MURDER THEATRE.

Mahomet the talking horse is without a doubt the most notable equine of the present age. Mahomet is a handsome brown stallion. He has been educated to a degree that does not seem possible in a dumb brute. He will talk a column to enumerate all his wonderful accomplishments. Probably the best of these are his examples in arithmetic. He will tell the number of months and weeks in the year, day of the week, the time of day by a borrowed watch, also add, subtract, divides and multiplies. He not only does this work for his trainer, but for anyone from the audience with the trainer's back turned. Give him the year you were born, and he will tell your age. Norton and Revelle will appear in a new eccentric comedy sketch; the Delmanning Brothers, excellent black face knock-about comedians, Miss Leith, in her original absurdity, "A Tale of Two Cities," Mr. R. Harty, expert juggler, as the "Ecceitii juggling water; Duncan, the ventriloquist, one of the best performers in his line.

The office of sheriff in a county like Monroe is one of honor and profit. It has grave duties and responsibilities. A man must have both courage and intelligence to do it well. Cured of Dyspepsia—Miss Augusta Peters is This Time the Grateful Person.

Some consider dyspepsia purely an American complaint. It is a fact nevertheless that a majority of Americans do suffer from some form of dyspepsia. Miss Peters was no exception. In her estimation, however, no one ever suffered as she did. Her case was, indeed, a very severe one. Consequently she correspondingly grateful to Dr. Freeman for curing her so quickly. Before taking treatment she could keep no food on the stomach—vomited after each meal. Belching of gas, bloating and pain were sometimes unbearable. She had no desire to eat, and soon became much emaciated and weak. She could scarcely drag herself around. She suffered also from headache, dizziness, chills and fever. What she wanted up was very soon almost like vinegar. Upon the advice of her sister and others, whose testimonials were seen in the daily papers, she consulted Dr. Freeman, of 105 Franklin street, Rochester, N. Y. In a few short weeks she became entirely well and desires to express her gratitude to Dr. Freeman for this public work, that other sufferers may know where to get relief. Miss Peters will be pleased to talk with anyone who may call on her.

The cost is only $5 per month for all diseases, medicines included. Office hours 10 a. m. to 3 p. m., and from 6 to 8 p. m., daily except Thursdays. Sunday hours from 10 a. m. to 3 p. m.
