Sudden and sad, was the death of Michael Delaney, which occurred at Niagara Falls on Thursday last. He was up in an observation tower about 200 hundred feet working. She was on her way to attend Vespers and a meeting of the Rosary and Scapular Society at St. Mary's Church. She had been in the habit of crossing the tracks for years and being deaf, could not hear distinctly an approaching train. There was no flagman at the crossing. The train which left Geneva after 4 o'clock arrived in Auburn about 50 minutes later and the flagmen were not notified of its coming. Mrs. O'Neill stepped on the track just as the train came along and was struck before anyone could get near to render assistance. The accident will no doubt result in a suit for damages, and as the crossing was unprotected, the family of the deceased have good cause for action.

Mrs. O'Neill was about 70 years of age and had been a constant attendant at St. Mary's church. She was well known and equally well respected by all who knew her. The funeral took place Tuesday and was attended by a large number of sympathizing friends. Rev. Father McGrath celebrated a requiem high mass.

CHAPLAIN ON THE MERRIMAC.

Death of a Priest Who Was a Hero in the Confederate Army.

There died recently in the city of Macon the Rev. Father Darius Hubert, who was chaplain on the ram Merrimac during her famous fight.

Father Hubert was born July 19, 1839, at Toulon, the great naval station of France. His father gave him a collegiate education, and on Sept. 23, 1843, when he was 20 years of age, he became a member of the Society of Jesus. After a few years in the churches of France he was assigned to work in this country.

As chaplain in the Confederate army he showed the highest courage of manhood and the manly gentleness of the minister of God. He was up and about at all hours of the night when most of the white tented camp breathed in slumber, for he had no thought of fatigue when there was good to be done. Strange to say, this life of activity served to build up his physical frame. Previously he had been very delicate and had suffered from frequent hemorrhages, but four years of life in the open air seemed to recreate the wasted fibers and left him at the close of the war strong and healthy.

The old soldiers have many stories to tell of Father Hubert's Virginia campaign. They tell them as they would tell them of any other veteran, for he was a much loved comrade, and a soldier every inch of him. When the army passed through Fredericksburg, Md., after a long march through brambles and bushes and famine and despair, Father Hubert's clothes were in such a tattered condition, dangling from him like so many rags—but honorable rags—that the good old man was forced to beg new apparel from the people of the town, as he knew that the soldiers were too poor to furnish it.

Father Hubert had in him the element that goes to make the hero—perfect fearlessness in the discharge of duty. The crew of the renowned Merrimac were under his chaplainship. When she had her famous fight with the Monitor, Father Hubert was on shore. Immediately after the fight Father Hubert sent word to the commanding officer, Admiral Buchanan, that he wished to come aboard and attend to those who needed his services. Admiral Buchanan came ashore and said: "Father, I do not wish you to come aboard. We expect to engage the Monitor again tomorrow, and it will be no place for you." "My place is with the wounded and dying," answered the brave priest. "But, father, listen," returned the admiral; "we are in a very disabled condition, and if the Monitor returns tomorrow I shall blow up the Merrimac, with all on board, for we are in no condition to fight and will never surrender. Remain on shore." "As I said before, my place is with the wounded and dying," replied the father. "If it is necessary, I wish to die with the men."

After the war Father Hubert returned to New Orleans and was made pastor of the Jesuit church.—Mobile Daily Register.

A Bad Girl to Marry.

A bad daughter seldom makes a good wife. If a girl is ill tempered at home, snarls at her parents, snaps at her brothers and sisters and shirks her duties in the household, the chances are 10 to 1 that when she gets a home of her own she will make it wretched. There are girls who fancy themselves so far superior to their parents that the mere privilege of enjoying their society in the home ought to be all the old people should have the assurance to ask. While their mothers are busy with domestic affairs they sit in the easiest chairs, go gadding about, read the latest novels and cherish the notion that they are persons of culture and refinement. The household drudgery is too coarse for such fine ladies as they. Girls of this sort are generally very anxious to be married that they may escape the disagreeableness of a home where they are held more or less under subjection. If she will not assist her mother in the domestic labors, is she not likely to be slothful and ill tempered when she marries? If she now thinks herself too good to work, is it safe to expect that her views as to that matter would radically change if she became a wife?—Index.

Endowments by Women.

Mrs. Fannie Summers and Mrs. Margaret Martin of Georgetown, Ky., have contributed each $10,000 to the endowment of the new Presbyterian Theological seminary at Louisville in the same state. Mrs. Summers will endow the chair of pastoral theology, which will be known as the Fannie Tucker Summers chair. Mrs. Martin will endow the chair of homiletics, and it will be known as the Margaret Martin chair.

Some Washington lawyers know a good deal about pensions. That is a complicated subject, and a man who is familiar with it has no time to be very expert in anything else. Some other lawyers are well acquainted with patents, but know nothing about pensions. Others know something of the land laws, but are innocent of ideas concerning pensions and patents.

The Press Claims Company can handle every class of claims against the Government with equal facility. It has at its command a staff of legal specialists so large that it is able to intrust every case to an attorney who is familiar with its peculiar needs. If you are a soldier entitled to a pension, or the widow or dependent relative of such a soldier, if you are an inventor desiring protection for your ideas, if you are a settler anxious to perfect your title to your land, if you are a sufferer from Indian depredations; in short, if you have rights of any description requiring the action of any department of the Government, your best plan is to write to the Press Claims Company, 618 F. St., N. W., Washington, D. C., and find out what to do. The company charges nothing for information and advice.
