On Monday Santa Claus, on his way to the country, stopped to see Father's boys and girls at the school. Old Santa, in spite of his being pretty well used up, was so pleasant and kind that not even the smallest were afraid of him. He was so tickled with the hymns and prayers, and promises for the coming year, that he gave them all the candy and nice things he had; and when he departed, assured them that he would bring a bigger bag next Christmas.

He had a pair of fine dusters for Father's buggy, and said he had sent a heavy robe for him to Coldwater. He wanted to go there himself; but thought he might get too tired and be taken with the Grippe.

Xmas was celebrated in a befitting manner at St. John's. At the high Mass the choir sang Leonard's Mass in E flat, and well deserved the praise and congratulations it received. Little Maggie Welch sang the Adagio Fideles.

The devotion at Benediction was enhanced by the singing of the Adoro-te-de-vo. Though the number, the variety, harmony, and good will of its members, it was to be commended with reason.

CARDINAL SATOLLI

THE ZUCCHETTI CONFERRED UPON HIM IN WASHINGTON.

Marquis Sacrapanti, the Noble Guard of the Pope Brought it from Rome with the Biretta.

Marquis Sacrapanti, the Noble Guard of Pope Leo XIII, with the zucchetto and biretta to be conferred on Mgr. Satolli, arrived in Washington last Tuesday afternoon, accompanied by Dr. Booker, Mgr. Satolli's Secretary, and was immediately driven to the Legation Building. Major John D. Kelley, City Treasurer of Brooklyn, and Mr. McGuire, Surveyor of the Port of New York, came over to Washington as the guests of the Noble Guard.

Mgr. Satolli was advised by telegraph that the Zucchetto would be conferred, and he sent out invitations at once to his friends to be present at the Legation at 6 o'clock last Wednesday evening.

Those who responded were: M. Patenotre, Ambassador of France; Senor Depas de Lome, Minister of Spain; Mr. Pioda, Minister of Switzerland; Dr. Booker, Mgr. Sbarretti, Mgr. Keane, rector of the Catholic University; Mgr. McMahon, who founded the McMahon hall of Philosophy at the Cath. University; Mgr. Stephan, Father Gillespie, Father Magnein, rector of St. Mary's Seminary, Baltimore; Father Orban, of the Catholic University; Major Kelley, Mr. McGuire and Mr. Nagle.

At 6 o'clock Mgr. Satolli received the Noble Guard in the reception room of the legation. Marquis Sacrapanti, in full uniform of a Noble Guard, had with him the little red zucchetto to be conferred on Mgr. Satolli. He presented Mgr. Satolli with the consistorial letter, and in doing so made a brief address.

He explained his mission and said that at the consistory of November 25 last the Holy Father had made Archbishop Satolli a Cardinal, and had honored him by giving him the mission to bring the insignia and document to America. Mgr. Sbarretti then opened the consistorial letter and read it. It was a brief and official announcement that the Pope had created Mgr. Satolli a cardinal.

The latter then made a speech in Italian, directing it to the Noble Guard, in which he thanked him for the office he had performed in conveying to him the official announcement that the Pope had created Mgr. Satolli a Cardinal.

He then took the little red zucchetto and placed it on his head, and walking with the noble guard entered the dining hall, the other guests following, where a well-appointed banquet was partaken of.

On January 5 the biretta will be conferred on Mgr. Satolli by Cardinal Gibbons at Baltimore, which will be the last act of making him a Cardinal. He will, however, have to go to Rome to receive the "Cardinal's hat," but at what time he will depart he is not aware.

As a Cardinal cannot be a delegate, the office he has occupied as Archbishop, Mgr. Satolli is now a pro-delegate.

AN AUTUMN SURETY.

(A scene overlooking Long Era.)

Enthroned upon old Cullagh's height,
Now rests the orb of day;
Re-mantling bays and wooded-isles,
In crimson sheen and gray.

O'er canopied with sapphire light,
Where late his chariot rolled;
His robes are clouds of purple hues,
Deep fringed with burnished gold.

O'er cloudlet isles, and jasper seas,
Pale stars sweet music make;
And floods of living lustre stream,
On hill and dale and lake.

