THE BEAR AND THE BRONCHO.

Tom Buckley Lassoed Bruin and Then Bolted From the Fight.

Tom Buckley was working on the spring roundup in the employ of one of the large cattle outfits in southern Montana. While riding through a clump of bushes one day hunting cattle a full grown silver tip bear suddenly arose and confronted him. The only weapon at hand was his lariat, and with visions of juicy bear steak for the boys at supper around the mess wagon that night and a fine rug for the pretty schoolmarm he quickly loosened his rope and threw it. A few turns over the saddle horn, at the same time spurring his horse, and the shock came. It was very severe, for unluckily the bear's fore leg as well as his head was through the loop of the rope. Tom was about to drop the rope like a hot cake when the horse suddenly put his head down and started bucking in true broncho style.

Thomas didn't last long. He suffered when he struck the ground, but he did not linger in the vicinity to ascertain the extent of his injuries. He started for the top of a butte close at hand, and although an indifferent sprinter he managed to make very fair time.

Looking back from his position of comparative safety, he could see that both animals had become entangled in the rope and were having it out in great style, making frantic efforts to free themselves. The rope finally parted, and away they went in opposite directions, or as he expressed it, "They quit the country, hitting only the high spots."—Chicago Record.

Travelers Must Be Content.

In some parts of the southern states, where, happily for them, the people are not in such a ceaseless hurry as people are in the nervous north, no one thinks of exacting punctuality from railroad trains. They take them when they come, and arrive when they get there, and are content.

A fretful Yankee drummer, who, at a country railway station, had been fuming because a train had not arrived an hour after schedule time, received a lesson in patience from an elderly countryman who came in with his gripsack and asked the station master:

"What time do the train for Savannah git here, boss?"

"Somewhar 'bout nightfall," answered the stationman.

"An what time do she git to Savannah?"

"Somewhar 'bout mawnin."

Then the countryman, perfectly satisfied with the information, folded his legs in a corner and settled down to an hour or more of philosophical comfort.—Youth's Companion.

A Dramatic Holdup.

Missouri Fireman—Give 'er air, Bill! Stop 'er! We're held up!

Engineer—I see—hist! There's seven of them on this side—

"Wearin masks, too, Bill"—

Robber (with drawn sword)—And dar-r-r-est thou insult me to my beard? Marry! It is more than human that p-r-r-ompts me thus to spare thy insignificance—

Engineer—It's all right; let 'er go!

Fireman—Wh-what is it, Bill?

"Thee-ayter troop, rehearsin for the next town!"

"What're they doin out here in this dense swamp?"

"Tryin to get to the next town."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Woman's Argument.

He—You women have no right to the ballot for the simple reason that in case of a war you would not be able to fight.

She—Then why do you allow a man who is crippled to vote?

He—Why—er—it that isn't just like a woman to ask such a fool question at all.—Indianapolis Journal.

CONNAUGHT.

GALWAY.

While the crew of Mr. E. O'Flaherty's boat, the Hero, were hauling her herring nets, off the Arran Islands, one of the men, named John Ryder, a brave young fellow of seventeen, the only support of his destitute and feeble parents, was swept overboard and lost his life. It was blowing a strong gale at the time and the seas were running high. The crew did their utmost to rescue their unfortunate companion, but the seas were so rough that all their efforts were unavailing, and young Ryder sank before they could come to his aid. Much sympathy is felt for the poor parents, who are thus deprived of their only bread winner.

LEITRIM.

At their last meeting, the Manorhamilton Board of Guardians proceeded to elect a Veterinary Inspector for the Union. Applications were received from Mr. S. C. Hamilton, Sligo, and Mr. P. D. Reevy, Ballyshannon. On a division the latter was elected by 16 votes to 7. Mr. Reevy is a thorough Nationalist.

MAYO.

