He was at the end of the route and was preparing to return when he received a blow on the head from an iron connecting with the car. That struck him, falling on the track, the trailer passing over his body, killing him instantly. His remains were brought to his home Monday morning, and the funeral was held from St. Michael's Tuesday morning. Joe, as he was familiarly called, was a general favorite. The great featured this month will be the Catholic Bazaar held during Thanksgiving week in the old Dutch Church—soon thereafter to be consecrated as a Catholic church. To fit up this edifice and to make needed extensive repairs to St. Francis de Sales church have entailed a heavy debt which the congregation hope to reduce very materially as a result of the week's entertainment. Particulars hereafter. Nothing will be left undone to make it a grand success. Everyone should encourage canvassers by a contribution of some kind and otherwise assist in promoting the good work.

Failure Impossible

A New System of Treatment Practiced by Dr. Freeman—Its Wonderful Results.

The guarantee given out by Dr. Freeman, 109 Franklin street, Rochester, N. Y. to cure every case accepted for treatment or refund all money paid, has been in force now nearly nine months. During this time persons have called at this institute for consultation. Of this number 97 were rejected as incurable. Twenty four were taken at the request of friends with no assurance from the doctor that the treatment would be successful. The remainder, or 63 cases, came under the strict terms of the guarantee. With this large number of people suffering from almost every known disease—the treatment failed in two cases only. Just think of it, only two failures in over six hundred! Such remarkable results have never been known in medical history before. What has made such a record possible? Simply this: Nature has supplied us with a remedy for every disease. The Alkaloids or active principles of which, when given judiciously, make a cure absolutely certain. The guarantee spoken of above is still in force and will be for a limited period only, and holds good in the following diseases: Catarrh, Dyspepsia, Rheumatism, Bronchitis, Ulcers, Asthma, Seminal Weakness, and distention of the Blood, Skin, Lungs, Kidneys, and Womb.

The cost is only $5 per month for all diseases, medicines included. Office hours: 10 a. m. to 3 p. m., and from 6 to 8 p. m. in a specialty cabinet. Bursary hours from 10 a. m. to 3 p. m. Consultation free.

INQUISITION AND INDEX.

The two Tribunals at Rome that Guard the Purity of Faith and Morals. There are two different tribunals at Rome, to which is intrusted the judgment of books, pamphlets, articles and other writings referred to them as liable to a charge of endangering faith and morals. One of these is the congregation of the Holy Office, or Inquisition; the other is the congregation of the index, or Index, which holds the first place among Roman congregations. Its members are some dozen cardinals, more or less, selected by the pope on account of their knowledge of theology and canon law and their skill and energy in the transaction of ecclesiastical business. It has jurisdiction over a field of greater importance than any other tribunal whatsoever, for it has intrusted to it the guardianship of the purity of faith and morals throughout the Christian world.

The congregation of the index has functions closely akin to those of the Inquisition. It is altogether a later tribunal and was instituted to relieve the Inquisition of one branch of its multifarious business. When Paul III. committed to the congregation of the Inquisition the task of condemning books injurious to faith and morals, he made no provision for any sort of register or catalogue of them, whereby the faithful might be warned against their perusal. But in 1571 Paul IV., recognizing the difficulty that ordinary Catholics were under of ascertaining what books had been formally condemned and at the same time seeing the extraordinary literary activity of the party of Luther and Calvin, ordered a list of these forbidden books to be drawn up and circulated.

Plus V. appointed an altogether new and separate congregation of cardinals, whose special function was the examination of books which were large and with being dangerous to faith and morals and the insertion of them in the forbidden list. Any book thus catalogued was prohibited to Catholics, until it was duly corrected or correction were possible and the corrections approved by the congregation. No book is permitted unless some complaint is made of its pernicious tendencies and bad influence or because it contains a few incidental errors—Catholic Review.

The following extract from a letter written by a member of the high prelature is a very excellent pen portrait of the present pontiff: "He is a pious pope. Those who have had the happiness of assisting at the pontiff's mass in the private oratory of Leo XIII have borne away with them a never to be forgotten idea of the most touching and impressive ceremony that can be imagined. The intense recollection, almost ecstasy, of the aged, fragile, white haired celebrant and his wonderfully penetrating, clear voice are so profoundly solemn that his auditors are invariably strangely and intensely moved.

