In Manorhamilton, recently, a fire broke out in the house of a man named Fox in Castle street; which might have been attended with serious consequences but for the timely aid of neighbors. It appears that a boy about five years old; who had been left alone in the house, who was amusing himself with matches, lighted the curtains of a bed in one of the rooms. The flames quickly spread, and the alarm having been raised a large growd quickly collected and proceeded to carry water, and pour it through the roof of the house which was thatched. After been done. But for this prompt assistance the adjoining houses. which were also thatched, would probably have been burned.

At Altrington, England, six Irleh aborers were charged with the death. of Thomas Meakin, aged twenty, a native of Shropshire, employed as an agricultural laborer on a farm near Altringham In the course of drunken affray Meakin was stabled with a pitchlork, and died soon after. The evidence showed that the Irishmen had received great provocation. The jury found a verdict of manslaughter against John Gallagher, Patrick Durkin, and Patrick Galla gher, and censured a farmer's son, named William Duniel, for taking part in the affray. The prisoners were from Mayo.

It appears that the Tories of Sligo have made up their minds to continue the policy of aggression and insult against their Nationalist fellowtownsmen. They have lodged objections against twenty-one burgesses, of whom sixteen are Catholic clergymen. Of course, most, if not all of these objections are bogus, and will be scouted out of court, but this priest-hunting policy will not be forgotten when the annual Tory whine about the Mayoralty is raised next December. a place called Barnashangsun, a small village on the county Waterfor !, estate of Count de la Poer, near Ballymacarbery. Three young men, named Edmond O'Keeffe, a laborer, Patrick Walsh and Francis Duane, respectable young farmers, went shooting outside the village. They started a pheasant in a hilly field and followed it. Duane and Walsh were in front and O.Keeffe was behind. Suddenly a partridge aprang up among the three men, and O'Keeffe partly ruised his gun and fired. The bird fell, and so did Walsh, as he was directly in the line of fire. On his companions running to his assaistance, they found that some of the shot had lodged in his left eye, and more had pierced his forehead. Dr. McEntry attended immediately, but could do nothing, the unfortunate man being unconscious, and he died shortly after. On hearing that Walsh was dead, O Keeffe gave himself up to the police. At the coroner's For some time past, Messrs, inquest, the jury found that death was caused from the effects of gunshot wounds accidentally inflicted, with the sale of his county Wexford and added a rider stating that in estates, have been busily engaged at their opinion, there was no blame their work on the property, but they attached to O'Keeffe.
