MONSIGNOR DE REGGE.

VENERABLE FRIEND—Mrs. [illegible] and myself desire to add our congratulations to the countless others you are now receiving. Although outside the pale are we not as proud of our grand old friend as are any of the Orthodox, and rejoice just as heartily upon this happy anniversary.

For more than a quarter of a century has our magnificent Belgian oak lifted its stately head above us—offering shelter and protection to every unfortunate—and it is no wonder that Rochester rejoices when it to-day sees [illegible] towering over us as proudly as ever, and as solid and vigorous as the eight hundred [illegible] transplanted from the sunny slopes [illegible]

Germany is just now throwing herself at the feet of her grand old Chancellor and paying him [illegible] ages as a [illegible] before [illegible]

We here have a chance [illegible] I am sure has a heart big enough [illegible] May his anniversary equal [illegible] he equally deserves it.

With heartiest congratulations.

Ever sincerely yours,

COOK OPERA HOUSE.

The Wilbur Opera Co have been playing to crowded houses all week and the standing room sign has been displayed more than once. In view of this fact Manager Burns has engaged the company for the coming week. Monday matinee and evening and Tuesday evening, "Royal Middy" will be given; Wednesday matinee and evening and Thursday matinee and evening, "Bohemian Girl," Friday evening and Saturday matinee and evening, "Mascotte."

ACADEMY.

Manager Geo. S. McFadden, of "A Country Merchant" company, announces that the people of this city may look for a genial hearty surprise or two when they see his star and excellent company in McKee Rankin's latest play at the Academy of Music. Chas. Cowles, the Yankee comedian is the star. The play is strong and natural and the company exceptional, while also contains some clever specialties. Among them are "The Merchant Trio," Little Gertie Carlisle, the three Rubes, the dancing pickaninny and Cowles in his inimitable dances.

THE WONDERLAND MUSEE THEATRE.

Week after week the quality of the stage performances at the Wonderland Theater seems to increase, and the long list of talent which Mr. Moore presents for the next six days is certainly sufficiently strong and varied to suit the most critical. The Theater bill will not be behind anything ever seen at this house, and will be composed of such clever people as the Sisters Coulson, in their original idea of skipping rope and dances; "Harry Larose," the club manipulator; Ray Burton, the King of all wire performers; "The Primrose Quartette" and the inimitable comedian and minstrel, Harry Budworth. There will also be other artists of the cream of the Vaudeville, to Complete the list. For the Lecture Halls will be the "Genuine Coffee Plantation" in full bloom, a Chinese Duck pond, which comprises a flock of Manderian fowls swimming in a mimature lake, Signor Dodutta, the American Samson, and Labell Minnlespand her remarkable dog, "Lillie," which has been christened the "Human Brained Canine" will also be there.

Four performances are given daily at this popular house.

SOMETHING NEW.

OF INTEREST TO ALL AT SPRINGTIME.

The something new is not Dr. Telfair's wonderful spring tonic, but the fact that he has concluded to offer it for sale. He has prescribed and used it for years, results being so very lasting and good that many of those who have used it in the past have asked for more and compelled its sale. For the over-worked business man, the tired, nervous woman, for every body who is at all broken up by the spring weather, it is just the thing. The proprietors of the Telfair Sanitarium can supply it in pairs or single bottles, and can send it by express or delivery wherever wanted. The price is four dollars per pair or two dollors per single bottle. A trial will convince you that the Telfair Special Tonic is away ahead of any other you have ever used.

Party and Weddings invitations a specialty at this office.

CHARACTERISTICS.

This is told of Tom Reed's schoolboy days. "If anyone knows of any reason why these apples should not touch the lips of Tom Reed, let him speak now, or forever after hold his peace," said he one day right under the master's nose. And he gave a great bite at the first red-cheeked apple in his hand. Quick as a flash, out came the birch, and with equal skill at repartee, the pedagogue said: "If anyone knows any reason why this rod should not warm the jacket of Tom Reed, let him speak now, or forever after hold his peace." "I do!" said Tom. "Name it," replied the master. "Incompatibility." He did not get that whipping.

A sudden gust of wind took a parasol from the hand of the owner, says the Scottish American, and a lively little Irishman, dropping his hod of bricks, caught the parachute. "Faith, ma'am," said he, "if you were as strong as you are handsome, it would not have got away from you." "Which shall I thank you for first—the service or the compliment?" asked the lady, smiling. "Troth, ma'am," said Pat, again touching the place where once stood the brim of what once was a beaver, "that look of your beautiful eye thanked me for both."

To be photographed while you doze in a corner of your pew at church is one of the latest terrors. The kodak has made its way into the pulpit. An Irish clergyman, the other Sunday, during services, took a snap shot of his congregation. To thus steal a march upon sleeping members may be keenly resented by drowsy worshipers. Many persons regularly in the habit of sleeping during sermons stoutly deny the charge. In these disputed cases appeal may be made to the minister's handful of negatives.

TAKEN FOR THIEVES.

A Vigilante Posse Gets Into a Running Fight With Friends.

"A vigilante posse, of which I was a member, was once taken for a band of cattle and horse thieves," said Henry Burns, of Wyoming, lately. "There had been a large amount of thieving going on for some time. Cattle and horses disappeared like magic. About ten of us formed a vigilance committee and started on the trail of the thieves. We traced them for forty miles and came upon their camp a little before sunrise in the morning. They were asleep and easily captured, the sentinel himself having fallen asleep. After trying the cases and disposing of the thieves in the usual form in those days, we took their horses and started for home, expecting to find the owners of the animals.

We had gone about ten miles when we heard the sharp ping of a rifle ball, then another and another. One horse fell dead and one rider was shot in the arm. A running fight followed, as we supposed with another gang of thieves. They gained upon us and at their head I saw a man whom I knew well, then I realized that it was a posse similar to our own. We surrendered, mutual explanations were made and peace declared, but I will never forget being shot at as a horse thief.

Wife—Don't eat much breakfast, dear. I'm afraid of the cook. I don't think she's quite right. Husband—Great Cæsar! Not crazy? "Yes; she's been here two weeks and she is as respectful and willing to do anything I say as she was the first day."

A few days ago a man was pulled for beating unmercifully a poor old parody of a horse. When before the magistrate he struck out like this: "I've been in this country forty-five years, and this is the first time I ever met a magistrate." "Well, the introduction will cost you just $10," added his honor.
