PULLMAN'S VERSION.

THE PALACE CAR MAGNATE BEFORE THE COMMISSION.

He Gives His Version of the Strike and the Causes Leading Up to It—Searching Questions Asked by the Commissioners—Vice President Wicks on the Stand—Testimony From a Busk Manager.

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—The strike commissioners devoted a large share of the session to the examination of Manager E. F. Pullman, who was seen on the promenade deck of the steamer, shortly after she dropped anchor in quarantine. He evidently anticipated the reporter's questions, as the following note which he handed to those who greeted him will show.

"In reply to your questions, I can only say that all I have received, so many letters from personal and political friends in different parts of the state, urging me to allow the use of my name as a candidate for governor that now, that I am at home, I shall feel it due to them and to the Republican party, which has so highly honored me in the past, to give the question serious consideration."

Mr. Pullman was apparently in excellent health and spirits and enjoyed a very pleasant passage.

Good Templars in Session.

KINGSTON, N. Y., Aug. 29.—There are over 100 delegates in attendance at the annual session of the Grand Lodge of Good Templars and Secretary Andrews says it is the most successful meeting the order ever had. All the 716 lodges of the order in the state are represented and leading grand officials from other states are also here. Grand Chief Hooker was taken suddenly ill and was unable to attend the session. Grand Councilor H. C. Ford presided in his place.

Charged With Embezzlement.

SYRACUSE, Aug. 29.—William A. Pfeister, a former collector for the Syracuse Packing and Provision company, is under arrest in Bridgeport, Conn., charged with the embezzlement of the company's funds. He has not been here since Aug. 8. He will be brought back to answer as soon as requisition papers can be secured. It is said that there is a woman at the bottom of Pfeister's trouble and dishonor.

Back to Boarding Bay.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—The president and private secretary, Thurston, are on their way to leave Washington for Buzzards' Bay at the earliest possible moment. This may be Wednesday night or Thursday, the date depending upon the celebrity with which the president can dispose of the legends of legislation and certain other matters of business.

Macomber in Convention.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Aug. 29.—The annual convention of the Knights of the Macomber, with Grand Commander J. B. McDannell presiding, has opened here. The attendance is large, especially from the western part of the state.

MORTON REACHES HOME.

Intimates That He Would Accept the Nomination for Governor.

New York, Aug. 27.—Among the passengers who arrived on the French liner steamer La Normandie was Hon. Levi P. Morton, who was seen on the promenade deck of the steamer, shortly after she dropped anchor in quarantine. He evidently anticipated the reporter's questions, as the following note which he handed to those who greeted him will show.

"In reply to your questions, I can only say that all I have received, so many letters from personal and political friends in different parts of the state, urging me to allow the use of my name as a candidate for governor that now, that I am at home, I shall feel it due to them and to the Republican party, which has so highly honored me in the past, to give the question serious consideration."

Mr. Morton was apparently in excellent health and spirits and enjoyed a very pleasant passage.

East Enough.

In a certain church in Ireland a young priest was detailed to preach. The occasion was his first appearance, and he took for his text "The Feeding of the Multitude."

He said, "And they fed 10 people with 10,000 loaves of bread and 10,000 fishes."

An old Irishman said, "That's no miracle, Begorra, I could do that myself, which the priest overheard."

Fast and Present.

Belle—I can't bear to think of my third birthday.

Allice—Why, dear, what happened?

A Brain Straining Relation.

George—What are you studying so desperately this time of night?

Jack—A book of nautical terms and the language of flowers.

"Great snakes! (come crazy)!"

"No, I'm in love with the daughter of a sea captain and have to talk to both."

Food News.

His Idea of It.

An American (after the football game)—Tell me, how did you like it?

Spaniard—It is exciting, very, but does it not strike you as unnecessarily brutal?

Boston Transcript.

A Trap.

Mary—I'm sure I hear burglars in the house. Hadn't I better search murder?

Mrs. Newhook—It won't be necessary; I left those pies on the sideboard.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Friendly.

Mrs. Haughtel—Why didn't you stop, sir, when you saw me wave my hand?

Street Car Conductor—I thought you were throwing me kisses, mum.—Exchange.

FAREWELL.

FAREWELL.

FAREWELL. We two are still meet day by day. Liveable to be met. Two hearts are still grow green apart. Farewell.

