THE JOYS OF MEMORY

Of all the New Year editorials that have come under our observation none excels the following in noble thoughts and beautiful language.

New Years day is almost gone, and in a few short hours the holiday season will be ended.

To those whose holiday season has been clouded by sorrow or hidden by disappointment, "the hope which springs eternal in the human breast"

An extraordinary resolution was introduced in and carried through the Common Council this week.

A foolish story was circulated through the press last week to the effect that Bishop McQuaid had been called to Rome to explain some alleged breach of duty.

It is curious to note how few Catholic citizens are connected with the Committee of One Hundred.

joys of memory are often as keen as the pleasures of anticipation.

BACK TO THE LAND

We have not always agreed with the views expressed by Mary T. Elder or admired her manner of expressing them.

The land should be worked as it is in Ohio, Belgium, and other countries where there is a dense population.

Unless we have more small farms owned by the men who work them, unless a proper balance is kept between agriculture and other industries, we will have hard times despite a good financial system and a fair tariff law.

SWEET HARMONY

The Catholic Times accuses the Catholic Telegraph of uttering a falsehood; the Michigan Catholic charges the Catholic Review with an intent to injure Catholicism.

The beauties of the divorce system were well illustrated by an incident told in the news columns of the daily press this week.

The Irish Home Rulers insist that the English Liberals shall give Home Rule the precedence over all other measures.

True to its record for daily-dallying the Democratic Congress will probably let pass the opportunity of making a State out of New Mexico.

The Catholic Columbian—to our mind one of the best American representatives of the ideal Catholic newspaper—has entered its nineteenth year.

Did you commence the New Year by settling your accounts with God?

The "new" lecture of the Arch-bishop Igersoll is frightful in its blasphemy.

Perhaps the New York policemen were not good grammarians; but they were great on Syntax.

SECRET SOCIETIES

The secret society is the most fertile of all fields for Apocatastasis from the faith.

Push ahead! The Catholic Columbian.

At all periods of our lives, we must either advance or fall back.

A Nickel Plated Road.

Are the rails and engines all nickel plated? It is asked, time and again, by parties who are contemplating a trip west over this now famous and popular route.

A passerby, seeing this fine specimen of poultry, said, "What a splendid turkey! Just the thing for the minister's Christmas dinner!"

THE GOSPELS

GOSPEL: St. Luke II. 42-52. And when Jesus was twelve years old, they went up to Jerusalem, according to the custom of the feast.

From this we should learn that if Jesus Christ, King of kings and Lord of lords, did not refuse to obey Mary and Joseph, we should not refuse to obey humbly and voluntarily our parents, superiors, and all who are charged with our care and education.

AMUSEMENTS

Harry Lacy has made a great bit of his new play this season. He is welcomed everywhere by the largest houses.

The engagement of Edmund Collier in his new five act melodrama, "The Cross Roads of Life," at the Cook Opera House for Thursday evening and the balance of the week promises to be a successful one.

The engagement of Edward Collier, as the captain of the sailing station, was handsomely and dashing.

Fidel, Dick's sweetheart, was enacted by Miss Carrie Francis, whose rendition of the part was favorably accepted.

ACADEMY

John E. Brennan an Irish comedian of the Barney Reynolds type, appears at the Academy of Music this week in a new Irish play, entitled "Tim the Tanker."

All the week commencing Monday, Jan. 14, a monster bill of attractions will be given headed by the Queen of Artistic Artists, Mile. Alice Capatine, the perfect woman and female Sandow, supported by a great company of Vaudeville Stars.

A popular minister in Fivebire, in the good old times, used at Christmas to be inundated with hampers filled with good things.

Another friend, similarly struck with the splendid proportions of the turkey, purchased it and sent it to the minister.

The provident wife sent it again to the market and sold it again for a handsome sum.

THE JAM TRADE

Gladsstone's Wisdom in Advancing the Farmers to Cultivate Fruit.

A few years ago when Mr. Gladstone, in one of his charming harangues at Hawarden, recommended the British farmer to turn his attention to fruit cultivation and the making of jam, his advice was received with a good deal of cheap and ignorant ridicule.

"The native that induced me to take up the jam trade was my knowledge of the fact that within late years the demand for preserves had been steadily increasing, while that for butter has, no doubt in consequence, shown a tendency rather to decline than otherwise.

"Jam has a great future before it. The people are using it more and more largely every year, and, in my opinion, they are doing wisely, for what could be cheaper and, at the same time healthier than a good jam made from sound English fruit?"

"I attribute the superiority of English fruit to the nature of the soil and to the fact that the fruit ripens more gradually in our climate than in countries where there is more continuous and powerful sunshine.

"You may not perhaps be aware that strawberries grown in the northern parts of Scotland are vastly superior in all respects to those grown in southern England, without doubt because they take longer to mature.

"In Ireland there is a magnificent future for the fruit growing industry if only its opportunities were turned to account. Even now most of the blackberries that come to the English markets are grown in Ireland.

"The most touching of all folklore stories may be found in Charles F. Lummis' "Pueblo Folklore."

Waags—Did you see Spongo this morning? He said he was going to call upon you to effect a loan.

Waags—No; I was out when he called, and therefore I am not out now.

self as a sacrifice. "Blind me," she says, "and leave my husband's eyes." The Trues say, "It is good, woman."

They accept the sacrifice and take away one of the Allmother's eyes. Hence the moon is less brilliant than the sun. The man finds rest at night, and the flowers sleep.

In Mrs. Lester Cohen's translation of Sacher Masoch's "Jewish Tales" there is a variant of the sun and moon story derived from the Talmud.

"The moon who wants to be more brilliant than the sun. Deity is angered at her demands. Her light is lessened. The moon grew pale. Then God pitied her and gave her the stars for companions."

Our old school textbook told us that "all horns are not bones," and this is certainly true as far as the horn of the rhinoceros is concerned.

In olden times royalty employed rhinoceros horns for drinking cups; the notion being that poison put into them would show itself by bubbling.

"And so you are not married yet?" "No." "Engaged?" "No." "Expect to be?" "No."

"Well, papa says that my husband must be a keen and experienced man, of good health and good habits. Mamma says he must be frugal, industrious, attentive and moral, and I say that he must be handsome, dashing, talented and rich. Where are you looking for him?"

Equal to the Occasion.

A Yorkshire farmer, having a horse to sell at a fair, sold it to an army contractor. Meeting him at the same fair the following year, the army buyer walked up to the farmer and said indignantly: "The horse I bought of you was a thorough fraud. It was no use for the army." The dealer was nowise abashed, but replied: "Well, try 'im for 'navy!"

Out and Not Out.
