LEINSTER.

DUBLIN.
The first regular magisterial investigation into the circumstances of the recent murderous assault committed on Com. Tully, Jr., at Liscaheen Rosemore, by a gang of Clanricarde's Emergencymen, has been held at the scene of the outrage, near Waterford. A strong escort of constabulary brought the prisoners from Galway Jail, their names being John Keabitt and Thomas McCauley, Emergencymen in the service of the agent's party. The injured man was scarcely able to speak, and it was only with the greatest patience and care that his faltering words could be distinctly understood. His recollection of the occurrence, up to the moment that he was beaten into unconsciousness, tallied in detail with the facts already published. The investigation was resumed and concluded, the injured man being unable to be present. Evidence having been given, the accused were referred for trial to the assizes.
LEITRIM.
Evictions have become very common in Leitrim for some time past, but the latest exhibition of cruel landlordism shows the extremity to which it is being carried. An old man named Fergus Loughlin, aged over 80 years, held a small farm in Strangford, on the O'Beirne estate. He is a feeble, helpless person, with an equally aged wife. They have only one daughter, and being extremely poor they were unable to pay laborers to work the farm; consequently they fell into arrears of rent, with the result that the sub-sheriff, accompanied by a force of police and a number of emergencymen, with crowbars, proceeded to the cabin. They at once put the occupants out, and demolished the homestead. A significant occurrence then took place. The evictors were about to depart from the scene of their cruelty, when the sub-sheriff observed a substantial pig-sty near the place. Fearing the infirm victims might avail themselves of the little shelter the swine-house would afford, he ordered demolition of that also. The neighbors kindly took the evicted tenants under their roofs, and the greatest sympathy is evinced for old Loughlin.

MAYO.
In Maryborough, recently, an inquest was held in the convict prison, by Dr. T. F. Higgins, coroner for the district, on the body of a convict named Michael Casey, who had died on the previous day in the hospital of the institution. Casey was convicted together with a man named Walsh, for being participants in the murder of a bailiff, in Meamrans, in 1880. Walsh was hanged, but the sentence was commuted to one of penal servitude for life. A verdict was returned to the effect that death resulted from apoplexy.

At Coolaney Petty Sessions, District Inspector Thompson appeared to prosecute a man named W. Moffat, on the charge of having fired several shots into the house of a man named Finnegan, who resides at Knockadoo, near Coolaney. On the case being called Finnegan came forward as the principal witness. He had previously charged two other men, named Andrew Finnegan and Pat Moffat, with the offence, but, on being cross-examined, denied all knowledge of this deposition, until it was produced in court. The presiding magistrate then asked the witness if he was sure that he was not mistaken in his statement.

A man named Thos. Hurley, 73 years old, met his death recently under horrifying circumstances, at a place called Dreenagh, northwest of Ballyheigue. Hurley was a small farmer, and resided, in Dreenagh, a remote part of North Kerry, situated near the point where the Shannon joins the Atlantic. Her crew, numbering five with one exception, got clear and were picked up by the winning boat and a coastguard boat which put off from shore. A lad named Wall, however, was carried down with the sinking vessel and was not seen again, his father witnessing the sad occurrence from the pierhead.

ANTRIM.
Information has been received by Mr. W. J. Woodside, shipowner, Belfast, that his steamer the Bawnmore had gone ashore at Cape Blanco, about 100 miles north of San Francisco, and was likely to become a total wreck. The only other fact mentioned in the message was that the crew had been saved. It was surmised that the vessel grounded during a fog. The Bawnmore carried 25 hands, all told, and was officered by Captain Alexander Woodside, Chief Officer McCutcheon, and Second Officer Semple, all belonging to Belfast.

ARMAGH.
In Armagh, recently, a boy named Magee, aged ten, met with a serious accident. He was passing opposite the Market-House when he was run over by a machine driven by Mr. Wallace, of Darkley. Mr. Wallace did his utmost to pull up his horse, but the boy would probably have been instantly killed had it not been for the prompt action of Mr. Wm. Gray, who at great personal risk ran forward and lifted the boy from under the wheels. Mr. Gray stated that the injured boy appeared to be in the infirmary.

An extensively signed memorial has been forwarded to headquarters praying for the retention of the battalion in Lifford.

DOWN.
As two gentlemen, Messrs. Joseph Barcroft, The Glen Newry, and H. S. O'Callow, a visitor, were sailing a yacht near Roskilly, a heavy squall struck the craft, causing it to swamp. One of the occupants had the presence of mind to cast the painter that held the dingy off, and the two gentlemen got into it just as the yacht disappeared from view.