Enchanting scene! Oh glorious sight!
Entranced—I still would gaze;
And fill with rapture all my soul,
In that rich glory blaze.

Slowly the clouds come threatening round;
Slowly the grandeur fades;
Slowly gathering o'er the scene,
The dim evening shades.

And yet once more Sol darts his rays,
In brilliance far around;
Ahl soon 'tis past—such visions fair,
Not oft on earth are found.

I linger on the hill-top still,
To catch the latest ray;
And turn in sadness from the view
As hushes the light of day.

THINNING FRUIT.

It makes a New Frolicsome Crop and Saves the Trees.

The next essential thing after you have got your fruit started, says Mr. J. H. Hale, the Connecticut fruit grower, is a judicious thinning of it. I believe the thinning of apples should begin when they first begin to bear. A well planted and well fed tree will begin to bear early. Only let it bear a little. Allow some of the strength to go into the development of the fruit buds for next year. Next year this pretty closely; then by and by you will build up an orchard that will have no off years in it. There isn't an off year. It is because the apples are in the hands of an off man. Thinning constantly would bring it into constant bearing.

It is not growing that exhausts the vitality. There are no more seeds in a large fruit than in a small one, and a large one doesn't take any more vitality out of a tree. If a Redfin pear tree has on it a thousand pears, and you take off 500 of them, the balance will weigh as much as the whole of them and bring more money, weakening the tree only half as much. Our rule for thinning peaches is not to leave one within four inches of another. This covers the ground with green fruit and looks like destruction, but at the end of the season there are more bushels than there would have been.

Thin by hand. Put step-ladders under the trees and put boys on them whose bump of destructiveness is large, and tell them to go ahead. We begin when the peaches are three-quarters of an inch in diameter, and take everything that is outside of that and discard. There are not away and back. The rest that are taken off are dropped on the ground and left there. In future our trees or four year old peach trees shall not bear over 250 peaches; our four or five year old trees not over 300, and full grown trees not over 500. That means six inches apart; 500 peaches on a tree will make six to eight bushels of heavy fruit. Three thousand peaches to a tree will make more, but will be water money, and the trees are not worth it.

CONSECRATED.

MGR. FARLEY NOW AUXILIARY BISHOP OF NEW YORK.

Impressive Ceremony at the Cathedral, New York, and Many Honored Citizens Present.

Monsignor John M. Farley, Vicar-General, recently named Auxiliary Bishop of the Archdiocese of New York by Pope Leo XIII, was consecrated December 21st, in St. Patrick's Cathedral by Archbishop Corrigan, the assistant consecrators being Bishop Charles J. The imposing ceremonies began with the reading of the Pope's Bull directing the consecration of an Auxiliary Bishop, after which Mgr. Farley made a profession of faith and took a solemn oath as the ritual directs.

After the gradual of the Mass the consecrating services began with the solemn anointment by Archbishop Corrigan of the duties of a Bishop. The Litany of the Saints, the hymn "Veni Creator," and the Preface followed.

At the anointing of Bishop Farley's head the Archbishop said: "May thy head be anointed and consecrated by having anointment in the Festival of the Holy Spirit, the hymn 'Veni Creator' and the Preface followed."

The consecration ceremony proved being finished, Bishop Farley was invested with the crozier and mitre proper to the episcopal office. The crozier and mitre were presented by the laymen, clergy and members of the church, and the bishop placed them on his head and shoulders.

The Mass proceeded with the consecration and the new Bishop celebrating in unison at the altar with the Archbishop and his assistants. The Sacred Host was consecrated and the new Bishop partook of the Eucharist. The Mass concluded with the benediction and the singing of the Gloria.

Then Bishop Farley was enthroned on the episcopal seat, while the Te Deum was intoned. During the hymn the Bishop was led between the two assistant consecrators around the Cathedral, blessing the people as he passed along.

Returning to the sanctuary, the Bishop said to Archbishop Corrigan, "Ad Multa Anxura," three times, each time bring in a louder voice. Then he received from the Archbishop the kiss of peace.