FAREWELL. I have met you as the path they tread. Chances wide and small. And a dear traveler's fortune friend with me. And I am foreign in their thoughts the secret of my heart that they would find. Farewell. The end.

FAREWELL. Ever the bitter-sweet of our lives' rose. The bitter-sweet of our lives' rose. Ah, answer me, should this have been too close. To be together and to be under the tree? But yet farewell. —Augusta Webster.

BESSEMER ON BESSEMER STEEL.

Marvelous Quickness in Converting Cast Iron into the Hardened Metal.

In The Engineering Review Sir Henry Bessemer has an article on the steel industry which bears his name. He reminds us that a third of a century ago Sheffield steel made from the costly bar iron of Sweden realized from £50 to £60 a ton. Now, by the Bessemer process, steel of excellent quality can be made direct from crude pig iron at a cost ridiculously small compared with former prices and in quantities which the old steel workers never dreamed of dealing with at one operation.

Oratory and Wit.

"A curious thing about political oratory and wit is the side light it got upon one aspect of it years ago in Buffalo. This Mr. Cleveland is quoted by a listener: 'One morning a quaint looking old chap came into my office and said that he had read in the newspapers that I was to speak at a mass meeting the following night and wanted to know if it were true. When I told him that it was so he revealed to me a new method of gaining oratorical distinction. He ventured to interrupt my speech at stated intervals with a remark that should be agreed upon between us. To this interjection I was to retort wittily, and thus, as the old fellow pointed out, I would acquire a reputation as a witty speaker.'

Collecting Astor House Rents.

Possibly it is not generally known that the Astor House block has two owners, whose relations are strained, to say the least—John Jacob Astor and William Waldorf Astor. Although the rent of the hotel itself is necessarily paid in a single check, that of the stores and offices at one end of the building is collected by the representative of one Astor, while the revenue from the other end is garnered by the representative of the other.—National Hotel Reporter.

Just Discrimination.

Officer Phoneygan—It's thin you're looking, Mike.

Officer O'Morphy—Tis the fault of the chief, be hanged to him.

Officer Phoneygan—How's that?

Officer O'Morphy—Shure, an he put me on a beat with never a fruitstand on it, the discriminating blaggard!—Chicago Record.

A Great Problem.

"As we were going home from flying his kite," said Mr. Bozale, "my young son says to me, 'I know how to fly a kite when there's a good breeze, don't I?' and I say, 'Surely,' but I do not say to him—why should I burden him with such things now—that anybody can fly a kite when there's a breeze—that the great problem of life is to know how to fly a kite when there isn't any breeze." —New York Sun.

CLEOPATRA'S NEEDLE.

Getting the Obelisk Aboard Ship a Pretty Piece of Engineering.

"One of the pleasantest recollections I have to look back on," said Adam Johnson, "is the fact that I was one of the party that helped to run up the American colors over Cleopatra's needle when it was being taken down to be carried to New York. Our vessel was out in the Mediterranean with a roving commission, and we were at Alexandria at the time the obelisk was being moved. The big stone had been presented by the Egyptian government to this country, but the people were wild about having it moved. We had to place a guard around the men who were working on the shaft, and even then there was almost a riot."

"But that was one of the prettiest pieces of engineering work I have ever seen." The engineers who were moving our shaft had a couple of big wooden cases built that fitted around the needle like the pieces of wood around the leaf in a pencil. There were a couple of projectiles on each side of the casings just on the center of gravity in the shaft, like the trunnions on a cannon. Under these they put lifting jacks and just picked that immense stone off its pedestal, swung it around horizontal and then lowered it as gently as could be on a long sliding way, with cannon balls under it for rollers. They had a square hole cut in the stern of the steamship and slid it into the hull through that and replaced the sheathing outside.

TRAGEDIES ON TOMBSTONES.

English Churchyards and Their Deeply "Graven Accusations of Murder."

In the churchyards of Britain several tombstones exist with the accusations of murder, deeply engraved upon them. A stone over the grave of three children in Merrington (Durham) churchyard bears the following inscription:

Sleeping we were slain,
And here we sleep till we must rise again.
In Sandridge churchyard, Surrey, on the tombstone of a custom house officer who was shot in an encounter with smugglers is the following:

Thou shalt do no murder, nor shalt thou steal
Aye, the command of Jehovah did reveal.
But thou, O wretch, without fear or dread,
Or by treachery or by guile, shot me dead.
