If the two Rochester Deaneries will give us three councils each during the year that city will have, when the supreme council convenes in 1896, a council in each of the parishes of the city.

The new method of collecting assessments has met with general favor. We are sure it will prove very beneficial to councils. The Supreme Recorder's books are the best indications of its effects.

The regular quarterly meeting of the Finance com. Supreme Council was held at Auburn, N. Y., Sat. Oct. 5th. The committee found the Supreme Recorder's books in excellent condition. The report of their work will be issued soon.

Council 16 held their first regular meeting at the C. B. L. rooms last evening.

Council 23 met Wednesday evening. One application was received.

Profession at the Institute of Mission Helpers, Baltimore, Md.

On October 2nd the feast of the Holy Angels, there was a profession at the North House of the Mission Helpers.

Miss Mary Glancy, of Philadelphia, known in religion as Sister M. Benedict, was admitted to Holy Profession after the usual two years Novitiate.

Rev. J. K. Slattery was the celebrant of the Mass, with Mr. J. McDonald and Mr. J. Glancy as servers, the latter a brother of the Professed.

These religious of the Institute of Mission Helpers are devoted exclusively to Missionary work, and by the carrying on of these works of charity and zeal, may, even during "daily bread" these Sisters rely entirely on the benevolence of kind friends throughout the land, the poor who are the objects of their kindness, never being in a position to lend a helping hand to the wants of the Convent.

ARMAGH, Ireland.

It is when one finds himself inside of Ireland's Primatial Cathedral (without hesitation one may consider it to be one of the grandest ecclesiastical edifices in the land), that it may well sink down into a poor, and remain so long as his taste or devotion suggests, in silent admiration. Hours would be long slipping by at all, if one has an eye for the grand, graceful, sublime in architecture.
