

FATHER KOENIG'S NERVE TONIC

Hundreds Can Testify.

Windsor, N. C., Feb. 1904.
I was stricken with paralysis about two years ago, so that I could not use my right side. Three physicians treated me but without any success and I lost all hope, until I used Father Koenig's Nerve Tonic. It worked miracles on me. I would have never believed that such a cure was possible, but hundreds of my acquaintances can testify to it. Now my mind is perfectly clear again. I can transact my own business affairs, thank God for it.

BALD HEADS

NO MORE.
NO CURE, NO PAY.

A new discovery. A wonder of the nineteenth century. Dr. Grady, the world famous Dermatologist, has now at his disposal the greatest Hair Restorative ever discovered.

After many years of study, both in this country and abroad, of the skin and scalp, Dr. Grady has discovered a remedy by which he can make the hair grow thick and heavy on Bald Heads, no matter how long you have been bald, or what the age may be, so long as the pores of the scalp are not closed and the follicles not destroyed.

For Bald Heads

It is the only remedy on earth known to make the hair grow on Bald Heads, providing the scalp is in good condition. It will cost you nothing to have your head examined, and if you cannot be cured I shall frankly and honestly tell you so at once.

Young men who desire to have a manly look, which nature has failed to give soon enough (monstrous or beard) should call on the doctor.

The crowning glory of woman is her luxuriant hair of uniform color when tastefully arranged. A superior tonic dressing and restorer combined. Cures GRAY HAIRS, BALDNESS, DANDRUFF, ETC., ETC., ETC.

Ladies treated as well as gentlemen. Everything strictly private. Patients at a distance successfully treated by mail. All letters promptly answered. Inclose stamp.

DIOCESAN NEWS.

From Our Special Correspondents.

Mr. Read.

Rev. Dr. Mehan preached an eloquent panegyric last Sunday on St. Patrick, from the text: "The just shall be in everlasting remembrance."

The Reverend Doctor said that the glory of St. Patrick overshadows the Catholic world, no name being more generally evoked. The saint brought the natives of the land out of the house of bondage into Christian unity. Well may Ireland be called the land of his sufferings, offering thanks for the salvation of St. Patrick to her Isle, for the saving of souls and the glory of God. In his early life he learned to love God, and his development was due to his love of prayer, humility and faith. The Rev. pastor graphically described the journey and work of the great saint among the hills and valleys of Ireland, while he carried the gospel of Christ on one hand, the shamrock in the other, to the people. His love of God prepared his way for the glory of Heaven, and his work is not only remembered in the lavable faith of the children of the church. The speaker then said of St. Patrick's appearance before the assembled kings and priests of Ireland, and the enthusiasm with which they should Patrick's God shall be our God, and Patrick's faith shall be our faith. Ireland has clung to the faith and maintained the purity of her children through centuries of unbroken persecution, through the destruction of abbeys, monasteries and churches, through the terrible penal laws, and through the loss of property, friends, nationality and life itself. Ireland is as Catholic to-day as on the day on which she was first called to St. Patrick.

Strange, indeed, is it that St. Patrick went forth from his native land, abandoning his country and neighbors. So in these modern days the destiny of Patrick's children is to find happiness everywhere except in the world except in their own beloved Ireland. St. Patrick taught the Pagan Irish to look to the one true God; he spoke to them of His infinite love and tender mercy. He called on them to break their idols and follow Christ crucified. To them he came as a revelation—a bright light in the darkness. Obediently yet eagerly they followed the ambassador from heaven's court. He had the warm, impulsive affection, the tenderness of the feeling, the chivalry, the tenacious love of home, and the filial reverence for their elders, which mark the Irish character. Now we need St. Patrick to teach them to know their own people, to know their own land, which has neither snakes nor any reptiles can only brave men, the shamrock would not, could not grow for cowards.

Not was there any need for St. Patrick to instill the people with a love of liberty in the valleys and the hills, they were free, the little kingdoms were made up of men who all were equals, and it is said, who were all blood, related to their kings. They built and were prosperous, and they were free beyond all things earthly, and approaching akin to his love of God beyond his virtue, his bravery, his truth, his constancy—the Irishman's desire for independence—not for the independence of the conqueror who delights in vassals, and subject people, but for the independence that means equality and freedom for all men; but for this, which above all others, he has cherished, he has longed in vain. Instead of a free man he is a subject, and his country is ruled by a foreign power, yes, England, under whose domination he must abide, but which he will never be content, and with thoughts fixed on the past, when Ireland was a nation, he looks to the future and with tears in his eyes seeks the vision of Ireland once again free. The Irish loved their native land—the homes where they were born, and where their fathers had lived for generations, with affection deeper than that possessed by any other people; but with breaking hearts they were forced to depart. The world has seen the movement of many peoples. America's history bears on its pages many a sad story of emigration. Many have sought these shores, thank God they brought their faith with them, and thank Divine Providence, have labored in every clime with pride and blessings, and may say this was to be by Almighty God. Mournfully, for the last time, as the green of their beloved Isle was lost to view forever, many, indeed, fell by the wayside, as is testified by the whitened bones that lie at the bottom of the meaning ocean, and mark the track of the migrant ship across the broad Atlantic. But others arrived on these shores in quest of liberty and thank God they found it.