"Many a time have we seen Protestants and members of other sects, who, out of mere curiosity, have gained admission to this ceremony, moved to tears and press forward more ardently than his own flock to kiss and touch the hand of the noble and inspired looking representative of our divine Lord on earth. The little oratory by the mere presence of this high prelate seems to dilate into grander proportions than the most magnificent temple. So absolute is the silence, so deep the attention of the assistants, so adoring the attitude of the venerable celebrant, that a hitherto unknown idea of majesty and peace is given to those present which mysteriously enters the soul and can never be forgotten while life endures."

The Pioneers of Industry. In medieval times the monks were the pioneers in agriculture and other branches of useful and material industry, as well as the promoters of literature and science. They are so still. A band of Christian monks, driven out of France in 1830, settled in Ireland on the slopes of the Knockmeadow mountains on a tract of land regarded as utterly worthless. In the course of three years they built the magnificent convent of Mount Mellary. They have cleared 600 acres of heatherland, planted a part of it in fruit and forest trees which are in a thriving condition and raised on the remainder rich harvests of rye, oats, turnips and apples.

They have given, too, such an impulse to the cultivation of the land before considered uncultivable that upward of 5,000 acres which were waste heatherland are now dotted with houses and under regular tillage. 80, 100, in the Campagna near Rome another band of these monks have settled, and by their works of drainage and planting of silviculture trees have succeeded in establishing a convent and cultivating the soil, where on account of the malaria it was considered almost certain death to reside.—Catholic Standard.

The Knight Errant. Spirits of the old that bore me And set me meek of mind, Between great dreams before me And deeds as great behind, Knowing humanity my star, As first abroad I ride, Shall help me wear, with every scar, Honor at eventide.

Let claws of lightning clutch me From summer's glowing cloud, Or ever shall I touch me And glory make me proud. Oh give my youth, my faith, my sword, Choice of the heart's desire; A short life in the saddle, Lord! Not long life by the fire.

Forethought and recollection Bivert mine armor gay! The passion for perfection Reason my falling way! The arrow of the tragic time, From sudden anguish cast, With calm angelic touches ope My Paradise at last!

I fear no breathing bowman, But only east and west The awful other foean Impoverished in my breast. The crown thy in the end shall be, The inner best, the most; And may God lead me to the Night of the Dragon soul.

—A Roadside Harp.

Pope Leo's Present to Cardinal Gibbons. Rev. Dr. Frederic Z. Rooker, vice factor of the American college at Rome, who recently arrived in this country, was the bearer of the pope's letter and present in honor of Cardinal Gibbons' silver jubilee. The latter is a mosaic portrait of Leo XIII set in a frame of solid gold, studded with diamonds and precious stones. It was fabricated by the leading artificers of the Vatican and is said to be very beautiful and valuable.

Dr. Rooker brings also the manuscript of a Mass by Meluzzi, dedicated to Father Mossert of St. Stephen's, New York, whose mass was recently sung in Rome and attracted much attention.

The Good Shepherd. In the faraway eastern countries Where the mountains, green and grand, Tower above the stern old sentinels— Guards to a better land.

The crazy slopes are dotted With many a feeding flock, And here and there are the sheepfolds Built on the solid rock.

As we stand on the heights at evening, To gaze on the slopes below, The sheep look like fair white fleeces Like lilies, a blue as snow.

Settle banks of emerald, And up there on the evening air, There comes a low, soft tinkling, Like the vesper call to prayer.

As we gaze on these lowly shepherds It gladdens our hearts to see That the weary and faint and weak ones Are borne to tenderly;

That the young lambs are laid on their bosoms, And we think, as our eyes grow dim, If the lambs are so tender to those shepherds, How much dearer are we to him!

Mass to a Baptist Church. A very graceful act of Christian courtesy was that of Pastor L. T. Griffin, of the Baptist church of Long Island City and of his trustees in coming to the rescue of Father McGuire of St. Mary's church in that city, which had been destroyed by fire and offering the use of their church for the celebration of mass.

Father McGuire was deeply affected by the unexpected offer and gladly accepted it. As a consequence, the little Baptist church presented the impressive spectacle of a Catholic altar with the cross and lighted tapers taking the place of the secular looking pulpit and reading desk and the holy sacrifice of the mass offered up four times consecutively while the worshippers thronged the church and vestibule and steps outside.

At every mass the grateful Father McGuire took occasion to refer to the generous kindness which enabled them—the congregation—to assist at the holy sacrifice, though their own church had been swept away by the flames.—Exchange.