James Lynchehan, the man charged with the attempted murder of Mrs. McDonnell, of The Valley, Achill, and with burning the Valley House, escaped from the police at his father's house, near Achill Sound. The announcement of his escape caused considerable excitement throughout the district, and cars laden with police have been pouring into the Island of Achill. Lynchehan was removed from Castlebar jail on that morning, and conveyed to Mulraney by the 10 a. m. train. He was present in the cabin at the valley, where Mrs. McDonnell lay, when Mr. Horne, R.M. took a further deposition from the unfortunate lady. The prisoner was sent from the Dugort Police station in charge of two constables named Muldoon and Ward, to be relodged in Castlebar jail. Lynchehan's father lives about a mile from Achill Sound, en route from Dugort; and at this point it appears that the prisoner was not handcuffed at all, though he had manacles on a few minutes previously. A brother of his, who was on horseback, met the police escort with with their prisoner near the house of the prisoner's father, and stopped them, saying he had brought an overcoat with him, which he asked that his brother should be allowed to put on. No objection was made. Of course the handcuffs had to be removed, and the prisoner had scarcely put the coat on when he leaped off the car and ran up a passage in the direction of his father's house. The night was very dark, but from the light in the doorway the constables are positive Lynchehan never entered the house but passed around the end of the gable, and that was the last seen of him. There are several houses close by, but the police have so far failed to find the slightest clue to his whereabouts. The escape took place in the wildest part of the Corraun mountains, on the shore of Blacksod Bay. The two policemen, Muldoon and Ward, who were made responsible for the safe conveyance of the prisoner back to jail, have, it is understood, been suspended from duty, and the Constabulary authorities will probably take proceedings against them. The wife of one of the men—a man who had fifteen years service—died rather suddenly next day. Upwards of four hundred policemen are now scouring the country, under the direction of Divisional-Commissioner Cameron, for Lynchehan. It is believed he is concealed either in some of the caves of the Corraun mountains or that he got away in a boat.

ROSCOMMON.

Mr. Martin Dolan has been elected Pearsals Collector for the Roscommon portion Ballinasloe Union.

LEINSTER.

DUBLIN.

The Three Rock Mountain was snow-clad recently, and there was a very considerable fall in the temperature, followed by heavy rain and thunder storms. At Ballydoyle, a six-roomed house belonging to Mr. Dunne was fired by lightning, and in a brief period a house adjoining it was also in flames, and the roofs had fallen in. The brigade at once laid down two lines of hose, and soon succeeded in extinguishing the flames. The houses, the second of which belonged to Mr. McGrane, were unoccupied, but they had been furnished. All the furniture was destroyed. It is understood the damage is fully covered by insurance.

At Longford Quarter Sessions, before County Court Judge Curran, Bridget Maguire, of Drumnacoha, sought to recover £50 damages from Mr. William Robinson, Mr. William Robinson, sub sheriff for the county Longford, for that he did, on the 2nd of August last, break and enter into the house of plaintiff, and then and there beat her.

LOUTH.

The funeral took place, recently, at Dysart, of John McKenna, aged 35 years, who had been one of the Plan of Campaign tenants on Lord Massereene's estate. The deceased was a tenant of a farm of ten acres under Lord Massereene, at Lawlesstown Hill, and when the Plan of Campaign was entered upon he joined it, and lost his comfortable holding. He lived afterwards until his death in a little hut. Latterly he was very poor, and the grants of money from the funds have been scanty.

MEATH.

A quarrel took place between two milesmen on the railway at Navan, recently. The parties, whose names were Gorman and Murray, had a heated discussion about politics. Murray was seen to fall, and was at once conveyed to the gateman's box where he soon expired. It appears the men had been paid their wages that day, and had taken some drink. Murray was about 65 years of age, and leaves a wife and seven children to mourn his loss. Gorman, who immediately informed the police, was at once placed under arrest.

QUEENS'

A report reached the police at Stradbally that a man named Jeremiah Kelly had been murdered at Kilroy nine miles from Maryborough. They at once proceeded to the place and arrested a man named Martin Walsh. It would appear that Walsh and Kelly were in Stradbally, on the previous day, delivering corn, and were drinking together, when some old family quarrel was brought up, with the result that blows were exchanged. They then parted. Kelly had to pass Walsh's house on his way home, and about six o'clock a man named Clegg found Kelly on the road near Walsh's house. When lifted up he was unable to stand, as he was suffering from spinal paralysis caused by his neck being broken. He was placed in a cart and taken home, where he died four hours later. Before his death he made a statement to the effect that Walsh had pulled him out of his car and broken his neck, and he added, 'I forgive him, and may God forgive him.' Walsh was brought before Mr. Wm. Young, J.P., and remanded for eight days, to Kilkenny Jail, the coroner's jury having found a verdict of murder against him.

WICKLOW.

We regret to chronicle the death of Surgeon-Col. Quinlan, which took place at his residence, Merry Meeting House, county Wicklow. The deceased's death was rather sudden and unexpected. For a number of years he resided at Newtown House, Kilkenny, and only changed to his late residence within the past few years.

Spellissy, Michael Carmody, and Daniel Egan, for breaking into the Town Hall on the occasion of the O'Donovan Rossa lecture in Ennis. An appeal will be taken in all cases.

CORK.

A man named Daniel Ring, a car driver, employed in Macroom, died very suddenly, at Carriganima, while taking a drink in a public house. The deceased was unmarried and leaves, it is stated, a considerable sum of money. He was a very sober and industrious man.

The Skibbereen Post Office and telegraph offices have been removed to the premises on the Square and Maine street, the property of the Postmaster, Mr. Charles O'Shea.

