The celebration of the 100th anniversary of Auburn on July 3rd and 4th was a grand success in every particular. Heavy rains continued Monday morning and the first number of the two days' celebration, the school boys' parade, had to be post poned until Tuesday morning. The literary exercises consisting of a history of Auburn by John W. O'Brien and an oration by President J. G. Schureman of Cornell University was held on the afternoon of the third at the Genesee Opera House. A parade of bicyclists was held at night. About 600 wheels were in line, each being gaily trimmed and decorated. Chinese lanterns adorned the cycles and made a neat appearance, the illuminations being especially fine.

The second day's programme on Fourth was opened with a salute of 100 guns. The parade of the school children took place that morning at 11 o'clock and was the most interesting feature of the whole celebration.

The boys of the different schools had been drilled by members of the Wheeler Rifles. They marched from their respective schools to the city hall, from which place the procession started. The boys were drilled in companies, some schools sending as many as five and six companies. Each school was represented by flags carred by its pupils, every school having a different color. As the procession moved up Franklin street the girls of St. Alphonsus' school who were dressed in white and assembled on the high bank on which their school stands, sang patriotic songs in a manner that helped the brave little marchers along. There were about 1,500 boys in line and marched remarkably well and when by electric lights. at a distance the flags carried by the boys looked beautiful. Duels in France.

If the French duels were attended with as many casualties as a recent newspaper apologist would have the world believe, the population of "La Belle France" would suffer considerable reduction, for 8,000 men are shown by statistics to have engaged in what was intended to be "mortal combat" in that country during the year 1892. Of the 8,000 participants less than half a dozen yielded up the ghost on the altar of "personal honor."

Two of Bismarck's Biting Remarks. "In the tete-a-tete, "says Bismarck, 'a woman speaks aloud to the man who is indifferent to her, lov to the man she is near loving, and keeps silence with the man she loves." One of the squires of Oil City was recently called upon to marry two young people of that vicinity. A Sunday school teacher was trying to impress upon his pupils the care of the Deity for all living things, great or small, and getting to the peroration of his address he said: "The Lord who made the mountain made the little blades of grass. The Lord who made the ocean made the pebbles on the shore. The Lord who made me made a daisy." And then he wondered why the class burst into laughter.

A firm on Maiden lane received the following telegram one morning: "A musquito ill. Mrs. A. A---." They were unable to divine why the sender of the message should have taken them into her confidence respecting the occurrence. Personally they would have been glad to know that all the musquitoes were ill beyond hope of recovery. One of their clerks did not appear that morning, however, and his absence enabled them to put this construction on the telegram: "Amos

A congregation which contemplates building a church in Allegheny, Pa., held a meeting the other night to discuss plans and to provide a temporary place of worship. After a discussion more or less prolonged one brother said: "I think it would be well for us to hire Hanna hall, and I make a motion to that effect." The motion was promptly seconded, and then a brother who had not followed the discussion very closely arose and said: "I don't know about this, brethren. I'm afraid your action is rather precipitate. Who is this Hannah Hall?"
