

FATHER KOENIG'S NERVE TONIC

Well Satisfied. 11
 Stephen, Dak. April, 1898.
 After using half a bottle of Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic for sleeplessness and nervousness, I must confess that it is the best medicine I ever used.
 SISTER VICTORIA,
 The Best Medicine For Sleeplessness.
 Creator, Ill., May 8, 1894.
 I used Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic for sleeplessness from which I was suffering fifteen years. The Tonic had the desired effect. It is the only medicine which gives me sleep.
 SISTER M. JOHNS.
 St. Vitus Dance Cured.
 Denver, Colo., Nov., 1892.
 Rev. I. P. O'Connell writes: I ordered five bottles of Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic for a girl ten years old, who was suffering from St. Vitus dance; she was perfectly cured by the same.

A High Roller.
 "Those two seats next to you," said the usher at the crowded theater, "seem to be unoccupied. Please let those gentlemen sit down in them."
 "Those seats, my good man," responded Cholly languidly, producing his checkbook and looking at the usher through his eyelashes, "belong to me overcoat. Please stand a little to one side. You obstruct my view of the stage."—Chicago Tribune.

A Very Different Athin.
 "Before I start I will fix up a little," said Amy as she got out her rouge pot and enamels.
 "Ah, that puts another face on the matter," was Mabel's comment.—Detroit Free Press.

LA BELLE DAME SANS MERCI.

My love is young, my love is fair,
 Sweet, true and amiable is she,
 With turquoise eyes and topaz hair—
 Ah, my love is lost to me!

Her no creature nor cranks confound,
 Her beautiful problems vex;
 She has no theories to propound—
 I've never heard her mention sex.

I know she painted tambourines
 And pickle jars and copper bells,
 With flowers and storks and river scenes
 And moonlight views on scapular shells.

She's mounted photo frames galore—
 Wood, velvet, ivoire and brass;
 She paints the panels of the door;
 She has not spared the looking glass.

The plush framed plaques upon her wall,
 The floral drapery in her hall—
 They know the jargon I've had to bear.

And now the Rubicon is passed,
 The great abyss between us set,
 The final "adieu" has fallen at last—
 I've said good-by to Amoret.

Good-by to bliss that might have been,
 Good-by to happy hopes that were—
 She's "draped" a Vermeil Martin screen
 And spanielled an empire chair.
 —Fall Mall Gazette.

HER WEDDING PRESENT.

Marie Was No Doubt as Much Surprised as Freddie Was.

Young Mr. Smithers, having eaten an excellent dinner, sat down to smoke a good cigar while his wife ran up stairs to make her toilet for the theater.

So peaceful was his state of mind that he did not even look anxiously at his watch when, after the promised "minute" had developed into 80, she entered the room.

"Seems to me that you are looking very nice tonight, my dear," he remarked.

"I am so glad you think so, darling. Of course I care more for your admiration than that of any one else. Besides the Skimmers sit right behind us this evening, and this dress will give her a bad headache before the second act is over."

Mr. Smithers looked anxious. "So that is new, is it? Wasn't the old one good enough?"

"Not quite, dear. Besides I earned the money for this one myself."

"But how did you earn it?"

A Polar City.
 Numbers of explorers who have sought the arctic regions in quest of the pole have told of a mysterious city mirrored against the northern sky—statly buildings in choice architecture, tall and imposing spires, but such as differ from anything we know about. Whether the foundation of this mirage is a reality and only unrecognizable because of transportation as to directions, whether it is a work of some mysterious remnant of our race that once occupied the pole, or whether this is some fanciful feature of the frost, as the peculiar shrubbery we see on the window-pane—whatever this is, it must be assigned to the perplexing enigmas of the unknown region. Who knows but some spot, once the theater of busy and advanced human life, may have escaped the general cataclysmic wreck, and this city may be the silent and as yet undiscovered witness of pre-polar times, standing alone in the dead desolation, in the rigid shroud of new polar death. If we must be barred from entering this undiscovered country, we may add to our equipment by a careful noting of its mixture, and then give to the base of these phenomena a most thorough study.—Philadelphia Press.
