them standing on their quarter decks, but there was plenty of cheering.

At Madison Square a huge reviewing stand had been erected, and from it the invited guests of the day viewed the procession. The square was thronged with people who grudgingly opened up a line for the procession.

In the following order the parade passed the reviewing stand:

Mounted Police.
Details from the United States Army and Engineer Corps.
The Admirals of the American and Foreign Fleets, with their staffs and commanding officers in carriages.
FIRST DIVISION.
United States Sailors and Marines.
SECOND DIVISION.

Ninth Regiment.
Twenty-second Regiment.
Twenty-third Regiment.
Seventh Regiment.
Twelfth Regiment.

Naval Reserves, State of Massachusetts.
Naval Reserves, State of New York.
Continuing on down Fifth avenue the picturesque line passed until the great white Washington arch was reached. Here the parade turned into Waverly place and marched through to Broadway.

At the city hall the lines broke up, and the admirals, captains and all those who had been riding in carriages were received by Governor Flower and Mayor Gilroy. President Cleveland meantime had left the city.

BURNED TO DEATH.

Six inmates of a Tenement House Perish Miserably.
BURLINGTON, Ia., May 1.—An old brick tenement house at 855 Jefferson street was destroyed by fire and six of its inmates burned to death.

The lodging house was conducted by a Mrs. Judson. She and a young girl named Maggie Bailey were the only women in the building.

The lodgers were of the poorer class of laborers, and about 20 of whom occupied the various rooms upstairs. The building was a veritable firetrap, consisting of winding hallways and dark landings, some of the rooms being without windows. So quickly did the fire spread that the unfortunate victims were caught like rats in a trap. The names of the dead are:

Michael Hines, transient lodger.
Michael Lee of Chicago, stove-moulder.
John Morgan, stove-moulder.
P. G. Schumann, carpetweaver.
Joseph Swender of Burlington, plasterer.
Charles, boiler-maker, supposed to be from Chicago.
All were burned in a shocking and almost unrecognizable manner. One man's foot was burned off and another's body almost fell to pieces when removed.

TWELVE DEAD.

Indians and Others Injured and Hundreds of Cattle Perished.

GUTHRIE, O. T., May 1.—News from the scene of Friday's cyclone on the Cherokee strip is very slow in coming in, owing to the fact that rain has fallen all day. The streams are all up and many bridges are gone.

The death list, so far as reported is: J. J. Keathey, wife and two children. Mr. Jackson and two children.

Five members of the Little family. About a dozen Indians and many others were injured and hundreds of cattle perished.

Speer Gets the Argus.

ALBANY, May 1.—Justice Alton B. Parker of Kingston made an order declaring the election of William H. Johnson, William H. Cassidy and William McMurtrie Speer as directors of The Argus company valid, and ordering the present management to turn the property over to the above persons. Shortly afterward the counsel for the Manning interests filed a notice of appeal from this order to the general term.

Mount Washington Excited.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., May 3.—The town of Mount Washington is in a state of mind over the supposition that Roehl and Pallister, the murderers who escaped from Sing Sing, are at large in the neighborhood. Two suspicious looking men were seen crossing the Housatonic river at the Glendale bridge. Many persons think that these men are Roehl and Pallister.

John W. Forney, Jr., Dead.
PHILADELPHIA, May 3.—John W. Forney, Jr., youngest son of the late Colonel John W. Forney, founder of the Philadelphia Press, died at his home after a long illness. He was 47 years old.
