CATHEDRAL

The service at St. Patrick's Cathedral Easter Morning was one of the most impressive to be found in the Catholic Church. It consisted of Pontifical High Mass, Bishop McQuaid being the celebrant. He was assisted by the priests of the cathedral, arrayed in rich and beautiful vestments. The officers of the mass were as follows: Assistant priest, Rev. J. J. Hardey; deacons of honor, Rev. C. F. O'Loughlin, Rev. A. Hughes, deacon of the mass, Rev. P. Deville; sub-deacon, Rev. C. Cronin; master of the ceremonies, Mr. Deane; organist, Mr. J. J. Hardey.

The choir, under the direction of Prof. Eugene Bonn, rendered a beautiful mass in C in a manner which showed careful training and practice. The students of St. Bernard's Seminary chanted the liturgical parts, consisting of the Introit and the Gradual. At the close of the mass the congregation joined with the students and the choir in singing the "Te Deum."

The capacity of the cathedral was taxed to its utmost to accommodate the numbers which attended the 10 o'clock mass. Low mass was celebrated early in the morning, at which there were a number of communicants. At the Pontifical Mass a large edifice was filled to the outer doors and many were unable to secure seats. The altar was beautifully decorated, flowers of almost every description, whose fragrance was wafted throughout the building, being tastefully arranged on either side of the altar.

The sermon was given by Rev. Dr. J. J. Hardey, of St. Bernard's Seminary. The Rev. Dr. spoke at considerable length, and his interesting discourse was attentively listened to from the beginning to the close. He referred to the termination of the holy season of Lent and admonished his hearers to not abandon the religious exercises which they have practiced during the last forty days, but to be diligent in their duties toward God and the church. Speaking of the resurrection of the Savior and His ascension to Heaven, the speaker said in substance:

"The resurrection of Christ was the consummation of His earthly work. By His resurrection He proved Himself to be God. For by His resurrection He has left His body, restore life to the pulseless form; who but God can reopen the eyes now closed in death? The enemies of God remembering His promise to raise to life on the third day, placed the soldiers of Rome's legions around about the sepulchre, fearing lest the disciples of Jesus would take His body from there and would claim Him to be risen from the dead. Yet He came forth to all the glory of His divinity, in all the glory of His triumph, thus vindicating His claim to the Godhead, and filling His followers with a determination to bear His preaching and to go to the utmost ends of the earth to do His bidding. To-day the results of these efforts are apparent, for millions of hearts are moved to Heaven in prayer and millions of souls are rejoicing in the grandeur of His victory."

A NEW ESTABLISHMENT

This is the season of the year when, in the general overhauling incidental to spring house-cleaning, many housekeepers discover that the stoves and furnaces need some repairs at once, to prevent them from going entirely to ruin. A stitch in time saves nine, and prompt replacing of those parts of a stove or a furnace that have grown weak from wear will often save the price of a new article. In this connection we wish to announce the opening of a new establishment devoted to stove and furnace repairs, also to tin, copper, and sheet iron work of all kinds. The new firm is located at 3 and 10 Cortland Street, just a few doors from East Main, and the proprietor is Mr. H. N. McNally, a gentleman well known to Rochester readers of the Journal.

THE ENCYCLICAL

Pope Addresses the English People.

FOR CHRISTIAN UNITY

AN EARNEST PLEA FROM THE AGED PONTIFF.

HIS GREATEST AMBITION

Hopes That He May Live To See the First Steps Taken Toward Unification of Christendom—An Appeal To All Regardless of Creed.

By Associated Press.

London, April 19.—The Papal encyclical in regard to the union of the Anglican and Roman Catholic Churches which will be published here to-morrow is addressed to "The English people who seek the kingdom of Christ in unity of faith."

It opens with an expression of a long-cherished desire to address them in a special letter and thus give the illustrious English race a token of sincere affection. Continuing the Pope says: "We are further moved thereby by not infrequent conversations with our countrymen, who have testified to our countrymen, and to their anxiety for peace and eternal salvation through unity of faith. God is our witness to how keen our wish is that some effort of ours might tend to assist and further the great work of obtaining the reunion of Christendom."

After citing the evidences of the love and care of the Roman pontiffs for England from the time of Gregory the Great, His Holiness alludes to the exertions made by England to solve the "social question" for religious education, charitable objects, the strict observance of Sunday, and to the general spirit of the doctrine of the British nation. The Pope declares that men's labor, whether public or private, will not attain full efficacy without appeals to God in prayer, and without the Divine blessing. He dwells upon the increasing need of unity among those holding the Christian faith as the means of defense against the insidious of modern errors. "No thought could be more welcome to our soul," the Pope says, "than that happy unity of faith and will for which our Redeemer and Divine Master prayed, a unity, which if useful at all times even for temporal interests both at home and abroad, is shown by the very divisions and confusions of these days to be more than ever needful."

"The time cannot be far distant when we must appear to render an account of our stewardship to the Prince of Peace. How happy and blessed should we be if we could bring to Him some proof, some realization of this, our wish, which He inspired and sustained. In these days our thoughts turn with love and hope to the English people, observing as we do frequent manifest works of Divine grace in their midst, how to some of the religious confusion and dissension causes deep concern, how others see clearly the need of some sure defense against the insidious of fallen nature which only too readily humors the wishes of fallen nature and depraved reason and how the number of religious and disbelievers, sincerely laboring for reunion, increases."

The Pope turns to all in England to whatever community or institution they may belong, desiring to recall them to this holy unity. In this cause, he calls first to his dear friends the Catholics of England, whose faith and piety he knows by experience. He invokes Saint Gregory, Saint Augustine, Saint Peter and Saint George and above all the Blessed Virgin to be his pleaders before the throne of God that he may renew the glory of ancient days. His Holiness grants to all who devoutly recite the prayer to the Blessed Virgin appended to the encyclical an indulgence of three hundred days and he moreover grants aenary indulgence once a month to those who recite it daily. The encyclical, which abounds in biblical quotations, concludes by calling the blessing of God upon the English people.
