ADVENTURE WITH A MUMMY.

-William West in Chicago Bosted.

The Archarologist Lest Mis Treasure, bu Bapaped With His Life.

French archeologist traveling among the Andes in search of knowledge and specimens had a great desire to explore some caves in the sides of the precipices. They were doubtless ancient tombs and would probably yield him a treasure. He selected a favorable spot, therefore, rigged a sort of chair or seat between two leather cords and engaged two Indians to let him down from the brow of the precipies "A descent of 300 feet made in this way," he tells us. "is extraordinarily long."

However, he reached the cave in safety, and on foreing a passage into it was rewarded by finding two skulls and a mummy, "thorough dry," he says, "and pretty solid." He passed a string through the symbols of the skulls and attached them to his balt. Then he took the minimy in his arms and signaled to the Indians to draw him up. With his heels he defended himself against the juting rooks, and in a few minutes was almost on an even with the top. The Indians knew nothing about his loss. Just them the yellow skull of one of their encurrors appeared below their eyes, and the idiote gave a start of sur-prise. The Probitions thought they must have let go the cord.