KERRY.

Joseph Fitzgerald Lynch, Esq., Resident Magistrate of Dungarvan, has been appointed a Resident Magistrate for the county of Kerry.

LIMERICK.

The quarterly Munster Fair was held in Limerick recently. The supply of horses was up to the average, but hunters, which found ready purchasers at remunerative prices, were somewhat limited in number. The demand for farm and carriage horses was small. Buyers attended from Dublin, Belfast, Cork, Waterford, and other centres, but there were only a few from Great Britain.

TIPPERARY.

A very severe thunder-storm broke over Tipperary district recently, causing considerable destruction to coan, hay, and other property. The country roads leading through wooded districts were beatrewn with trees pulled up by the roots, and the roads rendered impassable. Very extensive damage was done to corn and hay ricks that were imperfectly secured, the produce in many districts being scattered over the country side, and in some cases being carried down by the floods with which the lands were inundated.

WATERFORD.

Information reached Dungarvan of the suicide of an old man named John Nagle, aged 70 years, who lived at Ballyculliane, a townland about four miles from the town, on a small farm. He was a widower, and his only son had got married on the previous Sunday week. On the following Sunday his son and daughter-in-law left the house to spend the evening at a neighbor's in the district. The old man was in bed as they were leaving. On their return the son went to the father's room, and not finding him in bed he went to an adjourning room and there found the old man hanging from the rafters. He had used a temper reins for the purpose, and had been dead for some time. For some time past Nagle had been suffering from imaginary diseases, and was constantly consulting the priest and doctor with the object of being relieved.

ULSTER.

ANTRIM.

Mr. John C. McKay has been admitted a solicitor of the Supreme Court of Judicature in Ireland. Mr. McKay intends practicing in Belfast and Garrickfergus.

ARMAGH.

At the Armagh Quarter Sessions, before County Court Judge Kisley, Joh. W. Bond, D.L., J.P., brought a civil bill suit against a respectable farmer named James Finn, who resides in Ballynahoneberg, for £10 damages for cutting a number of trees on his farm and converting same to his own use, plaintiff being the owner in fee of the property. The defendant pleaded that, as tenant, he thought he had the right to cut and use the trees, which were small and only four in number. The Judge in giving his decision, stated that what the defendant had done was a gross outrage, and that he had just as much right to cut the timber as he would have to put his hand in the plaintiff's pocket and take his purse. He would make an example of this case, and would give a decree for £4 and the usual cost.

DERRY.

The professional representatives of the Nationalist and Unionist parties appeared before the Recorder of Derry, in chamber, and checked off the voters' lists removing double entries. The various cases of appeal are now decided on, prepared, and signed. It is stated that the Unionists will not prosecute their appeals in the cases of the freemen, as to whom there was so much legal discussion.

DONEGAL.

Mr. Jerome Boyce, of Donegal, who was lately appointed to the Commission of the Peace by the Lord Chancellor, has been sworn in before Mr. Patrick Gallagher, J.P., Donegal. Mr. Boyce is County Delegate of the Irish National Federation.

DOWN.

There has just been completed to the order of the Sisters of Poor Clares, High street, Newry, a new school with all the modern improvements. The building is very large and commodious, and looks remarkably well, both interior and exterior. Special attention has been paid to ventilation, which is all that could be desired, and the structure, architecturally and otherwise, reflects the highest credit on Mr. Richard Lynes, who prepared the plans, and on Mr. Dennis Neary, who executed his work to general satisfaction.

MONAGHAN.

The following resolution was unanimously adopted at a meeting of the clergy and delegates of the I. N. F. in the barony of Farney, county Monaghan, held recently in Carrickmacross, Rev. W. O'Doherty, C.C., presiding:—Moved by the Rev. T. P. Maguire, P.P., Iniskeen, seconded by Mr. Patk MacDermott, I.N.F., Magheracloon, and passed unanimously:—That speakers invited to address the meeting in Carrickmacross be requested not to make any reference in their speeches to matters at present in controversy between different sections of the Irish Parliamentary Party.'

TYRONE.

A sad burning accident took place in Omeath, resulting in the death of a boy named Clarke, aged three years. It appears that early in the morning the servant girl in the employment of Mr. Clarke lighted the fire and left the house to transact some business in the village. During her absence the deceased, without the observation of his mother, go out of bed and ran into the kitchen. Approaching near the fire his night dress got ignited, and in a few minutes he was enveloped in flames. His mother, attracted by her son's screams, ran to the scene to find his clothes a burning mass. Almost frantic with grief, the poor woman did everything in her power to extinguish the flames, but she did not succeed before the little sufferer had sustained injuries which brought about his death a short time afterwards, before medical aid could be procr