The drama "Among the Breakers" was given at the school-house hall on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, to a full house both nights.

The funeral of James Burns, Sr., was held this morning. The deceased was born in Longford, Ireland, 68 years ago, and a resident of Ithaca for nearly half a century. He died last Friday evening quietly and peacefully, after a long and exceedingly painful struggle with a fatal and remorseless internal disease—catarrh of the bladder.

James Burns, Sr., was a splendid type of man physically, and noted for his strength and quickness. He was a genuine gardener and florist, and contributed much toward making Ithaca so attractive and famous. For many years he was keeper of the city cemetery and the chief gardener on the Sag College grounds. Modest, quiet, and unobtrusively respected, he was a sincere American, and a true Irishman, because a lover of his native land.

He is survived by his widow, Margaret Burns, and eleven children: Thomas W. John J. Annie, James G. Catherine, Edward, Mary, Elizabeth, (sister Marcella), Margaret and William L. Burns, besides numerous grandchildren. Edward, of New York, and Annie, of Ovid, attended the funeral. The most rare and beautiful and profuse floral offerings were made to the dead, and they were a fitting tribute to him, whose life had been given to their cultivation and influence. The family are deeply grateful to Cayuga Hose Co. No. 1 for their magnificent floral pillow, and to the generous sentiments and kindly gifts of all donors of like kind. Such a bower as buried the casket of the deceased is extremely rare at any season of the year. A flash light picture was taken of the deceased almost hidden among these flowers, and the "stars of earth" to send to Sister Marcella, who is sick at Carthage, N. Y., and was unable to attend the funeral.

Relatives and friends from Ovid, Auburn, Cortland, Rochester and elsewhere were in attendance.

Cornelius Leary, Lawrence Herford, Michael McCormick, John Volehan, Dennis Mahoney, and Cornelius Kennedy acted as pallbearers.

The general was at the church of the Immaculate Conception, where a solemn high mass was celebrated by Rev. Father Evans, assisted by Rev. T. O'Connell, of Ovid, Fr. Hendrick, of Rochester; Father Curran, of Ovid; Father Maldea, of Freemanburg; Father Curran was master of ceremonies. The funeral was very large.

It is but truth to say that James Burns, Sr., had richly earned the marks of respect and honor conducted with his death, and burial—Lithaca Daily News.

M., and all the members of the Tent were present at the funeral, which was held from St. Vincent de Paul's church, Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock. The church was filled with friends of the deceased, thereby testifying to the esteem in which he was held by all.

The floral pieces were numerous and beautiful. Mr. Burger leaves besides a wife, a son.

Seneca Falls.
Fire broke out at 4:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon in the frame dwelling in Bayard street occupied by Mrs. Nicholas Durrin. The firemen did good work and succeeded in subduing the flames after a loss of perhaps $100 had been entailed. The building was owned by Charles McKeivitt, and the upper floor was occupied by a family named Nugent.

Patrick Ward, age 33 years, died at his home in Runnysville from consumption. Besides a father and mother, two brothers and one sister survive. Another sister died only two weeks ago.

Miss Libbie Lyman is visiting friends in Rochester.

Mrs. William Beckwith, who has been visiting her parents in this village, has returned to her home in Buffalo.

Mrs. Patrick Duffy, of Garden street, is quite ill.

Geneva.
Mrs. James Doyle, of Hamilton, left on Friday last, March 11th, for New York, to be in attendance when her niece, Miss Josephine Larkin, takes her final vows to enter into the Order of the Franciscans.

Jeremiah Dinneen, of Lyons, spent Friday in Geneva, the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Dinneen, of Washington street.

John Leary, of William street, has recovered from a very severe attack of Lagrippe, much to the delight of his many friends.

Mr. George Charron spent Sunday last in Rochester, the guest of J. S. Stackhouse.

One of the prettiest sights in Geneva, is the brilliantly lighted windows of O'Brien & Howard's, on Seneca street. They have put in eleven incandescent lights in each window, five on each side and one suspended in the center. The decoration is the work of Mr. Timothy O'Brien, who showed his ability in that line, as it attracts the attention of the public in general while passing up and down Seneca street during the evening.

Miss Anna Kane and Miss Katherine Lyons spent a few days in Buffalo, the guest of relatives and friends.

Bernard Dunn spent Sunday in Auburn, the guest of friends.

Geneva is to have another dry goods store. It is to be opened in the Corner Drug Store block in the store now occupied by the Meirman Clothing Co. and Philip Floxman is to be the owner and proprietor. Mr. Flaxman is now in New York city purchasing a large assortment of dry goods, and will support four dry goods stores in Geneva.
