TAILORS ARE WINNING.

Outlook Encouraging For the Garment Workers.

MANY CONTRACTORS SETTLING.

The Strike Proceeding in an Orderly Manner and Employers Are Convinced That Their Demands Will Be Conceded.

NEW YORK, July 31.—The tailors' strike is still on, although upwards of 1,500 employees have returned to work, having accepted what they asked for from the contractors. All day long the settlement committee of the brotherhood was busy with their final strike headquarters with the contractors, talking over and signing the new agreement, which displaces the piece work system, and in its place creates a weekly scale of wages. More than 100 contractors have signed the new agreement. The settlement committee will continue to hold sessions daily until all the contractors have had ample opportunity to sign the new agreement.

The striking tailors gathered in a great mass meeting in Cooper Union hall, and after listening to speeches by these leaders, adopted resolutions endorsing the strike. The meeting was under the auspices of the Brotherhood of Tailors and the hall was crowded to suffocation. Charles F. Reicher, president of the United Garment Workers of America, presided. In his opening speech the chairman said:

"We must win this fight or lose what we have already gained. We must do away with the element house evil—the crowding of hard workers in the sweat shops and the system which allows that iniquity. Last year we did away with the rack system. It was a hard fight and a long one. This year we must do away with the system that permits the contractors to bleed our workers. We must deal direct with the manufacturers. It will be a hard thing to do, but we are going to do it. We will surely succeed."

There was a good deal of applause during Reicher's address, which burst into a storm when he introduced Samuel Gompers, the national labor leader, as the next speaker.

Gompers started in by declaring that the present strike by the tailors was in line with the general movement of the workmen all over the country for less hours of labor.

"Why, you even work on Sunday under the present oppression," he went on. "Sunday is for rest. This movement of yours is against going down in the social scale. It is to make you shapers of the results of your toil."

Chairman Reicher then introduced Meyer Schoenfeld, the organizer of the union, who made an address in Hebrew. Meyer Schoenfeld, in the course of his remarks, urged upon the strikers the absolute necessity of upholding their position as members of the Brotherhood of Tailors against the attempts of the contractors to force them to work longer hours for a minimum salary.

The speaker urged upon his hearers to keep the peace and not give their enemies, the contractors, an opportunity of calling upon the police to disperse them when they congregated on the streets to peacefully discuss their grievances.

Henry White proposed the following resolutions, which were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That we, the organized tailors of New York and vicinity, hereby declare that we will refuse to return to work until the contractors present to us a written agreement signed by their attorneys, and that we hereby inform the order calling the strike which has been necessary as a means of checking the preparations of the contractors to strike the first blow when the workers were surprised.

Mr. White went on to say that the tailors were just beginning to understand how to strike in an effective manner, so that their action in so doing would touch the boss as on the vital part, which was their pocket.

Resolved, That we, the organized tailors of New York and vicinity, hereby declare that we will refuse to return to work until the contractors present to us a written agreement signed by their attorneys, and that we hereby inform the order calling the strike which has been necessary as a means of checking the preparations of the contractors to strike the first blow when the workers were surprised.
