

FATHER KOENIG'S NERVE TONIC

A Reverend has Refreshing Sleep After Hard Study. I used Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic for nervousness and restless nights after hard study. It gave me refreshing sleep and great relief. I also ordered it for another person who suffered from nervousness and it did him much good.

REV. B. BIGGEL. Delhi, Ohio Feb. 1891. A young man 29 years old who is subject to a rush of blood to the head, especially at the time of the full moon, and he at such times raves and is out of his mind. Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic helps him every time, so says:

REV. W. SCHOLL. Lowell, Mass. July 1890. I had epileptic fits for about four years, two every week. When Rev. J. Kampmeier recommended Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic, I bought it and used it. It is the best epileptic medicine I have ever used and I have used many.

ADAM CRAMER. A valuable tonic on nervous disorders. It is a safe and effective medicine. It has been used by the Rev. Father Koenig for many years with the most successful results.

WHEN MABEL SMILES

When Mabel smiles, the world is bright. Each smiling dawn and sunset tells us so. And she has a smile for every one. While I look in her face, I see a glow. And every one who looks at her. Nor how she smiles, but how she smiles. From heaven can you get more.

When Mabel frowns, the world is dark. Each frowning dawn and sunset tells us so. And she has a frown for every one. While I look in her face, I see a glow. And every one who looks at her. Nor how she frowns, but how she frowns. From hell can you get more.

When Mabel smiles, my heart is proud. But when Mabel frowns, my heart is bowed. When she smiles, my heart is glad. And when she frowns, my heart is sad. She smiles my blossom's queen. And she knows my rules in state. That joy and pain must alternate. And so fair Mabel hides my fate. A smile and frown between. — Samuel Minstern Poet in Life.

THE BULL MOOSE.

An Adventure With One of These Animals When It Hunted the Hunter.

A correspondent writing from Moonopolis, Muskoka, gives an interesting account of an adventure which he had with a moose while employed in making a spagnum trail through one of the pine forests in that section of the country. While engaged at work he came across a moose yard and on looking around saw one of the "giants of the forest" about 50 yards distant. The story of his encounter is perhaps best told in the correspondent's own words:

"After a moment," he writes, "the moose turned and walked behind a hill, which, though not high, was steep. I ran to the top with all speed, hoping to get a view of the lordly creature as he made his way through the brush. I could not see him at first, but on looking down the steep incline there he was, not ten yards away. He turned to make off, but striking his ribs against the projecting limb of a small hemlock he was thrown down and around the tree, and as he rose he faced me. It was now my turn to run, for the moose charged at me with erect mane, expressing his rage by a fierce bellow. In turning I stumbled, the ground being very uneven, and his feet nearly came down on me as I dodged among some trees. I tried to strike with my hatchet, the only weapon I had, but did not succeed in injuring my pursuer. With some difficulty I at last got out into the deep snow where my snowshoes were of more use to me. The moose still pursued me, roaring at intervals, and one who has not heard a moose roar can form but little idea of the terrible bellowing noise. After several attempts to strike me with his front feet he halted and stood about 30 yards away pawing and roaring. I eagerly seized this opportunity to climb a tree, and soon after the animal turned and made off. Of all my adventures in the bush, and they number a few, the one I have just related came the nearest to being my death." — Montreal Witness.

Working Up a Climax.

As he entered the barber shop (he was a prominent official of the Duluth road, very prominent, so near the top that he might be described as the top itself), he sat down in the chair and the barber went to work on his well domed poll.

The barber was a cheerful man, fond of social intercourse and rather prided himself on his powers as a conversationalist. So when he felt the head of the Duluth official with his taper fingers, he thought he would astonish and please him with some conversation and perhaps the official would in turn write out a ten years' pass on a piece of shaving soap.

So the barber was light and merry, learned and philosophical by turns, and was well pleased with the expression that stole over the official's face, so full of approbation was it. He knew that he would handle a pour boire of a quarter, if he did not get the pass. He was determined to please, and when the official asked him if he had any ootzon handy the barber said he thought he had. He went quickly to a store and secured a small supply of the ootzon, and giving it to the official that gentleman took two small fragments and put them in his shirt.

Then the barber brought of Casey at the bat.—St. Paul Dispatch.

Making Tea In Japan.

DIOCESAN NEWS.

From Our Special Correspondents.

Auburn. On Friday morning last, mail carriers M. S. Webster and S. H. Taylor were suspended for 16 and 10 days respectively for loitering on their routes, a detective under instructions from Washington had been watching the different carriers it was said, with the result that the above named were found to be violating the postal rules.

Rev. O Ulrich, of Wisconsin, who about 12 years ago was pastor of St. Alphonsus German Catholic Church was in the city for a few days last week. During his stay in Auburn the reverend gentleman was the guest of Rev. Joseph Netzel, who succeeded him as pastor of St. Alphonsus. Father Ulrich's personal appearance has changed considerably since his pastorate here the most notable being a long beard which has so altered his appearance that many of his former parishioners were unable to recognize him. All however were heartily glad to shake hands with their former pastor and friend.

Father Ulrich sang high mass Sunday and on Monday was celebrating a solemn high mass of requiem for the repose of the soul of Rev. Charles A. Vogel, who died in Germany last March and who organized and was pastor of the German parish here for some time. The other reverend gentlemen who officiated at the mass were Rev. Joseph Netzel, present pastor of the church, deacon and Rev. John Van Ness, of the Cathedral of Rochester, a former Auburn boy who served Father Ulrich on the altar, sub-deacon. The many friends of the visiting priest did all in their power to make his visit a pleasant and memorable one. Father Ulrich has gone to New York for a visit before returning home.

Charlottesville. Fire completely destroyed the parochial school building connected with the Holy Cross Church at Charlottesville at 1 o'clock Wednesday morning. The building was erected about five years ago at a cost of $3,000. There was an insurance on the structure.

An entertainment was given in the hall on the second floor of the school building Tuesday evening for the benefit of the Sisters of the church. It was about midnight when the exercises closed and the assemblage dispersed.

At 5 to 6 o'clock some one discovered flames on the ground floor of the building about in the center of the north side. The firemen were quickly called, but before they arrived the flames had gained considerable headway and the firemen were only able to keep the fire from spreading to the barns of the Rochester Electric Railway Co., which are about 100 feet to the north.

The wind was out of the south and was blowing briskly, sending the sparks over the car barns in great quantities. The school building was burned to the ground.

The burned building was a large two story structure and was located directly in the rear of the church, which fronts on the Boulevard. On the ground floor were the school-rooms and on the second floor was a large hall used for amusement purposes.

A New Race of Roses Perpetual.

The Gardener's Chronicle calls attention to a new race of roses which has been introduced by some Paris growers. They belong to the Polyantha group—that is to say, they bear their flowers in trusses. The new roses have the advantage over the others of being "perpetual," and consequently they flower continuously all through the summer. This advantage they owe to their origin, a natural cross (crossbreed nature), observed in the Lyons gardens, between the flowers of the first specimens of Polyantha introduced from Japan and some hybrid perpetual roses. By repeated and careful selections, a new race of roses has been produced which, like annuals, germinate, flower and produce seeds in less than a year. The term "dwarf" is justified by the height, which in adult plants is only about 30 inches. The flowers are single, semidouble or double, in almost equal proportion, and present almost all the variations of color observed in cultivated roses. Flowering commences in the first year, and even a few months after sowing. This precocity is one of the most remarkable and interesting features of this new type.—Westminster Gazette.
